THE FINANCIAL SITUATION

The practical elimination of the Moroccan question as an influence on financial markets, owing to the German concessions at Algeciras, was in large measure responsible for the veering of sentiment last week from pessimism to optimism. News of these concessions on the part of Germany reached Wall Street through the medium of private cables on Thursday, and at the same time there occurred a break of nearly a half cent in the pound in the foreign exchange market, a movement which brought gold imports well into view. The decline in exchange was, of course, closely related to the news from Algeciras. For many weeks there has been such a disparity between interest rates in this city and those obtainable at European centres that only the fear of a war over the Moroccan difficulties restrained foreign capital from flowing freely into this market to secure the larger returns held out. Even this fear did not wholly prevent foreign lenders from putting out funds here through the medium of finance bills for varying periods of time, but, nevertheless, it was generally recognized that the movement was far below the proportions it would have attained had there not been present in Europe the threat of a great conflict between France and Germany. The possibility of such a conflict seemed entirely averted by the events at the conference at the close of the week, and the immediate result was, of course, the offer here of large amounts of foreign funds in one shape or another. A measure of the freedom with which such funds should now flow this way is found in the fact that the declines in foreign exchange, which accompanied last week's offerings, occurred in spite of a weakening in local money rates, a movement aided by the receipt in this city of $3,000,000 of Government money under Secretary Shaw's $10,000,000 deposit. Following the sharp breaks in exchange, bringing gold imports within the hopeful ken of Wall Street, and the receipts of Government funds in such amounts as to make it possible for our banks to check the chipping away of surplus reserves which has been in progress for many weeks, the stock market, which had been prepared for such a movement by an extended period of drastic liquidation, during which prices had fallen 10 points on an average, and in particular instances, such as Reading, Great Northern, and one or two additional issues, an extreme of 40 points, became first firm amid dullness, and then strong and active, pointing toward substantial recovery of previous losses.

It would be as easy to underestimate as to overestimate the improvement in the money situation which was brought about by last week's two chief developments in the money market, the deposit of the $10,000,000 of Government funds, and the sharp break in foreign exchange. For these matters seem fairly to promise a much better state of affairs in money from this time on, and it was admittedly the unfavorable outlook in regard to funds, an outlook enforced by the 5½ per cent. rate for time funds and a maximum rate of 8 per cent. for day to day money, which was chiefly responsible for the widespread change in sentiment which preceded the recent market decline. The explanation for such unseasonable rates for money lay in the great business activity the country over and the demand upon this market for funds for crop-planting purposes, although our banks had not had returned to them the funds shipped out by them to harvest the crops of the previous year. Had there been no prospect of a liberal extension of credit by Europe or importations of gold, it is still not improbable that with the $10,000,000 derived from the Government seasonable demands might have been financed with little inconvenience, for this sum constitutes fully a third of the usual Spring loss, and it must be remembered that the deposit of $7,000,000 of it at interior points means that the demands upon local banks will be reduced by that much. But as a result of last week's composition of difficulties at Algeciras and the consequent relaxation in the money situation abroad, there is held out the promise of substantial aid over and above that coming from the Treasury, and for this reason the outlook is decidedly more encouraging. That in the event of a settlement of the Moroccan difficulties London, at least, was prepared to witness with equanimity a flow of funds to this city has been well known among our banking houses, and has been openly commented upon abroad. Thus, The London Statist, in its latest issue to reach this side, said: "It should be noted that the trend of funds is favorable to cheaper money in European money markets, and that consequently there is the prospect that European money will seek employment in New York in the not distant future. Money is now in relatively strong demand in London, and with the political uneasiness, the tendency is rather to withdraw money from New York. But if, as is hoped, the Moroccan question is settled within the next fortnight and the uneasiness in France disappears, money will rapidly tend to become cheaper in London and Berlin, and cash may be transferred from Europe to New York." These conditions have been fulfilled, and owing to the prosperity of business in this country, and in the expectation that nothing will be enacted into law which will prove fundamentally hurtful to railway or other corporation interests, a continuation of the recent heavy investments in American securities by European investors may be confidently looked for and may well result, in connection with our heavy exports, in receipts of gold. It is interesting to note in this connection that there was received at Plymouth and Southampton on Friday $9,300,000 in gold consigned to London, while there was reported under way to that city $3,940,000 in gold, a total of $13,240,000 either received or about to be received there. A comparatively insignificant decline in the price of gold in London and the maintenance of exchange on its present basis would lead to immediate importations of gold.

Other matters engaging the attention of the financial markets during the week which are of continuing importance included the conferences under way over the questions at issue between the operators and miners in the anthracite regions, and the possibility of a serious disturbance here is, at the moment, the most serious factor in the financial situation. The operators, however, are so well intrenched in their position, owing to the long and careful preparations which have been made for such a contingency, that it hardly seems possible the miners will engage in a contest with them at this time, while, if prudence is not observed in this respect, the consequences of a strike would seem now to be far less serious than would have been the case had it not been a matter foreseen and therefore prepared for. The stock market, too, seems in large measure to have been engaged in discounting this contingency among other matters, and if the history of the influence of the strike of 1902 upon the market is to be repeated, the first shock to prices will be followed by a recovery completely restoring values to their former level. The weakness in the wheat markets of the week was construed as a favorable matter at this time, since it may be accepted as indicating an excellent development of the Winter wheat plant. While the lull in the steel and iron trades is widely recognized, so far it has only served to reduce a business that was abnormal to normal proportions. Discussion of the hostility displayed by legislative bodies toward corporations continued, as did interest in the Socialistic propaganda, but these are matters whose effects, if found pregnant with evil, will be discounted slowly, unless, indeed, they serve to check European investments here.

TOLD ROUND THE TICKER.

HENRY CLEWS made something of a commotion in the big customers' room of his Mills Building offices the other day when he walked in on the old guard who still lingered after the last clicks of the ticker, with the brisk announcement that the Exchange would take a half holiday on St. Patrick's day. There was a moment of credulous amazement, then some one remembered that the 17th of March falls this year on Saturday.

CHARLES M. SCHWAB is as much the victim of the popular willingness to believe that his health is a most precarious matter as of any real bodily infirmity. When he went abroad for the long rest that followed his nervous breakdown several years ago, the foreign correspondents had him at the point of dissolution so often that even when the steel man returned home rosy with health the public remained incredulous, and every once in so often since has been ready to take on faith any report that makes Mr. Schwab out a sick man. As a matter of fact Mr. Schwab has been extremely careful of his health for the past few years. He never spends more than the morning hours at his office in the Trinity Building, and lower Broadway never sees him on Saturdays.

OTTO HEINZE & CO., in their 42 Broadway banking office, which also shelters the United Copper officials, have adopted a peculiar ruse to secure the privacy of ingress and egress to the inner sanctum which the architectural limitations of the building denied them. The visitor to the Heinze offices finds himself in a big room, with the usual partitions of a banking house shutting him out from the working force. Along the right-hand wall, flanking the passageway that leads to the private offices in the rear, is a length of partition paneled with ground glass, with here and there a door, that gives the effect of a series of little cubbies, or small reception rooms. The partition really hides, as few find out, a private passageway leading from a door opening into the hall alongside the main entrance, to the line of private offices which fringe the New Street wall of the building.

JAMES J. HILL, when he cuts loose from business cares in these later days, takes himself to Aiken or some popular resting place where he is within easy call of his responsibilities. It is not so long ago that his spare time used to be spent in the wilderness, whence not even the exigencies of an "ore land deal" could have recalled him. A Wall Street man tells this story of a meeting with Mr. Hill in the big woods. "I was returning from a shooting trip in the Winnebigoshish Indian country of Minnesota in the days before Jim Hill was much of a figure in New York, and my way lay across the broad expanse of Leech Lake. The water was a marsh-bordered sheet with the only possible landing place on its shores at the creek mouths, where the running streams cut channels through the miles of sedge. Darkness found us paddling in a blanket of wet fog with a poor chance of making firm land and a fire before daylight. I had about resigned myself to a night of chilly discomfort in the cramped canoe when the Indian in the bow stopped with his paddle in midstroke, listening. Everything was still as death to my city bred ears, but whatever was the matter it called forth a lot of excited whispering in Chippeway. Presently the paddles began to dip again and we went cautiously forward. Then I, too, caught the sound that had alarmde my Indians, who by now were of a mind to make back tracks. It was a rhythmic beat that was perfectly familiar, but refused to classify itself. The alarm of my guides was beginning to grip me when it flashed through my mind that the noise was the chugging of a naphtha engine. Sure enough, in a moment the dim shape of a broad craft, half house-boat, half yacht, loomed up. The cabin curtains were drawn aside in response to our hail to the pilot and the broad shoulders and white beard of J. J. Hill were outlined in the yellow light. Days afterward when I hit the railroad they told me that Mr. Hill spent weeks at a time in his light draught cruiser off on the back waters of that lake region.

HENRY A. ENSIGN, of E. D. Shepard & Co., has just returned from an extended trip through the mining districts of the Southwest and Mexico.

BRITISH TRADE CENTRES REPORT IMPROVEMENT

Cotton More Active—Wool Manufacturers Are Busy.

BETTER ORDERS FOR IRON

Breadstuffs Depressed on Crop Prospects—Copper Advances—Tin Firm and Lead and Spelter Weak.

London Times—New York Times Special Cable. Copyright, 1906.

LONDON, March 11.—The Times in its financial supplement to-morrow will say:

"Reports from the business and industrial centres continue favorable, indicating good trade in most localities and considerable improvement in some branches.

"Breadstuffs, on the crop prospects and enormous River Plate shipments, have been depressed, but maize has been steadier. Oilseeds have had a better tone.

"The cotton trade has been active in the raw material at easier prices. Yarns have sold more freely. Goods have moved in fair lines to China. The home trade is better.

"Further advances are reported in raw wool owing to the increased demand. The manufacturisg departments are very well occupied.

"Iron and steel manufacturers as a rule report increasing business and a satisfactory advance in engagements. Pig iron has had a steadier market and closes with a rather better tone. Copper has advanced on good support. Tin has reacted and closes firm. Lead and spelter are weak."

OPTIMISM IN PARIS.

Fall of the Cabinet Fails to Disturb Operators' Equanimity.

London Times—New York Times Special Cable. Copyright, 1906.

PARIS, March 11.—The proceedings at Algeciras dominated the stock market last week, the temper of the Bourse being regulated by the news from the conference. In the closing days of the week the general feeling was decidedly optimistic and the tendency of the market was remarkably strong in spite of the fact that many speculaters maintained an attitude of reserve.

The unexpected fall of the French Cabinet failed to disturb the equanimity of the large operators, who hold the market well in hand and look, apparently without concern, upon the Ministerial crisis. It is thought unlikely that a French Ministry would have withdrawn at the present juncture had the position of external politics been critical.

The cheerful disposition manifested toward the end of the week caused a rise in French rentes and foreign Government securities. Spanish railways again rose a few points and bank stocks were well supported. A sharp fall of 100f. per share occurred in Rente Foncière without affecting the general market, as the sudden decline was due to the collapse of the bull syndicate which had pushed the price of the stock to an abnormally high figure. Among industrials Wagons Lits dropped 20f. per share on the announcement that the usual dividend would be declared, a higher one having been expected.

Rio Tintos were at first firm, owing to the strength of the copper market.

The South African market showed a general and substantial recovery, chiefly owing to repurchases by bears supplemented by good buying of dividend-paying stocks.

BERLIN STILL UNEASY.

Causes Other Than Political Are Now Causing Apprehension.

London Times—New York Times Special Cable. Copyright, 1906.

BERLIN, March 11.—The tone of the stock markets in the early days of last week was decidedly bad. The pessimistic feeling which had characterized the Boerse for months seemed to have become intensified, and a downward tendency was observable, especially in mining shares. There was distinct need of good news from Algeciras, and when it came a great improvement took place in the market.

It is not certain, however, that the betterment of Germany's political situation is all that the market needs, for there is a good deal of uneasiness arising from economic causes. Considerable apprehension, for example, prevails lest the wave of prosperity in the mining market has spent its force.

There is also some misgiving in regard to the state of the money market. It is possible that the improvement in the political outlook may help the money market, but it will take something more than that to put the market in a satisfactory condition.

The general view is that there is no possibility of a reduction of the official bank rate for a long time.

TRADE WITH SWITZERLAND.

Ninety Per Cent. of Our Exports There Classed as Manufactures.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Trade between the United States and Switzerland during the latest period for which data are available was in excess of $30,000,000. This amount is made up of about $20,400,000 worth of goods imported into the United States and $10,300,000 worth of imports into Switzerland from this country. It goes without saying that the $250,000 worth of exports to Switzerland, reported to the Department of Commerce and Labor as exported direct to Switzerland, comprises but a small part of American goods received by Switzerland, by far the greater part being credited by our customs authorities to other countries to which the goods are directly shipped.

As a matter of fact, the most important imports credited by the Swiss customs to the United States, such as raw cotton, petroleum, unmanufactured tobacco, leather, lard, and meat, either do not figure at all in the export statement supplied by the Collectors to the Bureau of Statistics, or else figure to an amount far below that credited to this country by the Swiss customs authorities.

The combined value of these articles during the calendar year 1904 constitutes about three-fourths of the total Swiss imports from this country, viz.: $7,600,000 out of a total of $10,300,000. Of these six main items of imports, raw cotton is by far the most important, its value exceeding $4,000,000 in 1904, as against $2,800,000 in 1894.

Of the total exports from Switzerland to the United States, about 90 per cent. are classed as manufactures, over 9 per cent. as foodstuffs, and less than 1 per cent. as raw materials.

THE BANK STATEMENT.

Heavy Decrease in Loans and Deposits —Surplus Shows Increase.

The bank statement showed yesterday a loss in cash amounting to $5,448,300 and an increase of $1,454,950 in surplus reserve. This resulted from a decrease of $21,259,200 in loans and a decrease of $27,613,000 in deposits. It had been expected that the banks would report a large decrease in loans and deposits, but the falling off in these items largely exceeded the expectations. The loss in cash was also much larger than had been indicated by the estimates of the known movements of currency published on Friday. The reduction in loans was regarded as due largely to relief secured during the past week through foreign exchange operations.

The items of last week's bank statement, the changes from the preceding week, and the statement of March 11, 1905, follow:

MARCH 1906

EUROPE BUYS OUR BONDS

Purchases of American Securities Proceeding on Large Scale.

HOLLAND HOLDS $900,000,000

J. L. Pierson of Amsterdam Tells of Dutch View of Investments in Americans.

The attitude of European investors toward the New York stock market is a subject of particular interest to Wall Street at present owing to the influence which possible purchases of American securities for foreign account may have on monetary conditions at this centre. Last week foreign exchange rates were depressed by sales of bills drawn against shipments of American securities to Europe and a broadening of this movement; besides, relieving the local banks of a large amount of loans, might lead to imports of gold. Of all the European markets, one of the best for American securities of late has been Holland. Dutch investors are now reliably estimated to hold between $800,000,000 and $900,000,000 of American securities, a larger amount than was ever previously held by that country.

The fact that such a large volume of American securities is held in the Netherlands gives special interest to the present attitude of Dutch investors toward the New York stock market. This attitude was interestingly explained yesterday by J. L. Pierson of the Amsterdam house of Adolph Boissevain & Co. and of the New York house of Boissevain, who is at present in this city. Mr. Pierson said that the very large advance in prices which occurred last year was regarded by investors in Holland as being too rapid, and for this reason they were induced at the beginning of this year to take profits on a large amount of railroad and industrial stocks which had been purchased by them at very much lower prices. The extent to which this liquidation was carried Mr. Pierson illustrated by the statement that at the close of last year Dutch investors held 450,000 shares of United States Steel common, and that these holdings at the beginning of the current month had been reduced to 300,000 shares. While Dutch investors still hold $30,000,000 of United States Steel common, the fact that during the past two months they have disposed of $15,000,000 of this stock shows to what extent they have been taking profits. This selling movement has now about come to an end. The reaction which has already taken place in our market is regarded in Holland as justifying a substantial recovery, and for this reason American stocks are again being purchased on a small scale for Holland account.

Even while taking their profits on a large amount of stock which had advanced to figures very much above that at which it had been purchased, Dutch investors have been steadily adding to their holdings of American bonds. Referring to the bond holdings of Dutch investors, Mr. Pierson said:

"The Dutch investor has very great confidence in the United States and is steadily increasing his interest in American securities, particularly the bonds of railroads and leading industrial corporations. The Dutch holdings of American bonds, which are now larger than ever in the past, were increased largely during the past year by very heavy purchases of some of the larger issues. The American bonds which are particularly liked in Holland are the very large issues which a broad international market and therefore are always available as collateral and, if need be, may be readily disposed of. Dutch investors have been buying very heavily of such issues as Southern Pacific refunding 4s, Pennsylvania convertible 3½s, and United States Steel sinking fund second mortgage 5s. The Pennsylvania issue is a special favorite in Holland. The Dutch investor looks upon it as an absolutely safe 3½ per cent. investment, with the fact added that in buying it he is gambling, without any cost to himself, on the future development of the Pennsylvania Railroad, which the Dutch investor regards as tantamount to the development of the United States itself."

Mr. Pierson made the interesting statement that practically all of the increase in Holland's floating capital arising from the prosperity of Dutch industries available for investment abroad, has been invested in American securities. "We know of no better field for investments," Mr. Pierson said, "than the United States, and it is natural that Holland's surplus capital should seek investment in this country. Formerly Dutch investors were large buyers of Russian securities, but since the occurrence of the war between Russia and Japan practically no additional Russian securities have been purchased for Dutch account. That Holland has been well supplied with capital is evident from the fact that all during recent months the money rate in Amsterdam has been 2½ per cent., although during this period rates in other Continental centres and in London have at times been much higher. The Dutch colonies have thrived remarkably during the past year, the sales of many of the products of the colonies exceeding all previous records. Tobacco, sugar, and tin have all added their increased quota to Holland's wealth during the past year, and the outlook for a continuance of these prosperous conditions is very bright."

Going back to the reasons for the present opinion of Dutch investors that the American market is entitled to a recovery from the present level of prices following the reaction which has occurred since last January, Mr. Pierson said:

"The prosperity of this country has in no way abated during the past few months. The reaction which has occurred in prices we regard as not due at all to any falling off of the country's business, but merely to the fact that the previous advances had been a little too rapid, and that therefore they exposed the market to just such action as has occurred. The heavy increases in railroad earnings which have been reported from week to week and from month to month must soon again begin to tell in the security market, and we have no hesitation now in buying your railroad bonds, or even in adding conservatively to our holdings of American stocks. There is not much field in Holland for the smaller issues of bonds, which necessarily have a limited market, and therefore are not readily saleable, but for the larger issues there is very large demand. Regarding the prosperity of the United States as assured, we willingly invest here our surplus capital."

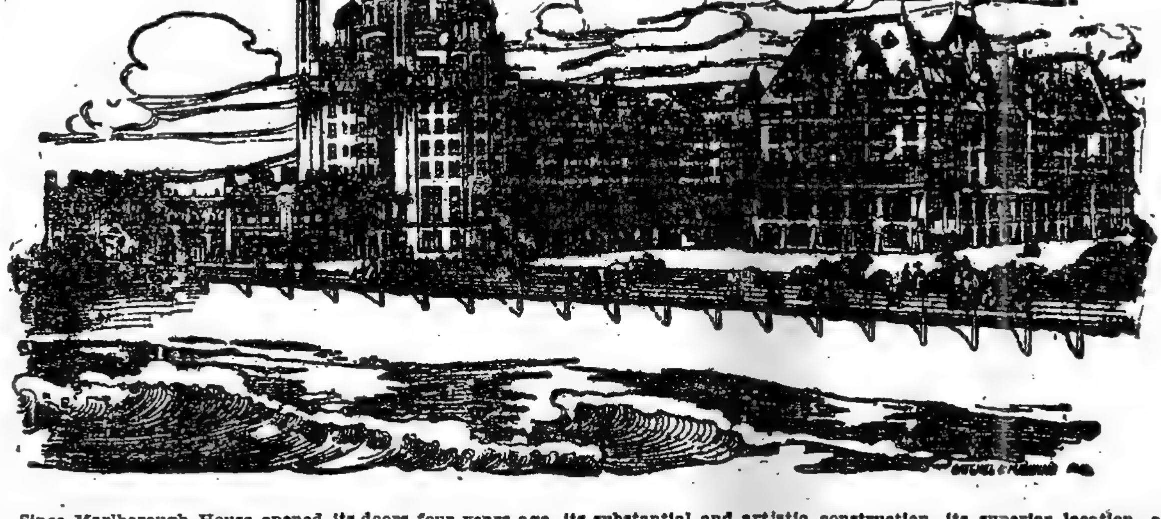
Marlborough-Blenheim

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.



Since Marlborough House opened its doors four years ago, its substantial and artistic construction, its superior location, and its ownership management have made it the most successful resort hotel in the country. Its increasing popularity has necessitated enlargement, and we have the pleasure of announcing the opening of its sister hotel "BLENHEIM," with 250 guest chambers and 250 private baths (every room has its own private bath, with sea water and fresh water and running ice water in each.) The structural parts are reinforced concrete and the walls are hollow tile, thus insuring an absolutely dry atmosphere so important at the shore. The two houses connect with each other and will be run as one under the name "MARLBOROUGH-BLENHEIM." There is an American-plan dining room and a separate European-plan dining room, so that all guests have the privilege of living either way. A noteworthy feature is a semi-circular enclosed and heated solarium and open plaza fronting along the ocean and overlooking the Boardwalk. As heretofore high-class music will be a feature throughout the year. Golf privileges.

WOMAN TO HEAD SEARCH FOR $33,000,000 TREASURE

Mrs. Roswell Hitchcock Will Sail to Cocos Island.

MANY FAILED BEFORE HER

A Boston Merchant Backing the Expedition—Search to be Directed by a Miner.

Mrs. Roswell D. Hitchcock said yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Cambridge that she expects in the early Summer to head an expedition to the Island of Cocos, which lies about 600 miles southwest of Panama, and where it has been believed for many years that a vast treasure is buried. She believes it amounts to $33,000,000. There have been many expeditions in search of this fabled wealth, but nobody has ever been successful. Even the Costa Rican Government is said to be credulous, and keeps a representative on the island, over which it has raised its flag. The last expedition was the one under Lord Fitzwilliam, which failed a year ago.

Mrs. Hitchcock is the widow of a United States naval officer. She has circled the globe more than once, and has written of her travels in many lands. She has appeared in many cities as a lecturer. On one of her expeditions she acquired mines in the Klondike. For some seasons she has been the moving spirit of the Entertainment Club, which this Winter has held regular meetings at the Waldorf-Astoria, the members being addressed by people of prominence in all walks of life. Robert B. Roosevelt, uncle of the President, usually presides.

Mrs. Hitchcock's expedition will be backed by a Boston merchant, who has agreed to furnish a vessel for it. Mrs. Hitchcock will have full authority in the selection of those who are to go on the expedition. Among them, she says, will be Lord Fitzwilliam and Admiral Pallister, formerly of the British Navy.

"When I was in the Klondike," Mrs. Hitchcock said yesterday, "I had a chance to do a kindness for a miner who interested me in the story of the hidden wealth of the Island of Cocos. There are three separate treasures there, one of $17,000,000, which was sent there for safety by the wealthy families of Brazil during an ancient war with Chili. There is another of $15,000,000 hidden by pirates and another of $1,000,000 hidden under a certain arch.

"I believe my miner friend has the exact location of all of them. He wanted to give me his maps, but I would not have them for anything in the world. Their very possession is a danger. This man is hounded by detectives, but it won't be long before he is free of them and aboard our treasure-seeking ship.

"Among those who are to go with us I mean to have a party of eminent professors from the great universities, and, in particular, a botanist. There is the most wonderful vegetable growth on the island, and any number of orchids of rare beauty that have never been classified. Then we must have an authority on natural history. Indeed, we shall need many men of science to take with us to the wonderful island, so that even if we fail in locating the treasure, and I am sure we shall not, the expedition will not have been without value to the world.

"Admiral Pallister has advised that we take a Chinese crew exclusively, except for a few picked men to bring us back, and that we leave them on the island and send another crew for them. He says that there is grave danger of mutiny, in the event of finding the hidden wealth, unless we have a Chinese crew. The Boston merchant has another idea. He fears a Chinese crew, but has the utmost confidence in the sailor men of Gloucester."

Yonkers Police Get More Motorists.

The Yonkers police are still active in the bringing in of automobilists who exceed the speed limit. Three more were gathered in yesterday. At 3 o'clock Westley Fryxele, driver for Edward Gerberaux, a New York paper box manufacturer, was arrested. At 4:30 P. M. William Worth Clark, driver for Peter Le Caler of 2,165 Arthur Avenue, New York, was arrested. Previous offenders have invariably been fined $50 each.

MR. JEROME'S WORK.

The District Attorney Acted on 8,480 Complaints in 1905.

The annual report of Chief Clerk John A. Henneberry, issued Saturday, shows that the number of complaints acted on by the District Attorney's office during 1905 was 8,480. The total number of complaints of all kinds disposed of during his first term of office was 18,274.

When that four-year term began on Jan. 1, 1902, Mr. Jerome found 861 undisposed indictments waiting for him, which had been returned during the régime of his two predecessors, Col. Gardiner and Mr. Philbin. The number of unfinished cases on Dec. 31, 1905, was 640. This number was the largest recorded at the end of any year since Mr. Jerome took office, and was caused by the large amount of time which the Grand Jury and the courts had to give to election cases during the Fall. On July 1 last year the number of pending indictments was only 368.

Attention is called in the report to the unwonted number of important cases brought to a successful end during the last four years, including the conviction of such men as Col. "Bob" Ammon, James S. Alderdice, John W. Wooten, Samuel I. Ferguson, Thomas P. Wickes, (Lewis Jarvis;) Abraham H. Hummel, Dr. Edward E. Conrad, Dr. W. H. Hale, Dr. H. H. Kane, Albert T. Patrick, Edward M. Harlam, Charles Kanter, David Rothschild, "Al" Adams, Richard Canfield, and David Bucklin.

Mr. Jerome's attack on the gambling dens of every sort was particularly successful. In all 1,415 indictments of that kind were disposed of in four years, and 936 of the defendants were convicted. Over $30,000 worth of gambling paraphernalia was confiscated and destroyed.

The convictions for homicide during the four-year period numbered 142, while the same figures for the four years ending Dec. 31, 1901, were 106.

During the year 1905 2,490 persons were convicted, as against 2,466 for the year 1904.

PRISONER HAD MANY JEWELS.

Police Also Found a Mask and Skeleton Keys in His Pockets.

Detectives Kinsler and Duggan of the Central Office arraigned Morris Kleischer of 268 Avenue B in the Tombs Court yesterday as a suspicious person. When arrested at Avenue B and Fourteenth Street Kleischer was apparently trying to dodge the detectives, who had been watching him for several hours.

A revolver was found in the man's pocket, together with a mask, a wig, some articles for make-up, and a bunch of keys, among which were two skeleton keys.

There were also found in the man's pockets a number of scarfpins, diamond studs, rings and earrings, a gold watch, a locket with the initials "M. E. G.," and other articles of jewelry, the whole estimated as being worth $2,000.

The prisoner declared that he was a diamond dealer and the owner of the jewelry. He was remanded to Headquarters. His picture is not in the Rogues' Gallery, but the police believe him to be a Western thief.

BOY SHOT WITH AIR RIFLE.

Detective Looking for the Lad Who's Charged with the Shooting.

George Beaudry, 17 years old, of 1,819 Third Avenue, was playing on the roof of 217 East Seventy-third Street with some of his pigeons yesterday afternoon. On the roof of 224 East Seventy-fourth Street, adjoining, James Lamb, 14 years old, was playing with an air-rifle.

Lamb, according to the Beaudry family, was shooting at chimneys, and, growing tired of this and seeing Beaudry's pigeons flying about, he took to "potting" them.

It is understood that Beaudry entered a protest at this, whereupon the Lamb boy is alleged to have turned his rifle upon the owner of the pigeons and sent several slugs at him. One of the slugs passed through Beaudry's hat, another through his coat, and a third struck him in the thigh, injuring him so seriously that it was necessary to have him taken to the Presbyterian Hospital.

Lamb dropped his rifle after the shooting and ran to the street. When Beaudry's parents made a complaint at the East Sixty-seventh Street Station a detective was sent to the Lamb boy's home. He was absent, and his parents expressed the greatest surprise at the story told by the Beaudrys, but were confident that the boy would return at bedtime. The detective was still waiting for him late last night.

DERANGED GROCER HELD.

His Wife, Whose Throat He Cut, Likely to Die, Doctors Say.

Louis Buoncare, a French grocer of 883 Tenth Avenue, was held in the West Side Court yesterday by Magistrate Whitman in $2,500 bail to await the result of injuries inflicted by him upon his wife early in the morning while he was in a fit of insanity.

Mrs. Rosie Bimberg, a married daughter, appeared as a witness, and said that she had been staying at her parents' house on Saturday night. At bedtime Buoncare knelt down and prayed so wildly that she had to induce him to go to bed. Later in the night she heard a scream, and jumping up found her father bending over her mother with a razor in his hand.

He ran out of the house, but was captured by Policeman Gunshannon of the West Thirty-seventh Street Station. Gunshannon declared that the man was insane when captured. Mrs. Buoncare was taken to the Roosevelt Hospital with her throat cut in two places. It is said that she will die.

Bark Spies Afloat Again.

The bark Adam W. Spies, which went ashore near Long Beach Saturday, was floated yesterday morning. Capt. Hines of the Spies said that, with the exception of a few leaks, the Spies was undamaged. The cargo of bone which the vessel brought from Buenos Ayres was intact.

HOW PHILADELPHIA BEAT BOSSES AND WON LIBERTY

Chairman Edmonds of City Party Tells West Side Y. M. C. A.

GRAFT WAS EVERYWHERE

Inspiration for Revolt Came, He Says, from Theodore Roosevelt—Thinks Improvement Will Last.

Franklin Spencer Edmonds, Chairman at the November elections of the City Party in Philadelphia, told the West Side Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association at its meeting in the Majestic Theatre yesterday afternoon "How We Overthrew Boss Rule in Philadelphia." When the doors were opened at 3 o'clock about 250 persons were outside, but a sufficient force of police was on hand, and everything passed off quietly.

"When the policeman," began Mr. Edmonds "takes an apple off the stall of the Italian at the corner because he can't stop him, graft begins, and it goes on till large financial interests purchase legislation for their own purposes. The movement to get rid of it in Philadelphia is only part of the great American movement, and if we started late, we did our work thoroughly. It may be Philadelphia is as sleepy as alleged by the papers in the neighboring suburbs, but when a question of moral righteousness is raised the Dutchmen are no slower than any other people.

"For twenty-five years the organization had been growing up under the leadership of that wonderful political genius, Matthew Stanley Quay. Every one of the 15,000 office holders obtained his position from it, and it was openly boasted by its leaders, 'Only through us can you get political appointments.' Office holders packed the primaries, the conventions, and acted as judges of election contrary to the law, and only office holders or their friends were returned. Practically speaking, the Republican was the only party in Philadelphia, and the Democratic vote dwindled to 85,000.

"At the election in February, 1905, a judge of the election came to the poll with 200 ballots done up in a newspaper. Before the poll was opened he marked 200 votes and put them in. A voter who come at 7:15 found the box so full that the ballots had to be shoved down with a ruler before he could get his in. They were not content with voting the deaf and the dumb and the dead, but in one division they recorded a poll parrot, a cat, and a dog. They were the best citizens in that part of the city. They always voted regularly.

"An attorney who would not bow to the organization's power found his application for a building license refused three times, and at last his client was told: 'Don't you see what the trouble is? Why don't you go to a lawyer? This man's in politics.' And he was advised to resort to one of the most prominent of the organization's lawyers. It became almost an Eleventh Commandment in Philadelphia, 'Thou shalt not fight the organization.'

"When Roosevelt was re-elected the opportunity came. The business men knew protection was safe for four years, and could turn to local politics. They called a meeting at the Philadelphia Bourse, nominated a Committee of Seventy of all parties and creeds to examine the records of all candidates, and employed a corps of lawyers to hunt down election frauds. In January, 1905, the City Party was born, but in its first fight the following month it elected only two School Directors and none of the City Council.

"The newspapers, with a fidelity seldom equaled, kept up the fight. The ministers held a meeting, and then the one thing needed, a leader, appeared in John Weaver. He had long protested in private against the organization, but measures were passed over his veto, and he had never realized the political power of the Mayor.

"In the Spring of 1905 the Philadelphia Gas Company asked for an extension of its lease for seventy-five years in return for $25,000,000. The city needed the money, but the public was wild at the idea of the company not giving any reduction in price in spite of all the improvements in the methods of manufacture. The City Councilors were attacked on all sides, and they were even chased in automobiles to get them to vote against the proposal.

"Only 13 out of 130 voted against it, and then the wrath of the citizens knew no bounds. I don't believe they would have taken the law into their own hands, but the Councilors were afraid they would. The galleries looked as if every man had a halter in his pocket, and if a cracker had been dropped half the Councilors would have died of fright.

"Then the Mayor used his political power, and in one week dismissed the Directors of Public Works and of Public Safety. John Weaver meant business. If I live to the age of Methuselah, I shall never think any week as great. Everything was so uncertain. Weaver dismissed the men; the Common Pleas put them back; Weaver dismissed them again and the Supreme Court confirmed his action. The officials did not know from whom to take orders, and then the Mayor ordered all of them to get out of politics and quit their clubs.

"The great thing is we have made in every ward of the city thousands of new politicians. Six thousand young men enrolled as the 'Philadelphia Minutemen,' pledged to answer a call at a minute's notice in the interests of the city. The City Party was organized and 45,000 voted at its primaries. The politicians thought it would die out after one election, but it has disappointed them, and I think will continue to disappoint them.

"Above all we recognize in this movement the inspiration of one man, Theodore Roosevelt, who is not afraid to make sacrifices for principle and is willing to do this in the full glare of the daylight."

Mr. Edmonds spoke again last night at Cooper Union. "We have proved that public sentiment can triumph over the strongest organization," said he. "We have shown that the boss is unnecessary and have achieved our progress by appealing direct to the common people."

At the conclusion of his address he had to submit to the usual questioning.

"What attitude did the papers take toward the City Party?" was asked.

"Here the Cooper Union is held up to ridicule by the daily press. It is a shame."

Mr. Edmonds assured the inquirer that his party had received ample support. It was the Chairman of the meeting, Charles Sprague Smith, who answered the remark about the attitude of the newspapers toward the People's Institute. He said:

"There seems a desire to treat our debates satirically and in an unfair spirit. The effect should be to make us more loyal to our work. I challenge any man desiring America to produce a clean democracy to come here and not be impressed by our work."

Another man asked Mr. Edmonds why the reform party did not get a stronger leader than Mayor Weaver, who would not need bolstering up by prayer meetings and a new party? You believe him just, he continued, because he threw his party down.

"He did not," responded the lecturer. "He saw a light, just as a good many other Philadelphia citizens did at the same time."

Then arose a bearded man who asked:

"Am I not right; there is plenty of everything upon the earth for everybody who is honest?"

Mr. Edmonds agreed. Then, raising his voice to a shout, the questioner went on:

"Ought we not to give to all men food, fuel, houses, the same as the sons of millionaires have? Will not then graft, bribery, murder, aye, even war disappear? Is not Socialism the only real method, and are not other reformers merely scratching the soil?"

Mr. Edmonds passed the question to the Chairman, who made a short speech in reply.

MOST MOTORISTS BREAK THE LAW, SAYS CRANE

Think They Own the Earth, Declares the Magistrate.

HE LECTURES A PHYSICIAN

Policeman Says Doctor Tried to Make Auto Frighten His Horse Into Running Away.

Magistrate Crane found another opportunity, in the Morrisania Court yesterday, to denounce automobilists who break the speed laws, and seized it with quite as much energy as he displayed Saturday in censuring Charles G. Gates. His target yesterday was Dr. Ferdinand G. Kneer, a physician, of 236 West Fifty-first Street.

Dr. Kneer was arrested on Saturday afternoon at Hunter's Island Inn, in Pelham Bay Park, by Mounted Policeman Goldhammer of the Westchester Station, for running up on the lawn in front of the inn, so that he might not run the risk of puncturing the tires of his automobile by running over a stretch of newly laid broken stone in front of the hotel. Mrs. Kneer was in the automobile.

When Dr. Kneer was arraigned in court yesterday the court ordered a complaint of disorderly conduct drawn. Patrolman Goldhammer said that after he made the arrest and ordered Dr. Kneer to drive the automobile to the station, the physician, urged by his wife, tried to frighten his horse, to make it run away, that they might escape.

Several times, he said, the doctor stopped the automobile, a steam car, and let off the steam with a roar that frightened his horse and made it difficult for him to restrain the animal. Finally, he told Dr. Kneer that if he did not stop it he would compel him to leave the machine and walk to the station.

Mrs. Kneer jumped up from her seat and cried out that Goldhammer was not telling the truth. Magistrate Crane told her not to interrupt. But she was again aroused when Goldhammer said that she told him that she hoped his horse would throw him and that he would be so badly hurt hat he would have to go on the operation table and that Dr. Kneer would have a chance to cut him up.

"I didn't say that," broke in Mrs. Kneer, "the officer is not telling the truth."

"Sit down and keep still, Madam," said the Magistrate.

Dr. Kneer presented a diagram, showing the road and the inn, and explaining why he drove upon the lawn. When he had finished, Magistrate Crane said:

"The trouble with you automobilists is that you never know or care where you go. You go where you please, and you do what you please. You think, because you have money, that you can do what you like. Last Winter I was sitting in my window, when I saw a huge automobile dash by right on the sidewalk. A man who owns an automobile thinks he owns the earth, and that he can do as he pleases with impunity. Ninety-nine per cent. of automobilists violate the law."

The Magistrate paused a moment, and Dr. Kneer put in:

"I agree with your Honor that many automobilists do violate the law, and none of them ought to go more than twenty-five miles an hour. But I am careful about the speed law and do not violate it. I am a professional man and I have a respect for the law."

"If you are a professional man, that is all the more reason why you should be careful," said the Magistrate.

"I have missed several engagements by coming to court this morning," said the doctor.

"It's not my fault that you could not keep your engagements," retorted the Magistrate. "You are as subject to the laws as anybody else. If you were assaulted by some one you would expect me to punish him. I can make no exception in the law. You think because you are rich that you don't have to be punished and that you can do as you please."

"Oh, no, your Honor," said the doctor, "you are mistaken. I am not a rich man. I am only a practicing physician. You are down on us automobilists too much."

"No, I'm not," cried the Magistrate. "You have no right to make such a statement. I am not down on automobilists in general, but I am down on the rich who violate the laws. I am determined to punish all such who come before me. I think automobiling is a magnificent pastime, but those who indulge in it must not violate the law. All who do so should be locked up. That is the only way to stop them. What do they care about a fine? They just laugh at it, as they laugh at people whom they nearly run over, and then toot their horns and run away."

"You are right," said Dr. Kneer. "All such persons should be punished. But I was not speeding. And there were no signs telling me to keep off the lawn."

"No signs there!" exclaimed the Magistrate. "Is there any sign to prevent you running your machine into this courtroom? What do you automobilists care for signs or laws or anything else?"

"Well, your Honor," said the doctor, quite subdued, "I suppose I am guilty, but this is Sunday morning, and I've got a good many patients waiting; so won't you make an exception of my case?"

"Sunday morning!" cried the Magistrate. "So much the worse. I will make no exception of your case. I will fine you $10."

Dr. Kneer paid his fine and left the court in haste.

STICKPIN GOT OFF, TOO.

Mr. Muller's Diamonds Accompanied Two Hurrying Passengers.

Theodore Muller, proprietor of a chop house at 20 Graham Avenue, Brooklyn, reported to the Yonkers police last night that he had been robbed of a diamond horseshoe stickpin worth more than $200 while riding yesterday afternoon from Bedford Park to Yonkers.

Just before reaching the business section of Yonkers, he said, a tall, rough-looking man crowded against him as if in a hurry to get off the car. At the same time a short, stout man, wearing a bluish overcoat, jostled him, saying, "Get off." Before he could regain his balance the two were out of sight, and so was his stickpin. It contained nine white diamonds.

HUNGARIANS AGAIN ASK FOR AMERICA'S SUPPORT

5,000 Here Shout, "Down with the House of Hapsburg."

GATHERINGS ELSEWHERE, TOO

Speakers Declare That Francis Joseph Is Taking the Liberty of the Magyars Away.

Five thousand Hungarian-Americans met yesterday afternoon in the Grand Central Palace to protest against what they call the attempt of the House of Hapsburg to deprive the Magyars of their "constitutional rights and liberties" and voicing an appeal to the American Nation for aid in establishing in Hungary "a government of the people, by the people, and for the people."

In the gathering were representatives of at least a dozen Hungarian societies in this city, Paterson, Passaic, Newark, and New Brunswick. They marched into the meeting place with flags flying and singing the national songs of the native land. From the moment of arrival of the first organization until the meeting adjourned there was enthusiasm and to spare.

Bela Perczel, whose father was recently Hungarian Minister of Finance, and whose brother was, a few years ago, President of the Hungarian Parliament, presided. Among those who spoke were Morris Cukor, the Rev. L. Perenyi, Congressman Henry M. Goldfogle, Gen. James R. O'Beirne, and Dr. A. Kosma. When the last speaker had been heard from, redhot resolutions were adopted, pledging support to Hungarians at home, condemning the policy of Francis Joseph, and calling upon America to "open its heart again to the people of Louis Kossuth."

The mass meeting was the result of a feeling on the part of Hungarians in th country that there is a scheme on the part of Austrian emissaries to hoodwink the American people. It is asserted that the American press is being supplied with misleading information as to the policy of Francis Joseph in an effort to poison the minds of Americans against Hungary and preventing that country from securing the moral support which would be hers if the situation was understood.

Before the speaking commenced the gathering was wrought up to the highest pitch by the singing of the Magyar hymn, which was cheered for fully five minutes. Chairman Perczel, in introducing the first speaker, spoke feelingly of the Hungarian situation.

"Bayonets are at present ruling," he declared, "where for over 1,000 years liberty was supreme."

Morris Cukor addressed the meeting first in the Hungarian tongue, and then spoke in English.

"The people of Hungary," he said, "are fighting for the very principles embodied in the American Constitution, the right of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. There is a systematic attempt to make it appear that the movement is one of the aristocracy. Nothing could be further from the truth. It is a movement fathered by no politician, seeking pelf or power, but one of all the people, enlisted under the banner of Louis Kossuth, the worthy son of that immortal genius whose name is respected and honored in every country of the globe where free men dwell. It is a fight of free men for free men's rights.

"They demand for themselves industrial and commercial independence from Austria, the right to build up their own country in their own way. They demand that the Magyar boys in Magyar regiments follow their own flag and speak their own tongue. They demand the right of universal suffrage."

The Rev. L. Perenyi, pastor of the Hungarian Church of St. Stephen, in East Fourteenth Street, followed Mr. Cukor with a fiery denunciation of the House of Hapsburg.

"We are weak," he said, "and in the knowledge of our weakness at home we have come to America that we may find the liberty that is so dear to us. Hungary is wet with the blood of patriots. The House of Hapsburg would still further enslave. Down with it!"

The cry of "Down with the Hapsburgs!" was taken up by the great audience until it could be heard far beyond the hall. Congressman Goldfogle, the next speaker, assured Hungary of America's sympathy, and there were addresses along similar lines by Gen. O'Beirne and Dr. Kosma.

Mass meetings were also held yesterday in Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Perth Amboy, Trenton, and Cleveland. Resolutions like these adopted here were adopted at all these meetings, and copies will be forwarded to Congress, with the request that the American Nation express its sympathy for the people of Hungary.

NO SOFT COAL STRIKE; MITCHELL IN A DEAL

Bituminous Men to Get Increase; Fight in Hard Coal Fields.

ONE AGAINST THE OTHER

Inspired Statement Given Out in Pittsburg Last Night—Mitchell in Indianapolis for the Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 12.—At a late hour to-night the following statement was made by a man connected with the Pittsburg Coal Company, but who for good reasons will not permit his name to be used.

There will be no strike in the bituminous coal fields. You may say positively that all differences between the soft coal miners and operators will be settled at the conference to be held in Indianapolis next week. I do not know the terms upon which the settlemen will be effected, nor does any other man. But there will be a settlement, and the miners will get an advance. It may not be the full 12 per cent. asked for, but it will be satisfactory, and both sides will leave the conference well satisfied."

This settlement, if carried out, will be in direct line with the agreement entered into with John Mitchell by the bituminous operators a week or two ago. Mitchell was informed at that time that he must either force the hard coal operators to sign the scale or bring on a fight and shut down their mines. If he succeeded in doing either it would put the soft coal men on an equal basis with the anthracite men for getting into the Eastern markets. If he did not succeed in forcing the scale or the fight the bituminous men warned him they might grant his followers an advance, but they would cut out the "check-off" system, which would mean the bankrupting of the Miners' Union, as it is only by this system the union is able to collect the dues from its members.

The check-off has never prevailed in the hard-coal region, and consequently few of the miners there remain in good standing in the union.

The refusal of the anthracite operators to grant any concessions to their men has practically made the bituminous operators masters of the situation. When the announcement reached this city that the anthracite operators would not deal with the union it created good feeling among miners and operators alike. They are both confident there will be no trouble at Indianapolis next week.

The miners are certain they will get the full 12 per cent. they have asked for, but some of the operators profess to believe a compromise will be effected on 5.5 per cent., which will restore the scale of two years ago. It is almost certain, however, the full 12 per cent. will be granted now, and this will give the highest scale ever paid in this district.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 12.—President John Mitchell came to Indianapolis to-day to preside at the National Convention of Miners on Thursday. When asked concerning the refusal of the anthracite operators to grant the demand of the miners he said it looked as though the operators "are looking for a strike."

When asked concerning his reported corroboration of Vice President Lewis's statement to the effect that there would be no strike, President Mitchell said he had been misquoted. He said he did not meet with Labor Commissioner Neill to take up the settlement of the present difficulty.

Mr. Mitchell refused to affirm that President Roosevelt had taken any steps to bring about a settlement.

A special meeting of the Anthracite Scale Committee has been called for the latter part of this week.

LOOK FOR HARD COAL STRIKE.

Coal Merchants Think It's Coming—Operators' Statement.

The coal merchants in this city were at sea yesterday as to how to interpret the answer of the anthracite coal Presidents to the demands of the anthracite miners. The general idea was that it looked more like a strike than it did a week ago.

The following statement was made yesterday on behalf of the anthracite operators' committee of seven:

> Mr. Baer received this morning Mr. Mitchell's acknowledgment of the answer by the operators' committee to the propositions made by the committee of the anthracite mine workers with advice that the same would be submitted to the miners' committee as soon as possible.
> The operators think that they are taking long chances in even offering to continue the present condition for three years longer. This offer was based on the possibility that the business prosperity which characterized the last three years will continue. There is no certainty of this, as any time within the next three years a depression in business may take place which may lessen the demand for coal, and in carrying out this contract the operators may be placed at a serious disadvantage.

The Presidents of the anthracite coal carrying companies will meet to-day at 143 Liberty Street. Mr. Baer will preside.

Meantime the local coal merchants are waiting for developments. Vice President Allison Dodd of Burns Brothers, which has incorporated with it the Communipaw Coal Company and the Hudson Coal Company, said last evening that some customers were beginning to stock up a little so as to be partially prepared for anything which might happen.

"We do not know yet whether a hard-coal strike will take place or not," he said. "There is an uneasy feeling, however, that something is going to happen. No preparations have been made by the coal merchants to stock up, as land is too dear in New York for that purpose. Soft coal has stiffened a little to-day in price. If Winter prices are maintained during the Summer it would be equivalent to an increase in the price of the domestic prices of anthracite."

The price of soft coal has begun to rise here. Ordinarily at this season prices fall off.

NO ACTION BY ROOSEVELT.

President Didn't Send Commissioner Neill to Mitchell.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—President Roosevelt is taking no part in the pending negotiations between the miners and operators to prevent a coal strike. The statement was made at the White House to-day that Prof. Charles P. Neill, Commissioner of Labor, did not confer with President Mitchell by authority of the President.

Since writing the identical letter to President Mitchell and President Robbins of the soft-coal operators the President has taken no step in the matter, and he at present, it is said, has no action in contemplation.

OUTLAWS KILL 3 MARSHALS.

Cherokee Murderers Trap Six Pursuers in Indian Territory.

Special to The New York Times.

VINITA, Indian Territory, March 12.—Six Deputy United States Marshals pursuing the Wickliffe gang of Cherokee Indian murderers and desperadoes, last night rode into an ambush in the Spavinaw Hills, on Saline Creek, nine miles northwest of Kansas, Indian Territory. Deputies I. L. Gilstrap, Otis Tuttle, and Richard Carey were killed and six horses were shot to death.

The desperadoes escaped to the hills and have not been captured. Posses are concentrating at Kansas from every town in the surrounding territory. Several famous Indian fighters are in them. Two brothers of Tuttle, the dead deputy, are also on hand. The Tuttles belong to a family famous for fighting in the early days of Indian Territory, and the two brothers declare they will avenge the death of their brother.

It is reported that other Cherokees are joining the desperadoes in their stronghold and a desperate battle is expected if they are overtaken.

Marshal Darrough has asked the Department of Justice to authorize a posse of 100 men. The desperadoes are operating in a mountain country very difficult to penetrate. The country to be searched is forty by ten miles in area.

Marshal Darrough and his posse will not reach the town of Kansas, in the centre of the full bloods country, until to-morrow afternoon. Deputy Arthur Chamberlain left here at noon with a posse of six famous Indian fighters.

The Wickliffe gang is composed of three brothers, sons of John Wickliffe, ex-Judge of the Supreme Court of the Cherokee Nation. Charles, the eldest, has twice been tried for murder, first of his own brother, then of another Indian. He was acquitted both times. Five years ago he stabbed another Indian at a Cherokee dance, and took the hills when a warrant was issued for his arrest. His younger brothers, John and Tom, implicated in the same crime, went with him.

A year ago this month Deputy J. H. Vier, then at Kansas, entered a house near Oaks to arrest the men and was shot dead. The desperadoes escaped after a hot brush with Vier's posse, who had surrounded the place. Efforts to hunt them down have been kept up since.

CITY RAILWAY LAWYER UP.

McCabe Before Judge Seabury in City Court Jury Fixing Hunt.

Ambrose B. McCabe, a lawyer for the New York City Railway Company, whose name has been mentioned in the exposures of jury fixing in damage cases by the old Metropolitan Street Railway Company, appeared yesterday before Judge Samuel Seabury, in the City Court, who is sitting as a Magistrate to examine this matter.

Ex-Judge Edward E. Hatch accompanied McCabe, whose appearance was the result of a notification by Judge Seabury to the company that he was needed. No summons or warrant was issued. The examination was postponed until March 26, Mr. Hatch undertaking to produce McCabe at that time. Assistant District Attorney Nott was present on behalf of his chief.

The statement connecting McCabe with the matter was obtained from Stanley S. Bagg, a former investigator for the Metropolitan. Three of Mr. Jerome's assistants came to the conclusion that criminal prosecution was out of the question because the only available evidence was the word of Bagg, himself a party to the offense.

Judge Seabury took up the investigation a week ago, with a hope of being able to obtain evidence against some employes of the City Court.

Louis E. Julian, former investigator for the Metropolitan Street Railway, who was arrested on Saturday, charged with furnishing false information to a newspaper, appeared before Magistrate Wahle in the Tombs Court yesterday and furnished $500 bail. The examination was postponed until Thursday.

BOSTON STOCK TICKERS HERE.

Plan to Intall Fifty as the Result of Increased Business.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 12.—Dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange have doubled within five years, and the price of board memberships has risen from $15,000 to $35,000. The demand for seats from New Yorkers has been only partly satisfied, and there is continually a waiting list, even at the high figure. A movement is taking form to place fifty Boston tickers in New York brokerage offices.

It is stated to-day that Boston brokers will subscribe for some of the tickers if necessary to secure installation of fifty tickers as required by the ticker company. Then, in return, New York is to agree to do more business in stocks dealt in at both centres. The experiment is to go into effect on March 19, it is said.

Commenting on the new plan, The Herald's financial editor remarks: "Let it be hoped that the day, Monday, will not influence the character of the trading.

"'They that wash on Monday have all the week to dry,' as the poet says. Really, the movement to broaden interest in the Boston market commends itself without speaking."

Inquiry among brokers dispels the notion that the new idea is an outgrowth of the stock transfer tax law of New York. The Massachusetts Legislature now has before it a bill imposing such a tax on transactions here, and it is likely to become law.

Odell Man Wins in Middletown.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., March 12.—The appointment to-day of Edward D. Tompkins to be Postmaster ends a bitter factional fight in the Republican Party here. The fight threatened to disrupt the party because Tompkins was an Odell man, while there is a strong anti-Odell sentiment here. Congressman Bradley decided not to recommend any candidate, but left it to the City and County Committees. They named Tompkins from a dozen candidates.

MISS SUSAN B. ANTHONY DIED THIS MORNING

End Came to the Famous Woman Suffragist in Rochester.

ENTHUSIASTIC TO THE LAST

Wished All Her Estate to Go to the Cause for Which She Labored—Her Deathbed Regret.

ROCHESTER, March 13, (Tuesday.)—Miss Susan B. Anthony died at 12:40 o'clock this morning. The end came peacefully. Miss Anthony had been unconscious practically all of the time for more than twenty-four hours, and her death had been almost momentarily expected since last night. Only her wonderful constitution kept her alive.

Dr. M. S. Ricker, her attending physician, said Miss Anthony died of heart disease and pneumonia of both lungs. She had had serious valvular heart trouble for the last six or seven years. Her lungs were practically clear and the pneumonia had yielded to treatment, but the weakness of her heart prevented her recovery.

Miss Anthony was taken ill while on her way home from the National Suffrage Convention in Baltimore. She stopped in New York, where a banquet was to be given Feb. 20 in honor of her eighty-sixth birthday, but she had an attack of neuralgia on Feb. 18 and hastened home. Pneumonia developed after her arrival here, and on March 5 both lungs became affected. She rallied, but had a relapse three days ago, and the end after that never was in doubt.

Miss Anthony herself had believed that she would recover. Early in her illness she told her friends that she expected to live to be as old as her father, who was over 90 when he died. But on Wednesday she said to her sister:

"Write to Anna Shaw immediately, and tell her I desire that every cent I leave when I pass out of this life shall be given to the fund which Miss Thomas and Miss Garrett are raising for the cause. I have given my life and all I am to it, and now I want my lact act to be to give it all I have, to the last cent. Tell Anna Shaw to see that this is done."

Miss Shaw said:

"On Sunday, about two hours before she became unconscious, I talked with Miss Anthony, and she said: 'To think I have had more than sixty years of hard struggle for a little liberty, and then to die without it seems so cruel.'

Susan Brownell Anthony was a pioneer leader of the cause of woman suffrage, and her energy was tireless in working for what she considered to be the best interests of womankind. At home and abroad she had innumerable friends, not only among those who sympathized with her views, but among those who held opinions radically opposed to her. In recent years her age made it impossible for her to continue active participation in all the movements for the enfranchisement of women with which she had been connected, but she was at the time of her death the Honorary President of the National Woman Suffrage Association, the society which she and Elizabeth Cady Stanton organized in 1869.

Miss Anthony possessed a figure of medium size, a firm but rather pleasing face, clear hazel eyes, and dark hair which she always wore combed smoothly over the ears and bound in a coil at the back. She paid much attention to dress and advised those associated in the movement for woman suffrage to be punctilious in all matters pertaining to the toilet. For a little over a year in the early fifties she wore a bloomer costume, consisting of a short skirt and a pair of Turkish trousers gathered at the ankles. So great an outcry arose against the innovation both from the pulpit and the press that she was subjected to many indignities, and forced to abandon it.

Miss Anthony was born at South Adams, Mass., on Feb. 15, 1820. Daniel Anthony, her father, a liberal Quaker, was a cotton manufacturer. Susan Anthony was first instructed by teachers at home. She was sent afterward to finish her education at a Friends' boarding school in Philadelphia. She continued to attend this school until, at the age of fifteen, she was occasionally called on to help in the teaching. At seventeen she received a dollar a week with board by teaching in a private family, and the next summer a district school engaged her for $1.50 a week and "boarded her round." She continued to teach until 1852, when she found her taste for this profession entirely gone, a school in Rochester being her last charge.

Miss Anthony had become impressed with the idea that women were suffering great wrongs, and when she abandoned school teaching, having saved only about $300, she determined to enter the lecture field. People of to-day can scarcely understand the strong prejudices Miss Anthony had to live down. In 1851 she called a temperance convention at Albany, admittance to a previous convention having been refused to her because it was not the custom to admit women. The Women's New York State Temperance Society was organized the following year. Through Miss Anthony's exertions and those of Elizabeth Cady Stanton women soon came to be admitted to educational and other conventions, with the right to speak, vote, and act upon committees.

Miss Anthony's active participation in the movement for woman suffrage started in the fifties. As early as 1854 she arranged conventions throughout the State and annually bombarded the Legislature with messages and appeals. She was active in obtaining the passage of the act of the New York Legislature in 1860 giving to married women the possession of their earnings and the guardianship of their children. During the war she was devoted to the Women's Loyal League, which petitioned Congress in favor of the thirteenth amendment. She was also directly interested in the fourteenth amendment, sending a petition in favor of leaving out the word "male."

In company with Mrs. Stanton and Lucy Stone, Miss Anthony went to Kansas in 1867, and there obtained 9,000 votes in favor of woman suffrage. The following year, with the co-operation of Mrs. Stanton, Parker Pillsbury, and George Francis Train, she began the publication in this city of a weekly paper called The Revolutionist, devoted to the emancipation of women.

In order to test the application of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments she cast ballots in the State and Congressional election in Rochester in 1872. She was indicted and ordered to pay a fine, but the order was never enforced.

Miss Anthony succeeded Mrs. Stanton as President of the National Woman Suffrage Association in 1892, Mrs. Stanton having resigned because of old age. This office she held until February, 1899, her farewell address being delivered at a meeting of the association in Washington. For a number of years she averaged 100 lectures a year. She engaged in eight different State campaigns for a Constitutional amendment enfranchising women, and hearings before committees of practically every Congress since 1869 were granted to her.

She was the joint author with Mrs. Stanton, Mrs. Ida Husted Harper, and Mrs. Matilda Joslyn Gage of "The History of Woman Suffrage." She also was a frequent contributor to magazines.

WOUNDED MAN SET SIGNALS.

Towerman, Though Badly Hurt, Stops Lackawanna Trains, Then Seeks Help.

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., March 12.—While descending the steep steps of the Denville switch tower this morning, James Scales, the signal operator, slipped and fell over the banister, sustaining an ugly gash in his forehead, besides internal injuries.

With blood streaming from his head the man dragged himself back to the tower. He knew that in a few minutes train No. 454 of the main line would be due, and that unless the signals were thrown a serious accident might occur. He succeeded in setting the signals against all trains and then went down the stairway and walked three miles to his home near Dover.

When the train reached the tower and found the signals set against it Conductor Thompson entered the tower. He found the floor covered with blood. Word was sent to Hoboken and a special train with railroad detectives was dispatched to Denville.

The detectives learned the true story and found Scales in a serious condition at his home. Denville tower is one of the most important switch towers on the Lackawanna Road. It is here that the main line and the Morris and Essex division come together and it is the starting point of the Boonton branch.

RED PEPPER STOPS A CAR.

Clears Rush-Hour Crowd and Gets One Woman a Seat.

The passengers on a southbound Broadway car shortly after 6 o'clock last evening were thrown into what bordered on panic by the spilling of three pounds of cayenne pepper in the car.

A woman who got on at Forty-second Street, carrying two paper bags, edged her way inside and clung to a strap. Suddenly the car gave a tremendous lurch, causing the woman to be squeezed between the passengers standing next her. The concussion burst a bag containing the pepper, and the red stuff poured to the floor.

The woman was the first to sneeze, and those nearest her promptly became similarly affected. Some one opened the forward door, and the strong draught instantly whirled the pepper into the eyes and nostrils of the passengers. A stampede for the doors began. The car was stopped, and the passengers, with handkerchiefs over their faces, pushed and squeezed their way out. In a few minutes the car was cleared of the pepper, and the passengers returned. First in was the woman responsible for the trouble.

"Well, I've lost my pepper, but I've got a seat, anyway," she remarked.

20 IN RUNAWAY CAR.

Motorman Badly Hurt When Brakes Failed and Car Jumped the Track.

PASSAIC, N. J., March 12.—After rushing down to the bottom of a steep hill at Lodi to-night, a trolley car of the Hackensack and Lodi line jumped the track and dashed into a frame house near the railroad tracks and demolished part of it. The brakes had failed to work. The car vestibule was wrecked and several car windows were broken.

John Wanamaker, the motorman, was probably fatally injured. His skull was fractured, one leg broken, and it is feared he is injured internally. He was taken to the Paterson General Hospital. Twenty passengers in the car were badly shaken up. Three, one of them a woman, were cut by broken glass, but their injuries were slight.

The curve where the mishap took place is a dangerous one, and this is the third accident there in six weeks. The damaged building is an Italian boarding house kept by Michael Colleti. It was there that Jerry Ross, who was hanged recently at Hackensack, was accused of having murdered two men.

PENALTIES FOR FAST AUTOS.

Heavy Punishment Provided in a Bill Introduced in the Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 12.—Mr. Grady of New York introduced in the Senate to-night a bill which so amends the present law as to make fast driving of automobiles a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of $100 or thirty days in jail. If an injury shall result to any person in consequence of this fast driving the offense shall be punishable with a fine of not less than $1,000 nor more than $2,000 or two years in jail, and the causing of a death shall be manslaughter in the second degree.

It is provided further in addition to these penalties that any driver who does not stop when requested to do so by a policeman shall have an added penalty of thirty days in jail, and if he does not stop after causing an injury to any person the offense shall constitute an assault in the third degree. Civil suits can be brought for injury or death.

LITTLE HONESTY, SAYS COLER

He Sees Cheats Everywhere—Predicts a Great Republican Defeat.

In opening the Brooklyn Pure Food Exhibition in the rink, Clermont and Willoughby Avenues, last night, Borough President Coler assailed men who seek to purchase Legislatures, and predicted that the Republican Party in the State would be defeated by 500,000 votes next Fall. Declaring that enormous fortunes are now being piled up by fraud and deceit, he continued:

"It has become difficult, if not dangerous, to do the simplest bit of trading. If you buy a piece of real estate without engaging the service of an expert to keep you from being cheated, your friends are apt to look upon you as an idiot. If you make any contract of importance without hiring a lawyer to protect your interest the chances are ten to one that you will be cheated."

The audience took place in the Pope's library and merely consisted of an exchange of compliments, the Pontiff expressing his appreciation of the kindness of Mr. Morgan in visiting him and recalling his visit of last May.

SUITOR GIVES TO GIRL TABLETS THAT KILL HER

His Suicide Followed in a Few Days by Her Death.

CASE PUZZLES PATERSON

Paterson Coroner Thinks Miss Morton Committed Suicide—Priest Is Sure She Did Not.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, March 12.—James Boucher, a well-known young man of this city, and a nephew of Dr. A. Norval of 381 Main Street, left Paterson about two weeks ago for Scranton, Penn. The last person to see him as he boarded the train at the station was Miss Mae Agnes Morton, the nineteen-year-old daughter of Alexander Morton of 72 Madison Street. Boucher and Miss Morton were sweethearts for several years. He had proposed marriage to her, but her father had objected. As he stepped upon the train for Scranton he handed her a small box.

'I'm going to Scranton to kill myself," he said. "When you hear about it open this box of tablets. If you should think of me take some of them."

Miss Morton promised that she would and they parted.

The next day a dispatch from Scranton said that Boucher had been found dead at the Lackawanna Hotel in that city. Heart disease was given as the cause.

Miss Morton, however, believed that Boucher had committed suicide. She opened the box he had given her and examined its contents. It contained half a dozen harmless-looking tablets. She dissolved the six tablets in a glass of water and swallowed the liquid.

Immediately the girl was taken ill and Dr. James Smith was called. The girl didn't tell what she had done, and the physician diagnosed the case as one of gastritis. He prescribed for her, but Miss Morton grew rapidly worse.

Saturday morning, after four days of suffering, the physician told her she was going to die. Then she told about the tablets.

"James left them for me before he went to his death; you will find powder from some of them in an envelope."

The physician and the girl's father found the envelope and upon examining the contents found that she had taken corrosive sublimate. The physician questioned her, and she said she had swallowed the dose in entire innocence of its character.

Father Gillen of St. Joseph's Church was sent for, and when the circumstances were told him he accepted the girl's story and administered the last rites of the Church. In great pain the girl died a few moments later.

County Physician A. F. McBride was notified and signed a death certificate of suicide, but this theory was rejected by the church authorities, who gave the body a burial from St. Joseph's Church this morning.

Dr. Smith believes that the girl took the tablets without knowing what they were. In the light of that belief the case is one of murder. Dr. Smith asked Miss Morton if a suicide agreement had been made, and she denied it. She said that Boucher had told her he would soon be dead, but she could not believe that he was speaking seriously.

Miss Morton and Boucher had known each other since they had been children. They attended school together and had been constant associates during the past three or four years. Mr. Morton objected to the young man's attentions and on several occasions forbade his daughter to see him. When Boucher proposed marriage Miss Morton's father said he would never give his consent, and Miss Morton declined to marry without his permission.

The theory in Paterson is that when Miss Morton declined to elope with Boucher he decided to kill himself and then afford means for the girl to end her life also.

Mr. Morton said to-night that he couldn't believe that his daughter had committed suicide. He said she was of a happy disposition and had no reason for ending her life. She was recently employed in a store in Paterson and gave up her work there to take a course of study at a business school here.

MAY GET AFTER BENDER.

Political Contributions, Court of Appeals Holds, Can Be Investigated.

ALBANY, March 12.—The Court of Appeals to-day dismissed the appeal in the case of Harry Bender, Fiscal Supervisor of State Charities. The decision does not affect the merits of the case, which involves the right of the State Civil Service Commission to investigate the alleged collection of political contributions from the employes of Bender's department.

Application was made to the Supreme Court to restrain the investigation on the ground that the Civil Service Commission was without power to conduct an investigation of this character. Bender lost and appealed to the Appellate Division. He lost there also.

Chief Judge Cullen stated that the remittitur would be held for a few days in order that former Judge Edwin Countryman, who represented Bender, might go to the Appellate Division for an amended order to show upon what precise grounds the lower court acted.

RAILROAD WAR IN WEST.

Northwestern Makes Two Moves Apparently Hostile to Harriman.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, March 12.—The Chicago & Northwestern Railroad to-day bought four blocks of land within three blocks of the Post Office and extending into the heart of the business district. The Northwestern will build big passenger and freight terminals, thus making the road wholly independent of Union Pacific terminals here.

It is said the Northwestern is behind the bill introduced in Congress for a new bridge over the Missouri at Omaha, making it unnecessary for that road to use the Union Pacific bridge here.

Headquarters officials here believe these moves presage a break between the Union Pacific and the Northwestern. The Northwestern is constructing a line across Wyoming, and is within 150 miles of Salt Lake City. It can connect with Gould's Western Pacific to the coast, and be independent of the Harriman system.

New York's Outlay in 1812 War Paid.

ALBANY, March 12.—The State to-day received from the National Government $118,585.84, which, with interest, was due to the State for furnishing equipments for troops from this State in the war of 1812.

ROOT TO RUN THE CANAL.

Will Take Panama Job When Taft Goes to Supreme Bench.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—President Roosevelt has found a way of lessening the Cabinet problem presented by the selection of Secretary Taft for appointment to the Supreme Court bench by deciding to transfer the Panama Canal work to the State Department when Taft ceases to be Secretary of War. This is in line with a suggestion made by Secretary Taft himself last Fall, and merely carries out the plan he then offered.

There is still maintained an attitude of uncertainty with regard to the appointment of Secretary Taft to the Supreme Bench, but among those who are in a position to know the President's mind it is openly regarded as settled.

In putting the canal into the hands of Secretary Root Mr. Roosevelt will be taking a step that will be highly satisfactory to Chairman Shonts of the Canal Commission. Despite the denials which have always followed promptly on any statement of friction between Taft and Shonts, there is no doubt whatever that the two men have not worked always in harmony.

PANIC AT FACTORY FIRE.

Men Hurt Leaping from Windows at Bleecker Street Blaze.

A fire which started in the eight-story business and factory building at 123 and 125 Bleecker Street, early last evening, caused a panic among the eighty men who were at work there. That many were not injured is due to the good work of the police and the timely arrival of the firemen.

As it was, two men, Nathan Lukowitz and Abraham Meyerson, jumped from fire-escapes and suffered sprained ankles. Both men are tailors. They were treated by Ambulance Surgeon Allers of St. Vincent Hospital, and were then sent home.

The fire started in the factory of Samuel Kon, on the fifth floor of the building. It required an hour's hard work to extinguish the flames, and $5,000 damage was done.

LAST RITES UNDER CAR.

Cathedral Priest Attends Laborer Run Down in Central Yard.

Francesco Currello of 119 Houston Street, Brooklyn, was run over by a freight train in the excavation of the O'Rourke Construction Company in the yards near the Grand Central Station last night. The train was stopped and the man was found pinned under one of the cars.

He was conscious and able to direct the other laborers in "jacking" up the car. Father Martin was called from St. Patrick's Cathedral, and administered extreme unction. Dr. Oberbeck of the Flower Hospital amputated the man's left leg the moment he was released and took him to the hospital, where it was said that he probably would die.

SENATE ELECTION REFORM.

Iowa Legislature Has Agreed to Cummin's Plan for Popular Election.

Special to The New York Times.

DES MOINES, Iowa, March 12.—With practically no opposition, the Senate resolution, embodying Gov. Cummins's plan whereby it is hoped to bring about the election of United States Senators by direct vote, passed the Iowa Assembly this afternoon.

The resolution empowers the Governor to invite the Governors of all other States to appoint five delegates each to attend a convention which will be held here next Fall for the purpose of agreeing upon joint action for the purpose of forcing Congress to bring about constitutional revision.

KAISER TRIES ON ARMOR.

Says Knights of Olden Times Were Smaller Than Modern Men.

BERLIN, March 12.—Emperor William yesterday received the sculptors Schott, Wolff, Bruell, Haverkamp, and Bonke at the palace. They brought plaster models of the Orange Princes whose statues will be placed on the Castle Terrace. The Emperor made suggestions regarding the armor representation, which he said he desired to be historically accurate.

He said he had been reading up on the subject and had tried on suits of armor, with the result that he had found that it was an error to think that the knights of olden days were larger men than those of the present day. On the contrary, modern men were larger than those of armor-wearing times.

SCIENTIST IS PUZZLED.

So He Asks Congress to Help Settle His Problem.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Senator Penrose to-day reintroduced a bill, originally presented in the Senate by Senator Quay, the purpose of which is to "determine the quantity of the so-called hammer-blow centrifugal lift and tangental throw of the counterbalance in locomotive driving wheels."

It is proposed that the Government set aside the sum of $50,000 to be divided among several technical institutions to pay the necessary expenses.

The title of the bill was read with awe in the office of the Secretary of the Senate. The measure was prompted by William E. Lockwood of Chester County, whose technical and scientific inquiries have been deadlocked for lack of whatever it is that the bill intends to get.

COPY OF BABYLONIAN RELIC.

Cast of Stone with Code of Laws in Harvard Semitic Museum.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 12.—A plaster copy of what is regarded as the most important monument bequeathed to the present age by ancient Babylon has been placed on exhibition in the Assyrian Room of the Harvard Semitic Museum. This is the stone on which is written the Code of Laws promulgated by Hammurabi, who ruled about 2250 B. C.

The stone is a column about seven feet high, with a carving near the top representing the Sun God communicating the laws to the King. There are forty-four columns of writing containing 247 laws. The laws give evidence of an advanced and highly complicated state of society among the Babylonians.

TRUST SECRECY ENDED BY COURT

Federal Supreme Bench Sweeps Down Barriers.

IMMUNITY PLEA IS VAIN

Corporations Must Give Incriminating Evidence.

TOBACCO TRUST BEATEN

Paper Trust Also Loses Its Case—Beef Trust Is Expected to Feel the Decision Next.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—In four decisions handed down to-day the Supreme Court utters a doctrine of tremendous importance in the anti-trust proceedings of the near future. The refuge of reluctant witnesses hitherto found in the Constitution, in equity jurisprudence, and in the common law—the principle that "no man can be forced to incriminate himself"—is denied to trusts.

Books, papers, contracts, secret agreements must be produced when called for, whatever the effect upon the trust before the bar or upon its officers.

The immunity law passed by Congress, protecting witnesses under the Anti-Trust act, is construed to mean that only the individual witness shall receive its benefits and that he is not excused from testifying against his corporation or the officers thereof.

Neither can the trusts withhold their books and papers on the ground that to publish their business secrets would be to injure them materially.

These sweeping decisions are the outgrowth of a Grand Jury inquiry into the Tobacco Trust in New York and a civil suit against the Paper Trust in Wisconsin and Minnesota. Officers of companies composing the two trusts had refused to produce their books or to answer questions concerning their alleged conspiracy to control commerce. They declared that the Constitution relieved them from having to give such testimony. They discovered to-day that it does not.

Justice Brown Writes Opinion.

The tobacco cases were decided first, and furnished the authority for the Paper Trust decisions. In the Tobacco Trust cases the opinion was written by Justice Brown, who is soon to retire from the bench. In the paper cases Justice McKenna wrote the opinion, and cited Justice Brown's decision by way of precedent.

In the tobacco cases the defendants refused to produce their books before a Grand Jury which was after the facts concerning their alleged conspiracy. In the paper cases they refused to produce their books before an examiner who was trying to take testimony. On every issue they have lost, and apparently there is no refuge for a trust at any stage of a proceeding between the Grand Jury and the Circuit Court.

The tobacco case, the case of Hale vs. Henkel, was decided adversely to the trust by seven to two, the dissenting members being Chief Justice Fuller and Justice Brewer. Justices Harlan and McKenna concurred only in the result. The Paper Trust cases were decided unanimously.

Hale, an officer of one of the companies comprising the Tobacco Trust, was summoned before a Grand Jury in the Southern District of New York and ordered to produce all books, papers, contracts, and correspondence between the MacAndrews & Forbes Company and the other companies in the combination. The subpoena duces tecum was of the most sweeping character.

Grounds of Trust Refusal.

He refused to produce the books and papers of the tobacco concern and to answer questions about what was in them on two grounds: First, because there was no specific charge against anybody before the Grand Jury, and, second, because his answers might tend to incriminate him. He gave his name and the office he held in his company, and refused to go further. He was committed for contempt, and got a writ of habeas corpus, which was subsequently discharged. He was remanded and appealed.

Justice Brown first takes up his assertion that there was no specific charge. He fails to find any precedent for the contention that a Grand Jury cannot proceed without a written and formal accusation. The ancient oath administered to foremen of Grand Juries, which is substantially unchanged to the present day, charged him to inquire into things given into his charge, "as of all other matters and things as shall come to your own knowledge."

The authorities, the court finds, are to the effect that Grand Juries can act upon information received by them from the examination of witnesses without any formal indictment or other charge. They may, says Justice Brown, "proceed either upon their own knowledge or upon the examination of witnesses to inquire for themselves whether a crime cognizable by the court has been committed."

The appellant, Hale, invoked the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution, which provides that no man in a criminal prosecution shall be forced to be a witness against himself. As to this Justice Brown points out that the immunity act passed in 1903 provides that no person shall be prosecuted, or be subject to any penalty or forfeiture, on account of anything which he may testify about in an anti-trust proceeding.

The contention of the appellant was that while this law may protect individual witnesses it would not protect the corporation of which the appellant is agent and representative.

"This is true," says Justice Brown, "but the answer is that it was not designed to do so. The right of a person under the Fifth Amendment to refuse to incriminate himself is purely a personal privilege of the witness. It was never intended to permit him to plead the fact that some other person might be incriminated by his testimony, even though he were the agent of such person."

And the Justice adds: "If he cannot set up the privilege of a third person he certainly cannot set up the privilege of a corporation. As the combinations or conspiracies provided against by the Sherman Anti-Trust act can ordinarily be proved only by the testimony of parties thereto, in the person of their agents or employes, the privilege claimed would practically invalidate the whole act of Congress.

"Of what use would it be for the Legislature to declare these combinations unlawful if the judicial power may close the door of access to every available source of information upon the subject?"

"The defense," he says further on, "amounts to this: That an officer of a corporation which is charged with criminal violation of the statute may plead the criminality of such corporations as a refusal to produce its books. To state this proposition is to answer it.

"If whenever an officer or employe of a corporation were summoned before a Grand Jury as a witness he could refuse to produce the books and documents of such corporation upon the ground that they would incriminate the corporation itself, it would result in the failure of a large number of cases where the illegal combination was determinable only upon the examination of such papers.

"But conceding that the witness was an officer of the corporation under investigation, and that he was entitled to assert the rights of the corporation with respect to the production of its books and papers, we are of the opinion that there is a clear distinction in this particular between an individual and a corporation, and that the latter has no right to refuse to submit its books and papers for an examination at the suit of the State.

"The individual may stand upon his rights as a citizen, but the corporation is a creature of the State. It is presumed to be incorporated for the benefit of the public. Its powers are limited by law. It can make no contract not authorized by its charter. Its rights to act as a corporation are only preserved to it so long as it obeys the laws of its creation.

"There is a reserved right in the Legislature to investigate its contracts and find out whether it has exceeded its powers. It would be a strange anomaly to hold that a State, having chartered a corporation to make use of certain franchises, could not, in the exercise of its sovereignty, inquire how these franchises had been employed and whether they had been abused and demand the protection of the corporation books and papers for that purpose."

There is only one saving clause in the opinion. Justice Brown says that it is not the desire of the court to be understood as refusing to protect a corporation against unreasonable searches and seizures, and adds:

"It can only be proceeded against by due process of law and is protected under the Fourth and Fifth Amendments against unlawful discrimination." He also expresses the opinion that an order for the production of books and papers may constitute an unreasonable search and seizure under the Fourth and Fifth Amendments, and holds that the Grand Jury order for the production of papers in Hale's case was too sweeping.

There were two cases brought involving the Paper Trust. In Milwaukee, Robert S. Taylor, a Special Commissioner, undertook under orders of the Circuit Court to examine officers of several companies comprising the trust and to order them to produce their books. They refused to do so, and appealed from the Circuit Court's order. The Supreme Court, Justice McKenna writing the opinion, decides that it has no jurisdiction, and dismisses the appeal.

"Why," asks Justice McKenna, "should greater rights be given a witness to justify his contumacy when summoned before an examiner than when summoned before a court?"

The other Paper Trust cases were appeals from decisions of the Circuit Court of Minnesota. The Government was prosecuting the General Paper Company, and the court ordered the officers of various constituent companies to produce their books. They refused to do so. Their grounds, which were substantially the same in all cases, were stated in the brief made for Mr. Nelson, President of the Hennepin Company, one of the defendants. They were, first, that the materiality of the books and papers had not been established; second, that the books contained matters of importance relating to the business of the Hennepin Company and the trust not bearing upon the case, and the publication of which would be "highly injurious to the business interests of the company"; third, that to compel such production would be to violate the Fifth Amendment, and also to violate the Fourth, which insures to citizens safety from unreasonable searches and seizures.

Nelson's defense further stated that the proceedings were for the purpose of enjoining the defendants from carrying out the contracts between the constituent companies and the trust. These contracts were of great value, and the business of the General Paper Company, the trust, practically rested upon them. To produce the evidence necessary for this prosecution would be to violate the constitutional provision and the rules of equity and common law that no person can be forced to produce documents which would subject him to prosecution or to a penalty or forfeiture.

So the defendants refused to obey the court's orders and were each fined $100 and sentenced to be imprisoned until the order was complied with. They appealed, and the court to-day dismisses their appeals.

Justice McKenna, writing the opinion, holds that the evidence was clearly material. The questions were framed to prove the existence of the combination. Not only were the books withheld but the witnesses even refused to answer questions. "The claim of immateriality of the testimony," says Justice McKenna, "cannot avail appellants against the orders of the Circuit Court." The other defenses were dismissed upon the authority of the Tobacco Trust case.

An Assistant Attorney General who has followed the trust cases closely said to-night that the decision was of tremendous value to the Government in these prosecutions.

"If the court had decided otherwise," he said, "it would have been practically impossible to proceed further with the trust prosecutions, and the cases now under way would have been brought to a stop. The mouth of every one connected with a corporation doing Inter-State business would have been closed. The Government would have been absolutely paralyzed. But with this decision in our favor we can go ahead. I believe, for one thing, that to-day's utterance by the Supreme Court has cut the ground from under the Beef Trust."

ATTORNEY GENERAL PLEASED.

Shows the Decision to Judge at Packers' Immunity Trial.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 12.—Attorney General Moody, who is here for the packers' immunity cases, expressed the opinion that the United States Supreme Court decisions in the Paper Trust and Tobacco Trust cases had a direct bearing on the Beef Trust case.

An abstract of the decisions was wired to Mr. Moody, and he received it while in court to-day. He appeared to be very much pleased, and passed it to Attorney Hynes of the Swift Company. After adjournment of court the Attorney General took the dispatch to Judge Humphrey.

"How do you take this?" asked the court.

"It means, briefly," said Mr. Moody, "that the Supreme Court holds that no corporation may claim immunity."

"Wouldn't a corporation be entitled to immunity if it had authorized the giving out of information?" asked Mr. Hynes.

"Individuals would, but the corporation is not a person and cannot claim immunity," replied Mr. Moody. "An agent must answer the questions put to him, whether he is authorized to do so or not."

J. M. BECK ON DECISIONS.

Says They Establish Full Power of Government to Make Inquiries.

James M. Beck, who, with Frank B. Kellogg, represents the United States in the Paper Trust case, thinks the decision of the Supreme Court yesterday will make that case successful.

He believes, however, that the decision in the Tobacco Trust case is of more importance. The Paper Trust case was brought in civil action, while the Tobacco Trust case came up on the question of the right of a Federal Grand Jury to make a roving inquiry, to demand books and papers in evidence for criminal procedure without a primary complaint.

Mr. Beck said last night that the two decisions were undoubtedly important, in establishing the full power of the Government in making inquiries into violations of the Federal laws regulating Inter-State commerce. When asked as to the next step in the Paper Trust case he said:

"My colleague, Mr. Kellogg, and I will at an early date resume taking the testimony, which was suspended by the appeals. The questions will now be answered, and when answered we believe that the Government's contention in these cases will be fully established."

In both criminal and civil procedure in violations of the inter-State commerce law the decisions of yesterday are taken to mean a severe blow to the combinations of industries now classed as "trusts," and will bring to the witness stand in all Federal cases officers of corporations, with books and papers that will be open to the courts.

KILLS CHILD AND HIMSELF.

Husband's Last Note Upbraids Wife for Her "Heart of Stone."

After careful preparations and writing a letter which bitterly upbraided his wife for her "heart of stone," Emil Fuhl ended his own life and that of his 5-year-old daughter yesterday by turning on the gas in his apartments at 663 East 178th Street.

When found by the landlord, Paul Schier, the child was still alive, but died without recovering consciousness.

Up to six weeks ago, Fuhl and his wife were happy. They quarreled over a family matter. A postscript said the note was written three weeks ago.

The Orchestra is the most fascinating means of musical expression.

Every theatre has its orchestra, every large hotel, every ball-room—evidencing the public demand for this form of music. Orchestra concerts are numerous and popular

The Orchestrelle

Brings orchestral music, with its many-voiced effects, into the home. The piano sounds colorless beside such an instrument.

Anyone can play the Orchestrelle, artistically—can play any kind of music with orchestral effect: Waltzes, comic-opera selections, popular songs, overtures, symphonies.

Tone, time, instrumentation are entirely subject to the player's inclination.

He is like the leader of an orchestra. The notes of the different instruments are played for him, but he can have them loud or soft, fast or slow, at will.

He is more than the leader, becoming actually an arranger of orchestra music. For he can call upon the "violins" to play this passage, the "French horns" to play that, or all the tonal qualities to play both passages; or he can have the "reeds" play one and the "brass" the other. This is more than the leader can do. The different combinations of orchestral effects are practically unlimited on the Orchestrelle.

Think what it means to the home to have orchestral music always available—for entertainment, for the dance, for singing. Think what it means to the musician or the student of music to have this wonderland thrown open to him—to be able to search the masterpieces of music to the uttermost, or to be able to render orchestrally music that he might never have an opportunity to hear played by an orchestra.

The Orchestrelle is similar in outward form to an upright piano. Its range of price brings it within the reach of everyone. It may be purchased on moderate monthly payments if desired.

You are cordially invited to hear the Orchestrelle played at any time. You will then appreciate its possibilities more completely than words, printed or spoken, could ever convey. Or, we will send some very interesting Orchestrelle literature on request.

CHICAGO ROADS LOSE IN U. S. SUPREME COURT

Franchises Limited by Terms of the Municipal Contracts.

REHEARING TO BE ASKED

Mayor Dunne Says If Roads Will Not Sell Now City Will Assert Its New Rights.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The Supreme Court, through Justice Day, who delivered the opinion, to-day decided the Chicago Street railway cases, involving the franchises of the three principal street railway companies, by upholding the contentions of the city authorities in every particular.

The cases were thrown into court several years ago when the City of Chicago sought to reach an agreement with the street railway companies regarding the purchase of the roads by the city. No agreement could be reached, and the city contended that the court proceedings for receivers were collusive and questioned the validity of the various ordinances under which the railways claimed to have franchises for ninety-nine years, running from 1859. The Supreme Court holds that there was no collusion in the appointment of the receivers, and that the various acts under which the roads secured extensions were valid and extended the corporate lives of the City Railway Company, the North Chicago City Railway Company, and the Chicago West Division Railway Company for the term of ninety-nine years, but the contracts with the city prescribing rights and privileges in the streets of Chicago were also valid, and the extension of the corporate lines of the companies did not give the companies rights for ninety-nine years in the streets. These contracts, made in 1859, granted the right to use the streets therein named for the term of twenty-five years, and until the city shall purchase and pay for the same.

Justices Brewer, Brown, and McKenna united in a dissenting opinion. The full written opinion of the court will be filed later. One of the attorneys in the case gives the following as his interpretation of the decision:

"It holds that the act of the State of Illinois extending the lives of the corporations to ninety-nine years was constitutional, but did not operate to extend the respective contracts for occupation of the streets, which contracts had been expressly limited in time by the municipal ordinances permitting the railways to occupy them."

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 12.—By the decision of the United States Supreme Court today in the Ninety-nine Year act litigation the city has gained complete control of the traction situation, according to Edgar B. Tolman, former Corporation Counsel, and others who have participated in the legal struggle against the traction companies. It is also practically admitted by counsel for the street railway companies that the Ninety-nine Year act had been "dissolved into thin air."

The opinion handed down by Justice Day reverses Judge Grosscup's ruling and remands the case. The latter order, however, Mr. Tolman believes merely sends the case to Judge Grosscup for the entering of a decree, and does not necessarily mean a new trial.

The decision sustains the acts of the State Legislature extending the life of the charters of the street railway companies to ninety-nine years, but does not sustain the contention of the companies that contract rights (limited to a less term of years than the charter life of the companies) are extended. Contracts or ordinances of the city limiting the use of streets by the companies for twenty-five years from 1859 are upheld and the companies' rights in the streets are held to expire in accordance with the express terms of the ordinances or contracts.

"It is a sweeping victory for the city," said Mayor Dunne. "We have the traction companies now in a position where we can negotiate for the purchase of the lines. If they do not want to sell at a fair price we can declare our rights under the decision."

It was first reported that the decision was in favor of the companies and the stocks rose sharply, but later reacted when the real facts became known.

Representatives of the Chicago Traction interests in this city admitted yesterday, after a casual study of such portions of the Supreme Court's decision as reached the financial district, that the companies seemingly had lost their main contentions. After informal conferences between bankers and the attorneys interested in the case it was said that plans were being formulated to ask a rehearing by the Supreme Court.

DALRYMPLE REPORT PUBLIC.

Expert Says Chicago Is Not Ready for Railway Ownership.

CHICAGO, March 12.—The report of James Dalrymple, manager of the municipal street car companies of Glasgow, Scotland, upon the local transportation problem in Chicago has been at last made public. It is against immediate municipal ownership in Chicago unless the street car companies refuse to deal with the city.

Mayor Dunne asserted that Dalrymple came to Chicago as a personal guest and that the report was therefore personal property. The City Council finally obtained a copy of the report from Alexander Walker, Deputy Town Clerk of Glasgow.

The report in effect is against the municipal operation of street car companies in Chicago unless it has become impossible to reach an agreement with the companies now operating lines in the city streets. Touching upon present street car conditions in the city the report says:

> I had not been many hours in your city before I fully realized why the citizens of Chicago should be so anxious that a change be made at once in the management of your street railways, and it did not surprise me that you should have been elected Mayor by such a large majority when you had intimated to your people that, if elected, you would take immediate steps to have the street railways owned and operated by the municipality.
> I consider that your citizens are fully warranted in demanding an immediate change, so that they may have the traveling facilities that are now enjoyed by the citizens of every other city in the United States.

The report then alludes to the litigation between the city and the street car companies, which was settled to-day by a decision of the United States Supreme Court, and says:

> Presuming that you are able at a satisfactory figure to purchase the present franchises, there would undoubtedly be a very grave danger in your city attempting to operate what would be the largest street railway undertaking in the world without making a very radical change in the methods usually employed in carrying on municipal work by the cities of the United States.
> Although the time may not have yet arrived when your city could take over the responsibility, should it be the desire of your citizens to do so, yet I think an arrangement might be made with that end in view.

Mr. Dalrymple suggests that an effort be made to come to terms with the companies now operating street car lines in the city, and suggested that if that is not possible that there is only one thing to do, which is to start a new line as fast as the franchises under which the companies are now operating, expire.

The report then declares that most of the present equipment of the companies should be relegated to the scrap heap, and a time fixed within which the lines should be placed in perfect condition. Then a franchise should be granted for, say, twenty years, with the city having the right to take possession at the end of five-year periods. The report concludes as follows:

> I should be very sorry indeed if you were forced to take such a step as starting new lines when the franchises of the present companies expire, because, speaking generally, I should say from my knowledge and experience of what it means to operate a municipal street railway system, that the municipalities of the United States are not yet quite ready successfully to undertake this work.

Mr. Dalrymple strongly recommends the overhead trolley for motive power, saying that to "install the underground trolley in any extent would, for various reasons, be a scandalous waste of money."

When Mayor Dunne was informed that the report had finally become public, he declined to say anything.

ITALIAN PUBLISHER SHOT.

Blackmailers Had Threatened Him, but He Gave Them No Money.

Domenico Mollica, a native of Lipari Island, near Sicily, and the publisher of a semi-monthly Italian newspaper called Il Messagiero Eolio, has saved money since he came to this country, about fifteen years ago. That fact became known to the Italian quarter in the neighborhood of his printing office and home, at 415 East Fourteenth Street, and Mollica believes that the knowledge of his success led to the following letter, written in Italian, which he received a month ago:

> Mollica:
>
> If you don't give $500 to a man with a red handkerchief in his hand who will meet you at 177th Street and Third Avenue next Monday night we will blow up your store.
>
> DESPERADOES.

Mollica paid little attention to the note and forgot about the incident. A few days later he received a second letter, written on mourning paper and inclosed in a black-edged envelope. It said:

> Mollica:
>
> You think we are fooling. We are in earnest. We give you but a few days more and then the end will come.

Mollica bought a revolver, and each night upon retiring in the room where his wife and seventeen-year-old son, Zachary, also slept, put it upon the mantelpiece.

About 4 o'clock yesterday morning Zachary and the wife were awakened by hearing Mollica groan. He told them he had been shot in the abdomen as he lay in bed. Mollica decided that he hadn't been mortally hurt and dressed the wound himself.

At 9 o'clock the police of the East Twenty-second Street Station were notified. They found Mollica's revolver on the floor with one chamber empty. Mollica says that when he retired he bolted his door, and Zachary says that he found the door open.

WOMEN OPPOSE EUTHANASIA.

Minerva Club Members Appear to be a Unit Against It.

The Minerva Club does not believe in euthanasia. Its members, to a woman, frown on the thought of putting the old, the infirm, or the incurable to death. This was generally the view expressed by the members at the regular meeting of the club at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday afternoon. The question was presented by Mrs. Belle De Rivera, President of the City Federation of Women's Clubs.

"Euthanasia is a subject of so great importance," said Mrs. De Rivera, "that every woman individually and the clubs collectively should give the matter serious consideration."

"I think it is something that every woman must oppose," said Mrs. Marie Cross Newhaus, First Vice President of the club, later on, "and I did not see one woman of Minerva who was in favor of it."

The paper of the afternoon was by Dr. Brinkman, a woman physician, who spoke on "The Consequence of Inheritance."

C. C. SHAYNE'S WILL.

Codicil Leaves Entire Estate to Widow with Discretionary Bequests.

Christopher C. Shayne's will and a codicil executed on Jan. 23 last were filed yesterday. Mr. Shayne died in the South on Feb. 21. The codicil leaves the estate, which is set forth as consisting of over $10,000 in real estate and $10,000 in personal property, to his widow, Margaret A. Shayne, who is named as executrix.

The testator leaves it to the judgment of the widow to provide for certain persons mentioned in his will, executed on May 23 last. He made provision in the will for his mother, who lives in Galway, Saratoga County, N. Y., and for other relatives.

Mrs. Shayne is to decide whether to continue or discontinue the fur business.

CAPT. McIVOR WILL JOIN US.

Standard Oil's Commodore Gets Citizenship Papers—Reads Bible in Gaelic.

Capt. Donald McIvor, Commodore of the Standard Oil Company's fleet, and himself the skipper of the big sailing cargo ship Johanna, yesterday applied to United States Commissioner Shields for his first citizenship papers. Capt. McIvor is a native of Scotland.

With the broadest of burrs, the skipper, who has just completed a voyage of 119 days from China, where he went with a cargo of case oil, told Clerk Donovan that he resided with his nephew, Frederick Lake, at 24 Hicks Street, Brooklyn. He said he was 51 years old and had spent thirty-six years at sea in command of a vessel.

He said he read the Bible to his crew every Sunday morning, reading only from a copy printed in Gaelic.

"Had Scotland and Ireland the Government of the United States for twenty years," he said, "they could easily whip the entire world."

HAS BIRTHDAY PARTY AT 93.

Isaac Townsend Smith Guest of Mrs. Backus at a Dinner.

Mrs. Henry Clinton Backus gave a dinner at her home, 489 West Twenty-second Street, last night in celebration of the ninety-third birthday of Isaac Townsend Smith, the oldest member of the Union League Club. Mr. Smith has been connected with the Consular Service of Siam since 1845.

Mr. Smith is feeble now, but he made a speech last night, saying that he felt all right. He referred wittily to Mrs. Backus's periodical celebrations of his passing years. Mr. Smith was born in 1813 in Boston. Some of the guests last night were Mrs. George Loring, Loring Hildreth, Miss Tatem, Dr. Frederick Kammerer, the Rev. Dr. Kerr Bryce Tupper, Mr. and Mrs. John Townshend, Dr. Ogden Doremus, Mrs. Imlach, and Chester S. Lord.

NEWSPAPER EDITOR REPLIES TO HAPGOOD

Dr. Hale Thinks That Collier's Is a Yellow Weekly.

A PICTURE OF ITS POLICY

Daily Editors Do Not See a Hair of the Tail of the Yellow Dog.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 12.—Norman Hapgood spoke before the Contemporary Club here to-night, repeating what he has already said in New York on the press and public morals. A satirical reply made by Dr. William Bayard Hale, managing editor of The Public Ledger, led to a spirited rejoinder later in the evening by the New York editor.

Dr. Hale said: "In extenuation of the crimes with which we are accused, I can only plead, on behalf of myself and a number of colleagues, that apparently we had totally misconceived the idea and purpose of a newspaper. Until the distinguished editor who comes to us to-night crowned with the laurel of well-advertised victory had instructed us we had not understood that the chief end of the throbbing press was to wage merciless war on those fearful agents of woe: Bromo-seltzer, Orangeine Powders, and Pink Pills for Pale People.

"We had not discovered the great truth that civic interests, international politics, the clash at home and abroad of ideas and principles, the issue here between Church and State, there between revolution and conservatism, the progress of science, art, literature—we had not discerned that to describe all this was nothing when we might be telling the history-making story of Hostetter's Bitters and Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup; that it was of far less consequence that the Japanese took Port Arthur than it was that Mrs. Smith of Kalamazoo took Peruna.

"Empires are convulsed, dynasties totter, governments fall, legislation more important than any since the civil war is enacting at Washington. Fatuously we have been watching these commonplace events when we should have been exposing, and incidentally advertising, a contemptible society journal which a vast majority of decent Americans had never seen nor heard of before—nor smelt.

"Not one newspaper editor in a thousand ever heard of the Proprietary Association of America which Mr. Hapgood tells you has its skeleton fingers on our throats, not one in ten thousand ever saw so much as a hair of the tail of a yellow dog of any description. We are not even corrupted now by passes to Atlantic City, and we, like ordinary clay, nowadays have to contribute our nickel to the soulless Rapid Transit Corporation or walk home.

"There is not any romance, there isn't any opportunity for heroic disdain of the tempter about the work of a newspaper editor as most of us know it. He just goes ahead gathering and printing the news.

"The issue which Mr. Hapgood really raised is not whether the press is to be free and independent. The issue is whether the press is to continue to be an agency for the spread of information or is to degenerate into a common scold.

"We glance at the publication which Mr. Hapgood conducts with such signal ability, and what do we find? We find its whole strength and genius bent to persuade us that the financial world is a structure of corruption; that the United States Treasury is criminally inefficient; that the United States Senate is a club of dissolute and incapable millionaires, and the House a lair of bandits whose chief business is the promotion of private graft bills; that war pensioners are dead beats; that college athletic victories are bought and sold; that conspirators are running off with Niagara Falls; that grocers are thieves and druggists murderers; that the press is venal and the pulpit invertebrate; that the whole activity of man is larceny, bribery, bank wrecking, franchise grabbing, blackmail, the concoction of fraudulent foods and deadly drinks.

"We find running a department called 'Things They Do Better Abroad.' We find a corps of talented artists drawing vultures, vampires, vipers, yellow dogs, death's heads, prisons, bursting bombs, graveyards, and grinning degenerates.

"And this is offered by 'a National weekly' as a picture of life to-day. Rubbish! There isn't living a cynic so grouchy and dyspeptic that he doesn't know it to be a hideous and ghastly caricature. For the life of me I cannot see any more to despise in the yellow society sheet that assassinates private reputations than there is to regret in a yellow weekly that systematically calumniates public institutions and undermines confidence in the general good faith and moral purpose upon which the whole fabric of social order rests."

RELICS OF MRS. GILBERT.

Many Stage Folk Make Purchases at Auction Sale.

A number of stage people were present at the auction sale of articles once owned by Mrs. C. H. Gilbert, at the Knickerbocker Art Galleries, in Twenty-ninth Street, yesterday afternoon. Fairly good prices were received. A tortoiseshell lorgnette, with Mrs. Gilbert's monogram in gold, a gift, it was said, from Ada Rehan, attached to a chain of amethyst beads, and once worn by Mrs. Gilbert in "A Royal Family," was sold to Miss Sadie Martinot for $18. Mrs. Charles Richman paid $7 for an amber comb with a filigree top in a long white velvet box, inside the cover of which was a portrait of Augustin Daly, the donor. It was marked "A. D. to A. G. Oct. 21, 1890."

Joe Weber paid $2.50 for a white satin programme of the 100th performance of "The Taming of the Shrew," at Daly's Theatre, April 13, 1887. The pair of antique spectacles worn by Ms. Gilbert in her last play, "Granny," brought $3.50. Mrs. Frederick Neilson bid in a little silver tray.

A handbag of black sealskin, a present from Annie Russell, with an inscription "Annie Russell to Grandma; Good Luck," brought $10, and two small purses containing six lucky pennies $2.75. Charles Burnham of Wallack's Theatre was a large buyer. Jeffreys Lewis sat in a front seat throughout the sale and made several purchases.

More of Mrs. Gilbert's jewelry will be sold to-day with all her costumes, this being the closing day of the sale.

FEAR A POWER MONOPOLY.

Bills Quietly Passed by Senate Said to Have That Purpose.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 12.—In four bills, introduced by Senator L'Hommedieu and passed by the Senate to-night without a dissenting vote, it is believed there is a scheme to create a water power monopoly.

L'Hommedieu attempted last Winter to confer an extensive franchise of the Niagara, Lockport and Ontario Power Company. The bills passed to-night repeal the charters of four water-power companies in the western part of the State. They are: The Lockport Water Supply Company, incorporated in 1886; the Lewiston Water Works Company, incorporated in 1874; the Lewiston Water Supply Company, incorporated in 1888; the Buffalo and Niagara Power and Drainage Company, incorporated in 1889.

None of these companies, it is understood, ever has done anything to give effect to its charter privileges. The story behind the L'Hommedieu bills is that they were introduced to clear the field of probable competition and pave the way for a merger of the other power companies doing business around Niagara Falls.

If the L'Hommedieu bills should become law it is said that four favored companies will be merged into one great company with a view to a monopoly.

BROOKLYN TENDERLOIN DIM.

Street Sweeper's Dust Troubled Theatregoers—Police Interfered.

A rickety street sweeping machine drawn by two horses squeaked along Fulton Street, near Ashland Place, Brooklyn, early yesterday morning. It needed oil. Theatregoers, who were wading through the cloud of dust the machine raised, said it needed destruction.

The dust was so thick that the electric lights in Brooklyn's Tenderloin looked like the flickerings of expiring fireflies, and the gas lights couldn't be seen at all. When the machine passed a policeman he called a halt.

"What are you raising so much fuss and dirt about?" he asked the driver.

"Can't help it," replied the latter, "got to clean the street."

"Yes, and after you've cleaned the street you'd better get a whisk broom brigade and clean the people who are walking along here. Cut it out."

Then he drove the driver and his instrument of torture back to the stables.

The New York City Mothers' Club has increased greatly in membership the last year, and celebrated its annual election of officers yesterday by graduating from a small room which it had entirely outgrown at the Murray Hill Hotel to the Waldorf-Astoria. Hereafter it will hold its monthly meetings in the state apartments of the hotel.

Mrs. Lillie Devereux Blake, the club President, was unanimously re-elected. At the next meeting, April 9, Dr. W. H. McEastline will address the club on "Physical Education."

FLOATERS IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Sulloway, at Publicity Bill Hearing, Says Goods Are Delivered.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The hearing to-day by the House Committee on Elections of the President, Vice President, and Representatives in Congress developed the fact that there is a decided feeling among the members of the committee in favor of reporting a bill aimed at the correction of some of the election evils that have been occupying public attention particularly since the insurance investigation disclosures in New York.

Perry Belmont made a speech in favor of reform legislation, and Chairman Luce of the Massachusetts Assembly Committee on Elections explained the workings of the bill in his State.

"Does it stop the purchase of floaters?" asked Chairman Gaines.

"No," replied Mr. Luce, "I don't think any law will make any man admit that he has committed an election crime."

"You bet it won't," interjected the New Hampshire Congressman, Cy Sulloway of the committee. "Up in my State we know how to see that the goods are delivered."

At the afternoon session Bourke Cockran spoke in explanation of his two bills, one of which requires the publication of the name of any person making a contribution of $50 or more at any campaign where Presidential Electors or members of Congress are chosen. The other bill provides for a commission of Judges to investigate the campaign contributions for the last three Presiential campaigns.

Chairman Griggs of the Democratic Congressional Committee gave Mr. Belmont authority to state that he favored a bill to make public the contributions of his committee.

FOOD.

COBWEB BRAINS
How to Clean Out Your Attic.

From a military post out West comes the story of a lady who frankly admits that she was once a coffee drunkard:

"For 20 years I drank coffee, although I knew that it was harmful to me. I suffered from periodical nervous headaches which the physician said were caused by the use of coffee. I was indeed a confirmed 'coffee drunkard.'

"I suffered so intensely from headaches as to require the services of a nurse. I could find no tablets or powders that would give me any permanent relief, and I was compelled to just let the headaches take their course. Each attack used to last for a day or two.

"After I married and had the cares of a family I found I was becoming a nervous wreck, and the strain became unendurable. Something had to be done, and I concluded to try Postum Food Coffee, giving up the old kind altogether.

"I made it rich and strong, according to directions, and drank it with plenty of good cream. It proved to be delicious. It took several days for the coffee poison to work out of my system, but I persisted and won out, and great was my reward! Renewed energy and vigor came to me, and I improved so that my neighbors observed and remarked upon it.

"During all the year that I have used Postum I have not had a single headache, proof conclusive that my old agonies came from coffee alone. I can do all the work I want with perfect ease and freedom from exhausting fatigue, and am a strong, healthy woman, for which blessed change Postum and right living get the credit." MARCH 1906

NEW YORK PRESBYTERY TO INVESTIGATE ITSELF

Committee to Inquire Into Westminster Church Affair.

CENSURE FROM DR. DUFFIELD

He Charges the Presbytery with "Incapacity" and "Mismanagement" of the Westminster Case.

At the closing moment of the monthly session of the Presbytery of New York in the Chapel of the Old First Presbyterian Church yesterday afternoon, the Rev. Dr. Howard Duffield, pastor of the Old First Church, proposed that the Presbytery undergo internal investigation. Dr. Duffield censured the Presbytery for what he termed its mismanagement of the affair of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, which not long since renounced its connection with the Presbytery, and whose pastor, the Rev. Dr. John Lloyd Lee, left the Presbytery with part of his congregation.

Dr. Duffield was obliged to pause frequently because of the applause which punctuated his speech. When he had concluded, the Presbytery approved his motion for an investigating committee by a vote whose tones were heard by a group of reporters outside.

Effort was made by officials of the Presbytery to prevent any account of the action from becoming public, and announcement of it was refused by the Rev. Dr. F. E. Shearer, the stated clerk. From another source it was learned last night, however, that two members of the investigating committee named are Dr. Duffield and the Rev. Dr. Anthony H. Evans, pastor of the West Church.

Dr. Duffield is reported to have declared that the Westminster Church had been mistreated, and that the Presbytery had shown "incapacity" in dealing with the affair.

"Here we are a Presbytery," Dr. Duffield is reported as saying, "that has shown its entire inability in many ways to cope with the difficulties that have existed in the Westminster Church. The conditions that permit affairs to take this course are wrong. I move the appointment of a committee to look into this whole affair with the deepest scrutiny, and to bring in a report covering all its findings. There are many matters to be considered, and the fullest investigation ought to be courted by this body.

"Why this Presbytery has become a byword throughout the Presbyterian Church, because of its dealings with the Westminster Church, must be considered by any committee if one be named. There is hardly any one who will deny that something must be done."

When the rumor that Dr. Duffield urged the appointment of a committee was brought to the attention of Dr. Shearer last night, he would not confirm it. The official record, it was declared, would show that Dr. Duffield had no criticism to make of men or methods, but that he desired that steps be taken looking to the greater efficiency of the Presbytery.

It developed at the Presbytery meeting that some members of the Westminster Church congregation in addition to those who left that church oppose the withdrawal of the church from the Presbytery. Some members of the church in good standing, it was said, have united to obtain the services of Rush Taggart as counsel to protect their interests. Mr. Taggart is a member of the Presbytery, and it was announced a few days ago that he had consented to represent the Presbytery in action that is to be taken against the Westminster Church. Officers of the Westminster Church came forward last night with a denial of this report.

"We have heard of no member in our church turning against us. I have heard that the Presbytery hope to get two or three of our members to use in this way, but so far as we have been able to determine they have not as yet accomplished their purpose."

The Presbytery adopted a resolution to dissolve the Session, the ruling body in the Westminster Church. The wording of the resolution is said to have practically expelled the members of the Session both from the church and the Presbytery. The church was ordered no longer to permit the members of the Session to act in an official capacity.

This resolution was adopted after the reading of a report from the Rev. Dr. George Alexander, pastor of the University Place Church, whom the Presbytery named at its last meeting to act as presiding officer of the Westminster Church Session. Dr. Alexander's report was not presented in person, as he left here on Saturday last for a two months' tour in Egypt and Syria.

The Presbytery named the Rev. Dr. Robert McKenzie, pastor of the Rutgers Church, to take Dr. Alexander's place as moderator of the Westminster Church Session. It also named a committee, consisting of the Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, pastor of the Brick Church; the Rev. Dr. George Nixon, Moderator of the Presbytery and pastor of the Tremont Church; W. E. Magie and Theron G. Strong.

The Rev. Dr. John Lloyd Lee declared last night: "The Presbytery cannot discipline this church, and any action it may take in reference to us is without force."

VOTING MACHINES TO WAIT.

Aldermen Will Watch Fate of Stanley Bill—Bingham Wants Autos.

Advocates of the use of the voting machine in municipal elections appeared before the Aldermanic Committee on Finance yesterday in favor of the Meyers resolution to spend $120,000 in equipping two Manhattan and two Brooklyn Assembly districts with machines before the next election.

Alderman Peters urged the adoption of the resolution, and Alexander V. Campbell urged the selection of the Standard machine at a cost of $750 each. Alderman Meyers said it might be well to await the action of the Legislature on the Stanley bill permitting eight districts to be equipped with machines. This will be done by the committee. President Voorhis of the Board of Elections opposed the use of machines, saying they were experiments. He also said they would be worthless for primary elections.

The Finance Committee held a joint session with the Committee on Public Letting, to hear Police Commissioner Bingham, who appeared in favor of a resolution to permit him to spend $16,000 without public letting for three automobiles. The Commissioner said it would be impossible for him and his Deputies to cover the city properly without the machines and that $5,000 each was none too much to pay for American machines. He also said he intended to ask shortly for an appropriation for chauffeurs, so that he would not have to use patrolmen for that purpose.

Commissioner Bingham also put in a word for the pending appropriation of $120,000 for improving the cells of police stations.

The Committee on Bridges and Tunnels held a hearing on the Peters resolution inquiring into transit conditions on the Williamsburg Bridge. Cornelius Sheehan said the history of the bridge was a history of graft and that the malign influence of the railroads was at work in the Bridge Department.

The committee took up the resolution on the Steinway Tunnel work, but decided it had no authority to act.

Real Estate Tax Exemption Bill.

ALBANY, March 12.—A bill introduced in the Senate to-night by Mr. Hawkins would permit exemption from local taxation of buildings and other real estate improvements to an amount not exceeding $3,000. This bill has been urged by a large number of taxpayers' associations in the Bronx and Brooklyn on the ground that it would encourage the building of private homes of good size.

DECISION AGAINST POWERS.

Supreme Court Refuses to Take Murder Case from Kentucky Courts.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The Caleb Powers case was decided unanimously against Powers by the Supreme Court of the United States to-day.

The opinion was delivered by Justice Harlan, and held that the case was not removable from the State to the Federal courts. The case was therefore remanded to the Kentucky courts. The opinion was based on the ground that the equal rights statute, Section 641, Revised Statutes, does not apply unless recognized by the State laws or the State Constitution.

Justice Harlan said the Supreme Court of the United States could take cognizance of the case on a writ of error.

CINCINNATI, March 12.—The decision of the Supreme Court of the United States means that Caleb Powers, who is now confined in the Newport Jail, must be tried again in the State courts for the murder of Goebel.

SUGAR TRUST CASE UP.

Federal Grand Jury Hears Rebate Charges Brought by Hearst.

The Federal Grand Jury was engaged yesterday in hearing witnesses on the charge brought against the Sugar Trust by William R. Hearst, alleging violation of the Elkins anti-rebate law in making shipments on Westbound trunk lines. It is charged that instead of consigning its freight west free on board in New York, the trust pays the freight charges at this end, allowing the buyer to pay the freight on the invoice with the goods.

United States District Attorney Stimson, with Assistant United States Attorney Henry A. Wise, conducted the investigation yesterday, and examined T. P. Riley of the traffic department of the Sugar Trust, Lowell W. Palmer of the Brooklyn Cooperage Company, a subsidiary organization of the trust; C. W. Bullen of the Trunk Line Association, H. T. Leeming of the Thomas A. Edison Company, but formerly in Riley's department; W. H. Whittaker, and Charles T. Thompson.

Against Wash Sales and Corners.

ALBANY, March 12.—Senator Grady to-night introduced in the Senate a bill providing that every person who shall make a false or pretended sale or so-called "wash sale," or who shall sell any product or food material, cotton, tobacco, or manufactured product of which he is not the actual owner at the time of such sale, or who conspires or agrees to create or obtain false or fictitious value for any product by a so-called "corner" shall be guilty of a felony, punishable by a fine of $1,000 and imprisonment for not more than one year.

$800,000 TITLE FORGERY CHARGED TO A LAWYER

Browne Used Dummies, Prosecutor Says, to Get Property.

REAL OWNERS LOST AT SEA

Family Went Down on Liner Geyser in 1888—Browne Said He Found Heirs.

A jury was obtained in General Sessions yesterday for the trial of J. Hoffman Browne, lawyer, Sunday School Superintendent, and former editor of a publication known as The Civil Procedure Reports, on the charge of forgery in the second degree. Assistant District Attorney Train said the property which the defendant had attempted to get hold of was worth more than $800,000.

This property, Mr. Train told the jury and Judge Foster, was at Inwood and Mount Hope, and belonged once to Ebbe Peterson, a Norwegian. This man, his wife Mary, and their only child went to Norway in 1888 on the Thingvalla liner Geyser, which was sunk in midocean by her sister ship the Thingvalla. The whole Peterson family was lost.

Just before starting, and while still intending to make the trip alone, Peterson had made out a deed assigning his entire property to his wife. To make the recording of this document complete Mrs. Peterson had had to sign several deeds. This she had done, signing her full name.

Yet a deed was filed many years later in this city which purported to convey the Peterson property to J. F. X. O'Rourke. It was signed with the mark of Mary A. Peterson, and dated within a few days of the start of the vessel which carried the Petersons to their death.

This document was one in a long line of similar ones which appeared mysteriously from the time, eight years ago, when Browne announced the discovery of two heirs to the Peterson estate. Those heirs were Charles A. Clark and one Wing of Boston. To this day no one is known to have set eyes on either man.

Clark, through Browne, conveyed the property to John J. Keilly, also unknown. Keilly and J. F. X. O'Rourke, whose appearance in the case was unexplained at the time, made joint conveyance of the property to William F. Colliton, and then, at last, appeared the document conveying the property from the dead Mrs. Peterson to O'Rourke.

Since that time many conveyances of small parts of the property have been sold in the name of William R. Hubert, another mythical personage. In every such case the documents were witnessed by Browne or recorded at his request.

On Aug. 25, 1903, two mortgages on part of the property were recorded in the name of Hubert, who was supposed to have received them from one Benjamin Freeman. The acknowledgment was made before a Notary by Hubert, whom the Notary identified as Browne. The double indictment against Browne is based on the alleged forging of those mortgages. The contention of Mr. Train in his opening remarks yesterday was that the names Clark, Keilly, O'Rourke, Colliton, Hubert, and Freeman were all fictitious.

Browne told Judge Foster that he had been in the Tombs since December and was penniless. The court assigned Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler to defend him.

Bill for Ice Trust Investigation.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 12.—An investigation of the American Ice Company, generally known as the Ice Trust, is proposed in a bill introduced to-night in the Assembly by Bernstein of New York. The Governor is authorized to appoint three Commissioners who shall investigate the ice crop of the State, the facilities for, and methods of storage of ice, the importation of ice, the price of ice, and establish what companies are engaged in the ice business in the State.

HAMILTON HERE.

Ready, If Suits Are Intended, to be Served with the Papers.

As the result of a visit of Andrew Hamilton to this city yesterday, it became known that he probably would not appear before the Fowler Investigating Committee of New York Life Trustees to enlighten it as to the origin and disposal of the money that went into the Bureau of Taxation and Legislation, which he conducted in the days of John A. McCall. Hamilton will be here until to-morrow morning, according to present plans, but the Fowler Committee will not meet to-day, and one of its members said last night that it did not expect to hear from Hamilton.

Yesterday's coming of the "Legislative Generalissimo" was heralded by Albany dispatches, and when Hamilton got off the train about noon there was a delegation of reporters waiting for him. He said that he hadn't anything to say, and then he went downtown to the offices of Anthony N. Brady, at 54 Wall Street. From the Brady offices Hamilton went up to the New York Life Building, where, it is understood, he went to the legal department and left word that he was ready to accept service in any suit to be brought. Officers of the company denied that any of them had seen him. From the New York Life Building Hamilton went uptown to the house of James M. Brady, his son-in-law.

Bernard N. Baker sent word from Baltimore yesterday that he would accept the Chairmanship of the Mutual Life Policy Holders' Committee, for which John De Witt Warner and ex-Judge D Cady Herrick are counsel. Mr. Baker said he accepted with the hope that Stuyvesant Fish would become the permanent Chairman of the committee, and therefore desired his position to be considered a temporary one only. It is learned that between the committee of which Mr. Baker is the temporary head and the Policy Holders' Committee for which Samuel Untermyer is counsel, which will eventually ask for proxies from both the New York Life and the Mutual Life, there is a feeling of entire co-operation and that the members of both committees look to Mr. Fish as the logical head of any great policy holders' movement.

HEARST ASKED NO RECOUNT.

Attorney General Replies to Assembly Resolution of Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 12.—The Hearst Recount bill, which is pending before the Legislature, was killed to-day when the Attorney General, in reply to a resolution of inquiry passed recently by the Assembly, said that neither Hearst nor any of his associates on the Municipal Ownership ticket of last Fall had made any complaint to him, and had not requested him to commence any action on their behalf looking to a recount of the ballots cast last Fall.

The communication of the Attorney General was handed down by the Speaker, read by the Clerk, and received without comment.

BOTH FOOD AND MEDICINE.

We like best to call Scott's Emulsion a food-medicine. It is a term that aptly describes the character and action of our Emulsion. More than a medicine—more than a food, yet combining the vital principles of both. It is for this reason that Scott's Emulsion has a distinct and special value in all wasting diseases. There is nothing better to remedy the troubles of imperfect growth and delicate health in children. The action of Scott's Emulsion is just as effective in treating weakness and wasting in adults.

HITCH AT ALGECIRAS CAUSES FEAR OF BREAK

French and German Delegates Resume Unbending Attitude.

ALL OVER ONE LITTLE TOWN

Mode of Policing Casablanca Supposed to Involve the Principle of Internationalization.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES
Special Cables. Copyright, 1906.

ALGECIRAS, March 12.—We are suffering from the depressing effect of hope deferred. The so-called Austrian project for policing the open ports of Morocco seemed to offer an inviting field for compromise, and it was noticed that the French and German delegates at once assumed much more conciliatory attitudes.

This gave rise to the conviction that an amicable solution would be speedily reached. Some imagined that the final protocol would be signed on Saturday, while others thought the ceremony would be deferred till next week. But the idea that the negotiations might be indefinitely prolonged, and possibly end in rupture was generally excluded from the possibilities. The short space which separates the French and German positions, however, is found to contain much more formidable obstacles than was supposed. Consequently the old unbending attitude of the French and German representatives has been resumed.

What are these formidable obstacles preventing further rapprochement? First and chief is the policing of Casablanca. The Germans maintain that it must be confined to a neutral power. The French insist that it should be treated exactly like that of the other seven ports. It is difficult to imagine that the mode of policing a miserable little town in Morocco which has little commercial and no strategic importance should seriously imperil the peace of Europe, yet so it is, for if a rupture is to take place, it will be on this reef that the conference will founder.

Whatever the ostensible cause of the rupture may be, the explanation is that the decision about this town is supposed to contain the great principle known by the barbarous term internationalization, which is quite different from, though sometimes confounded with, the principle of the open door.

Is Morocco to be internationalized? The Germans say yes, the French say no, and Casablanca has been chosen as the battlefield for decision. Perhaps it may be found on closer inspection—and therein lie the chances of an agreement—that the question of internationalization, which is merely a pseudo-scientific term for the question of predominant influence, is in reality little affected by the Casablanca police organization.

The second question on which an agreement has not been reached is the inspection of the police, but this question is not likely to produce a rupture.

Lastly, there is the State Bank, but there is reason to believe that if the police question is solved, a compromise on the State Bank could be found.

The meeting fixed for to-morrow has been postponed.

PARIS, March 12.—There is a shade less optimism to-day as to the Algeciras Conference. France is as determined as ever not to agree to the proposal to intrust the policing of Casablanca to a neutral power. Further, she is not prepared to submit to any control of the Franco-Spanish policing of Morocco, which would imply active interference.

The word control, as employed in connection with administrative matters in France, simply implies the right of examining and reporting. In certain other languages, as English, it entitles the controller to direct interference. On this point the French Government will not give way.

If a neutral State were to be intrusted with the policing of one of the ports, and at the same time with the right of control in the more extended sense of the word, the action of France and Spain would be subject to supervision and limitation. Admitting it to be Switzerland, there can be no doubt that Germany would have everything to say, as it is no secret that the Federal Government has of late years been attracted within the orbit of Germany.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
[Copyright, 1906.]

BERLIN, March 12.—The press is much elated over the latest reports from Algeciras. It is said that while Germany formerly was in danger of isolation, France is now in this position, for the neutral powers, including the United States and even England, are supporting Germany. The visit paid by Nicholson to Radowitz is regarded as the best recognition of the German position on the bank question and the strongest criticism of French demands.

BALFOUR IN THE COMMONS.

Irish Greet His Return with Cry of "Welcome, Little Stranger!"

LONDON, March 12.—Former Premier Balfour returned to the House of Commons this afternoon and assumed the leadership of the Opposition.

He was heartily welcomed on all sides. The Irish members saluted Mr. Balfour with the cry of "Welcome, little stranger!"

Shepard Case Decision Suspended.

PARIS, March 12.—The retirement of M. Chaumié from the Ministry of Justice owing to the resignation of the Rouvier Cabinet has had the effect of suspending decision in the case of Elliott F. Shepard of New York, who was sentenced to three months' imprisonment for running over a girl in his automobile at St. Ouen in April last. No action will be taken toward carrying out the sentence until M. Sarrien, who is Minister of Justice as well as Premier, has had an opportunity to examine the papers.

THE NEW FRENCH CABINET.

M. Sarrien's Ministry Now Is Practically Completed—The List.

PARIS, March 12.—M. Sarrien to-day assembled those whom he expects to enter the new Ministry. Although no formal announcement has been made, the Cabinet is practically completed as follows:

Premier and Minister of Justice—M. SARRIEN.
Minister of the Interior—Senator CLEMENCEAU.
Minister of Foreign Affairs—M. BOURGEOIS.
Minister of War—M. ETIENNE.
Minister of Marine—M. THOMSON.
Minister of Public Instruction and Worship—M. BRIAND.
Minister of Commerce—M. DOUMERGUE.
Minister of Public Works—M. BARTHOU.
Minister of Finance—M. POINCARE.
Minister of the Colonies—M. LEYGUES.
Minister of Agriculture—M. RUAU.

The principal question is the Government's course in carrying out the law providing for the separation of Church and State. Senator Clémenceau, who will have charge for enforcing the taking of Church inventories, is in favor of an energetic policy, declaring that any weakness would amount to the surrendering before threats of an insurrection.

ROYAL MARRIAGE ON JUNE 2.

Queen of Spain Will Be Known as Victoria Eugenie.

MADRID, March 12.—Premier Moret to-day formally announced to the Cabinet King Alfonso's betrothal to Princess Ena of Battenberg, who hereafter will be officially known as Victoria Eugenie. Later the two Houses of Parliament were notified.

The Minister of Finance will present a bill appropriating $50,000 annually for the future Queen. The date of the marriage has been definitely fixed for June 2.

The American Ambassador, William M. Collier, has returned here from his tour of Andalusia for the purpose of participating in the festivities to be held in honor of the King of Portugal, who arrived here to-day.

CASTELLANE DIVORCE NOW.

Countess to Ask for Absolute Decree Instead of a Separation.

PARIS, March 12.—The preliminary hearing of the separation proceedings instituted by the Countess Boni de Castellane, (formerly Anna Gould,) against her husband, Count Boni, which was set for March 14, will probably be postponed. The lawyers representing the various branches of the case have been in consultation upon the financial features involved and other final details of the procedure. This has resulted in a determination to change the form of the proceedings.

Although authoritative information is withheld for the present, there is reason to believe that the change contemplates a demand on the part of the Countess for an absolute divorce instead of a separation. The proposed change appears to be the result of the conclusion of all concerned that a reconciliation between the Countess and the Count is impossible during the three years in which the legal separation would be operative.

It is the intention of the lawyers on both sides to avoid public hearings of the case, and to obtain a decree without a contest.

BRANDUS SALE BEGINS.

Dupre's "The Cottage" Brings $2,600, Highest Price of the Evening.

Sixty-six pictures, the first of the lot of the Brandus collection of masters ancient and modern, were disposed of in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria last evening, and brought a total of $30,035. The highest price of the evening was $2,600, brought by "The Cottage," Jules Dupre, which was bid in by John Fenning, who also bought a Bouguereau for $1,100. The second highest price was paid by W. L. Bull for a Romney, "Miss Farren."

There was a comparatively small number of persons at the sale, and the prices ranged from $60 up. One of the best-known men among the buyers of the evening was Mr. Herbert L. Satterlee, who bid in "The Artist's Studio," by Gonzales Coques. Mrs. Satterlee, who is a daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan, and who wore a beautiful long mink coat, was with her husband. They were at some of the art sales last week, dropping in for a short time early in the evening.

One of the two Charles Jacques in the sale last night went to Mrs. F. T. Sutherland, who bid in a half dozen different pictures. Mrs. Sutherland is a guest of the Waldorf, and usually makes one or more purchases at the art sales held in the big ballroom. The sale will be continued to-night and Wednesday evening.

SPITE WALL BLANKETS THE BONAVISTA WINDOWS

New Apartment House Overlooks Mrs. Rutherford's Home.

STAINED GLASS WOULDN'T DO

So Proprietor Pugh Will Brick Up Openings for Three Stories of Riverside Drive Structure.

Unsuccessful in the courts, where she sought to show that the newly built ten-story Bonavista apartment house, fronting Riverside Drive at 109th Street, encroached on her property, Mrs. John Rutherford, whose home adjoins the Bonavista, is building a "spite wall" thirty-six feet high and seventy-five feet long which blankets the southern windows of the three lower floors of the apartment house.

The wall is almost completed. It is of pressed brick, with abutments. Had Mrs. Rutherford constructed a wall of wood the third floor of the apartment house would have escaped, as the rules of the Building Department would have restricted its height to twenty feet.

The Bonavista occupies six city lots, with a frontage of 151 feet 10 inches on Riverside Drive. The property covers almost the entire block from 109th Street south to 108th Street. The lot at the southern end of the block is owned by Mrs. Rutherford, whose home, a handsome stone residence, stands there. The entire block was once the home of Mrs. Matilda W. Brower. The Brower estate formerly included many acres in the vicinity. Plots were sold off occasionally, and many years ago Henry S. F. Davis bought the lot on which the Rutherford home now stands. He built there, and, retiring from business, spent many years in the house.

In January, 1905, Mr. Davis died, and a few months later his widow was married to Rutherford. At the time of the marriage the Bonavista apartment house was being built. Its southern wall rose almost on the party line, with windows drawing light and air from the Rutherford easement. The apartment house was built and is owned by Paul B. Pugh, who came to New York from North Carolina a comparatively poor man, and who now has to use seven figures to reckon his fortune. It cost him, with the site, more than $1,000,000. He is also the proprietor of the Monticello Hotel.

Last June Mr. Pugh received a letter from Mrs. Rutherford's attorney asking him to close the windows of the Bonavista which overlooked her home.

"I wrote her the nicest kind of a letter in reply," he said yesterday afternoon. "It was full of roses and violets, and breathed the perfume of peace. I told her that the windows would be of thick cathedral glass, and that no inconvenience could possibly result to her. I suggested a conference with her representative, being sure that an amicable understanding could be reached.

"Instead she brought suit, saying that I was encroaching on her property. Now, I knew better, for my wall stands a quarter of an inch north of the party line. I was anxious for the case to go to trial, but in January the suit was withdrawn. Of course, after the litigation I didn't put in cathedral glass.

"I went South in February, and in my absence Mrs. Rutherford, who is in Europe, I understand, with her husband, caused work to be begun on the spite wall. The wall encroaches a quarter of an inch on my property, but I will not make any kick about that. It closes up twelve windows, and I will have to brick these windows in and substitute ornamental mantels for them.

"There is plenty of air without them in the three apartments affected, and the income of the house will not be reduced a cent. The wall is built across the lower part of the airshaft, too, but its limited height prevents any hardship from that source. I received no notice whatever that the spite wall would be built, and when I learned by letter that it had been begun I instructed that nothing be done to hamper its completion."

The Rutherford home is in charge of a caretaker, who said that she knew nothing whatever of the whereabouts of her employers.

While her husband is taking things philosophically, Mrs. Pugh is indignant. When the Pughs moved into the third-floor apartments she picked out the prettiest curtains she could find for the south windows. Her friends all admired her taste, and now that the windows are to be replaced with mantels the curtains will have to be shelved.

COL. MANN IS INDICTED.

On Perjury Charge Editor Is Held for Trial in $1,500 Bail.

An indictment for perjury was returned yesterday by the Grand Jury against Col. William d'Alton Mann, editor of Town Topics. It supersedes the proceedings still pending before Justice McAvoy of Special Sessions. The charge is based on the denial by Col. Mann, while a witness in the Hapgood criminal libel trial, that he affixed the initials "O. K., W. D. M." to a letter from Count Reginald Ward to Moses Ellis Wooster. Wooster swore on the stand that he had seen Col. Mann write those initials.

Col. Mann was arraigned before Judge O'Sullivan in General Sessions yesterday afternoon. Lawyer Charles L. Craig appeared as his counsel. Mr. Craig raised the point at once that the indictment was illegal because it deprived the defendant of the right to a hearing before a Magistrate. He declared that he would apply for a writ of habeas corpus in order to settle the question of the Grand Jury's right to interfere with a hearing not yet completed before the Court of Appeals. Judge O'Sullivan said:

"None of the objections raised by counsel is strong enough to deprive the Grand Jury of its statutory power to indict or its statutory duty to inquire into the state of crime in this county."

Bail was fixed at $1,500, and was furnished at once by Mrs. Emma Mann Wray, daughter of the defendant, who gave as security the ten lots on West Thirty-eighth Street where the Town Topics Publishing Company is now erecting a new building.

The defendant was allowed till next Tuesday to file a brief in support of his contention that the indictment is illegal.

FATHER GAPON ARRESTED.

Timiriazeff Exonerates Him—Anti-Jewish Proclamation.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 12.—Father Gapon was arrested to-day on the eve of the inquiry demanded by him into the scandal involved in the charge that his labor organization was subsidized by the Government.

M. Timiriazeff, Minister of Commerce, in an interview exonerates Father Gapon from all blame, declaring that he is an idealist and a man of force, and acquitting him of receiving any of the money given by the Government to M. Matushenski, Gapon's former assistant.

The anti-Jewish proclamation alleged to have been issued by the bureaucracy consists of a programme of twenty-two articles, including a demand for the expulsion of the Jews from all the cities of European Russia and Siberia into the Pale, the prohibition of higher education for Jews, the prohibition of the stoppage of work on Jewish holidays, the levying of a lump sum of money from the Jewish population in lieu of military service, the reassumption of Jewish names where they have been changed, the prohibition to the Jews of certain professions, like the stage, and that none but the grandchildren of Jews who have accepted Christianity shall enjoy full legal rights.

In every detail the Leading Retail Establishment of Brooklyn.
Store Opens Daily at 8:30 A. M., Closes at 6 P. M.

"A MAGNIFICENT STORE YOU HAVE," said a man from out of town after a visit of inspection. "In many ways it seems to me to be the finest in the country."

So it may seem to the outsider. Yet there are thousands of Brooklyn people who have known this Store all their lives who know that the beautiful building is not the Store—that the building is only the shell built around a policy and practice of store-keeping. The real Loeser's is a living organism that serves and has served Brooklyn people for many years. The real Loeser's is the organization and the enterprise that drives it, bringing here for Brooklyn people the merchandise which is definitely good; bringing it earliest; bringing it at lowest prices.

The great and fine Store building is justified by PUBLIC APPRECIATION of the real Loeser's and by PUBLIC DESIRE to allow still greater scope to the principles of store-keeping which have given to this Store its peculiar individuality.

PATTERSON UNRELENTING; WIFE BACK IN BELLEVUE

She Vainly Begs in Court for a Chance to Speak with Him.

A CONSPIRACY, SHE SAYS

Declares She Was Kept from Seeking Forgiveness for Drinking—Committed for Mental Examination.

Mrs. Virginia Knox Patterson, wife of Joseph N. Patterson of 11 East Ninth Street, was committed to Bellevue Hospital yesterday for examination regarding her sanity by Magistrate Barlow in Jefferson Market Court. The woman pleaded that she was the victim of a conspiracy, and offered to promise anything, even that she would serve ten years in prison, if she could have a chance to go home with her husband on her promise never to drink again.

Mr. Patterson is lame and walks with a cane with difficulty. He rode to court in a carriage, accompanied by a lawyer. Mrs. Patterson, who was taken to court from Bellevue in a cab, had no counsel. The husband's lawyer stood between them on the bridge.

The husband identified his signature to the complaint. He refused to speak to his wife in answer to her pleading.

"I have done no wrong. I wish I could speak with Joe for just a moment."

"Are you this man's wife?" asked the Magistrate.

"Yes, I am his wife. He married me twice. He divorced me once, but married me again," was the answer.

"I do wish I could talk to Joe for just a moment. I don't think he wants me to go back to that horrible hospital again. It was a great injustice to me to be taken there at all. You never could imagine, Judge, the wretched characters I found all about me in that place. Why, the experience I had over there will remain with me forever. I know it will have an influence on my whole life. No one could imagine the insult which I seemed to feel when I was taken from home at my husband's order and taken to Bellevue."

"I think you had better go quietly, Mrs. Patterson, and not say any more," said the Magistrate.

The woman turned on the bridge toward her husband and pleaded with him. Patterson rapped his knuckles on the bench in front of the Magistrate and shook his head. While the woman brushed aside her tears she turned to the husband's lawyer:

"Now, Mr. Watson, why don't you let me have my husband. You know this is all wrong. You know he loves me better than any one on earth. You have a wife, and I don't see why you should keep me from him."

"This is a conspiracy, Judge," Mrs. Patterson spoke up. "I think you can see that this is a conspiracy. Why, they won't even let me talk to my husband. I have noticed that about the house for several weeks. I never went near him to talk to him but he always had somebody with him who kept me away."

As she was being taken from the room Mrs. Patterson made a desperate effort to get by Sergt. Farrell and Detective Rider and go back to where her husband stood on the bridge. She was prevented, and was led out calling in a low voice, "Joe, Joe." As she sat down in the carriage she buried her face in her hands and cried like a child. It is expected that on Friday or Saturday morning Dr. Gregory will report on her mental condition.

ARRESTED UNDER THE RIVER.

Policeman Norton Went Into the Tunnel to Get Negro Offender.

Policeman Norton of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station responded to the call of duty yesterday under conditions that might well have tried the nerve of any man. He was patrolling his beat near the East River shortly after sunrise, when a man ran up and said that one negro had killed another in a fight in the Pennsylvain Railroad tunnel under the river.

Norton ran to the head of the shaft, got the engineer to lower him in the bucket that the "sand hogs" use, and proceeded to grope his way through air chambers that led to the scene of the fight. He was soon 165 feet below the surface of the river and 105 feet out from the bank.

The air pressure increases with each successive air lock until it reaches forty-five pounds in the chamber in which the gang of negroes was at work. Norton was in bad shape when he got to this compartment; his ears were singing and his head nearly bursting from the pressure, which is not far from the limit a regular "sand hog" can stand.

Gentry Lee was lying unconscious on the ground where his assailant, Henry Coleman, had felled him with a two-foot steel drill. The four other men in the place pointed out Coleman to the officer. The man made a break to escape. Norton was not to be caught napping, however, and collared him in short order. He got him to the surface as soon as he could, and landed him safely in the station house.

Lee was taken to Bellevue Hospital, where he was said to be in a dangerous condition. His skull had been fractured, and the sudden change of air pressure when he was hurried out of the tunnel may result in his death.

SAYS WOMEN DO DRINK.

Practice on the Increase, Says Judge Ommen—Hotels to Blame.

"It was said the other day that drinking among women was on the increase," said Judge Ommen last night at a meeting of the Society of Medical Jurisprudence at the Academy of Medicine. "That's so. Go to the Waldorf-Astoria any afternoon and you'll see intelligent women drinking cocktails.

"It all comes from these big apartment houses, with 2,000 or 3,000 persons living in one building, and the dazzle of modern life. Twenty years ago if you took a woman to the theatre you might ask her if she would have an ice-cream or a lemon soda. That was the limit. Nowadays you don't say anything. You just steer her for a restaurant, and say to the waiter, 'Two Manhattans, please,' before you ask if she wants anything to eat."

CALLS B. R. T. TO TIME.

Commissioner Dunne Orders Company to Do $426,000 Paving Work.

Commissioner of Public Works Dunne of Brooklyn yesterday demanded the expenditure of $426,000 by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company for paving between tracks in many parts of the borough.

According to the letter written by Mr. Dunne, the company has failed to fulfill its contract with the city.

A fine of $500 is provided for each specified case of neglect. Mr. Dunne in his letter enumerates the streets where the repairs are necessary and declares that if the corporation does not immediately proceed with the work the city will do it at the corporation's expense.

Offers Plymouth Church 19 Windows.

The Trustees of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, are considering an offer made by ex-State Senator Stephen M. Griswold to place nineteen memorial windows in the church at his own expense. Mr. Griswold has been for fifty-three years an usher at Plymouth. He proposes that the three front windows shall represent "The Resurrection of Christ." In other windows he would place figures designed to represent the history of the Christian religion.

SPRIGGS HELD FOR TRIAL.

Negro Charged with Assault and Abduction—Bail Fixed at $8,500.

Robert H. Spriggs, the negro arrested last week on a variety of charges, was arraigned before Judge O'Sullivan, in General Sessions, yesterday on the triple charge of assault, abduction, and maintaining a disorderly house. His total bail was fixed at $8,500. He couldn't furnish a bond. Assistant District Attorney Nott met a protest from the man's counsel with the words:

"It ought to be a million dollars."

Spriggs pleaded not guilty. Mr. Nott said yesterday that the negro was convicted of felonious assault in 1889 and was sent to State prison for three years. Under the present law the fact that the crime of which he stands now accused is a second offense, can be made part of the indictment. This will undoubtedly be done, as it will double the man's punishment in case he is convicted.

Assistant District Attorney Murphy was kept busy yesterday examining witnesses who knew something about the business carried on by Spriggs. Most of these witnesses were women—all white—who said that at one time or another they had been in some of the Spriggs resorts.

The District Attorney wants to know where are two white girls who disappeared from one of Spriggs's houses some time ago under dubious circumstances.

ALBANY, March 12.—Assemblyman Harvey of Kings, a Hearstite, offered a resolution to-night aimed at what he termed the "white slave traffic" in New York City. The resolution sets for that there had been grave charges of immorality in New York, that they had been brought to the attention of the Mayor and that he had neglected his duty. It provided that a committee of three Senators and five Assemblymen be appointed to go to New York and inquire into the matter.

Typothetae's Counsel Tells Court of Many Assaults on Employes.

The Typothetae, through Robert C. Beatty of the law firm of Beatty & Burlingame, applied to Justice Greenbaum, in the Supreme Court, yesterday for a continuance of the injunction restraining Typographical Union No. 6 from interfering with their employes. Argument was heard and decision was reserved.

The lawyer submitted affidavits which, he said, specified a hundred separate assaults on employes of firms which would not accede to the union's demands. In many cases, he declared, investigation failed to discover the identity of the persons guilty of the assaults.

Three men, he declared, were now awaiting trial on assault charges, while others had been fined or reprimanded.

Frederick St. John of St. John & Talley, who appeared for "Big Six," opposed the motion. He argued that it had not been proved that the acts of violence complained of had been committed by members of the union.

SHORT-WEIGHT MEN FINED.

One $50 and Twelve $25 for Harlem Offenses—Fifty More Cases.

In pursuance of Corporation Counsel Delany's agitation against tradesmen who give short weight, sixty-three cases were taken before Judge Leon Sanders, in the Ninth Municipal Court, Harlem, yesterday. One fine of $50 and twelve of $25 were imposed. Fifty cases were adjourned until Thursday.

The fifty-dollar fine was imposed on Max Solensky of 232 East 103d Street, against whom there were two charges on successive days. The following were fined $25 each: Henry Warncke, 2,058 Madison Avenue; Henry Tuckerman, 1,481 Fifth Avenue; Samuel Brender and Max Birnbaum, 1,481 Fifth Avenue; Albert Teffe, 2,447 Fifth Avenue; William Herskowitz, 2,179 Fifth Avenue; Jacob Rappoport, 1,821 Madison Avenue; Morris Smolen, 137 East 110th Street; Antonio Crisculo, 139 East 110th Street; Henry Gelog, 69 East 100th Street; Patrick J. Timothy, 1,887 Lenox Avenue; Carl Barth, 2,118 Madison Avenue, and Samuel Katz, 322 East 117th Street. There was an average shortage of three ounces in the pound.

METZ DOING THINGS BETTER.

Asks Why Former Controller Missed Sewer Claim Frauds.

Controller Metz yesterday criticised the manner in which his predecessor in the Finance Department had handled the sewer claims against the city, over which there since has been a scandal.

"How was it that these claims were not known to be fraudulent long ago?" he was asked. "Simply because up to last June the investigation of these claims was simply a bluff. Investigators got $10 a day and did not investigate."

There are 1,158 claims against the city for sewer damages in Brooklyn unexamined and 200 unexamined claims in the hands of District Attorney Clarke of Brooklyn. Of the 1,158 claims 967 were presented by Lawyer Miles, ex-Assistant District Attorney of Brooklyn, representing 284 claimants. The aggregate involved is $699,502.77—$540,761.12 in the claims presented by Miles.

Since the recent exposure 404 claims, representing $167,898.17, have been withdrawn. Miles withdrew 200 claims and 86 were withdrawn by Michael A. Finnegan.

ROBBED SALOON KEEPER, THEN DRANK WITH HIM

Dodged 40-Rod Revenge and Took the "Private Stock."

POLICE NOT AT ALL ANNOYED

Brooklyn Street Full of Firing, but They Didn't Know It Till Some One Broke It to Them Gently.

Equipped with masks and fastidious thirsts, three bold burglars broke into the saloon of Otto Henicke, at Bogart and Stagg Streets, Brooklyn, yesterday morning and, holding up the proprietor and his wife, at the points of revolvers, ransacked the place, drank with Henicke, and then departed, "shooting up" the neighborhood in true Western style as they went.

All this was done without any annoyance to the police, and it was not until some time later that a citizen went to the Stagg Street Station House, two blocks away, and prodded up the Sergeant to tell him about it.

Henicke's saloon is near the murky waters of Newtown Creek, where a policeman on the street after midnight is not a monotonously frequent sight. In a bedroom in the rear of the saloon Henicke, his wife, and their six-year-old daughter were sleeping, when Mrs. Henicke was awakened by a sound of voices.

In the saloon Heincke was confronted by three big men, all heavily masked and each exhibiting a pistol.

"Say, you, just elevate your meathooks and keep your face closed," commanded the leader of the trio, pushing the muzzle of his gun under Henicke's nose. Dazed by the unexpected meeting, the saloon keeper did not obey at once, and was promptly knocked down by a blow on the head. There was a scream, and, looking up, the cracksmen saw Mrs. Henicke standing in the doorway.

"Hey, Bill, shut off that squeal, quick," ordered the leader.

"Bill" and the third burglar went into the bedroom and by threatening Mrs. Henicke with their pistols compelled her to keep quiet. They then ransacked the room, getting $83 in money, a gold watch, a finger ring, and a bank book. When they returned to the saloon Henicke was ordered to get up from the floor.

"Set up the best you've got. Three straight whiskies, and the house is blowing," said the leader, with a laugh.

Seeing a chance for revenge, Henicke put out a bottle of 40-rod "Pride of Newtown Creek," intended only for heavily insulated throats. With a jiu jitsu-like movement, the leader of the cracksmen got a half-Nelson on the bottle and took a taste of about four and one-half fingers' measurement.

"Hey, you," he ordered, sliding the bottle back across the bar, "chase that gasoline back to the garage and hand out something with velvet on it."

Much chagrined, Henicke took a bottle of "private stock" from the case and pushed it over.

"Be sociable and have some yourself," suggested the leader.

After taking three drinks of the "best in the house," the cracksmen, warning Henicke not to make an outcry, went out by the side door. Getting a pistol from a drawer, Henicke ran out and blazed away at them as they were going down the street. Turning, the trio fired several shots at the saloon keeper. The bullets smashed the plate glass window panes, but Henicke was unhurt. The burglars then walked leisurely away.

Everybody in the neighborhood, excepting the police, was awakened by the shooting. After a while a man went to the Stagg Street Police Station, two blocks away, and gently broke the news to the Sergeant at the desk. The reserves rushed up to Henicke's saloon and breathlessly asked him if he could identify the burglars. Henicke thought he might identify them, but insisted that they be first caught.

THINKS BOSTON SCHOOLS ARE BEHIND NEW YORK

Educator Hartwell Says Lock-Step Prevails There, Too.

WOULD PROMOTE BY SUBJECTS

Thinks Dr. Shearer's Articles Will Help to Do Away with Evil of Averaging Pupils.

The assertion made in yesterday's TIMES by Dr. William J. Shearer, Superintendent of Schools of Elizabeth, N. J., that New York's schools are intellectual treadmills aroused much interest in educational circles.

Charles S. Hartwell, Secretary of the Schoolmasters' Association of New York and vicinity, who has contributed many articles to magazines on educational topics that have attracted attention, declared Dr. Shearer's article timely. It particularly interested Mr. Hartwell because it discussed a condition of affairs which he has for years tried to have the educational authorities remedy by promoting pupils by subjects and not by grades.

"In the main Dr. Shearer's article is excellent and to the point," said Mr. Hartwell. "Being the first of a series, it is possible that he will undertake to tell Dr. Maxwell just how to remedy conditions. Both the new annual report of Dr. Maxwell and the previous one show that he is thoroughly alive to the evils incident to a mighty system. The Associate Superintendents in the past year have shown by various reports that they are also active. I happen to know that when the appendix to Dr. Maxwell's report is issued there will be figures of the highest importance, which I am sure will please Dr. Shearer.

"Supt. Stevens has been carrying on an investigation which will be most productive. It is folly for the public, however, to get the idea that New York is the only city where there are pupils of abnormal age. Dr. William H. Allen, General Agent of the New York Society for the Improvement of the Condition of the Poor, wrote to me last week: 'Boston has a larger percentage of children of abnormal age than New York. Less than one-fourth of first-year High School pupils reach the fourth year.' I visited the Girls' High School in Boston in February, and found that it promoted only once a year. All New York schools promote twice a year, so when pupils fail it is not so bad for them as in Boston.

"An elementary school Principal of this city told me last week that he made it a special point to advance pupils any month in the term when satisfied that the pupils could do the advanced work. I am inclined to think there is much more elasticity in elementary schools than in High Schools, and I wish that a pupil who fails in a High School might be allowed to drop his best subject and take both advanced and review work in his weak subject instead of being obliged to spend a whole term in making up oftentimes a deficiency of only 3 or 4 per cent.

"Promotion by subjects, which has just been introduced into several High Schools in this city, and the special programmes which are being made in greater numbers in schools which still promote under the old lock-step system, will help to bring about a better state in the High Schools. Promotion by subjects is fair to both the bright pupil and the dull one, and is directly in line with what Dr. Shearer demands. It is already noticed in schools where it has been introduced that the study periods are better used by the pupils.

"President Eliot of Harvard University recently wrote me these words: 'We have reaped now in the public school system all the benefits of system and uniformity, and it is high time to superinduce in American schools the opposite benefits of flexibility and variety.' He also gave as one of three fundamental things for the improvement of educational conditions up to the age of eighteen, 'the advancement of the individual pupils by subject and not by the year or half year.' These words I am sure will suit Dr. Shearer.

"The New York system must see to it that no pupil is kept back simply by the machinery of classification. Seating and statistics are of little importance compared with the right of each pupil to do fresh work. The repeating system, under which pupils have gone over subjects in which they had passed simply to keep even with subjects in which they have not passed, is already doomed. Dr. Shearer's articles will help drive the nails into its coffin."

FOLLOWS HER SON IN DEATH.

Mrs. Bergen and Her Husband Caught Pneumonia from Him.

Mrs. Julia Graves Bergen, who died of pneumonia in St. Luke's Hospital last Sunday night, was kept in ignorance of her son's death last Tuesday night, and also of the grave condition of her husband, the Rev. George S. Bergen. The latter was very ill yesterday, and his recovery is doubtful.

Ernest G. Bergen, the son of the couple, who was a lawyer with an office at 35 Nassau Street, became ill of pneumonia two weeks ago. Both father and mother attended him. Mrs. Bergen contracted the disease and was removed to St. Luke's one week ago yesterday. Her son was buried at Princeton last Friday. On Saturday Mr. Bergen became ill with the same disease and was taken to St. Luke's. Until the time of her death messages were sent to Mrs. Bergen from Mr. Bergen purporting to come from their home at 162 West Ninety-sixth Street.

SIMPLE SPELLERS START WITH 300 PRUNED WORDS

They Want to Avoid Scaring People at First.

NOT REFORMERS, THEY INSIST

Col. Sprague Thinks Many Persons Object to the Term—Some Publishers and Editors Enlisted.

With its coffers filled and with Andrew Carnegie ready to give more money when the present supply runs low, the Simplified Spelling Board will straightway set about spreading the propaganda of plain spelling. Though celebrities have consented to lend the lustre of their names, the Executive Committee will do the actual work. It has already begun by taking an office in the Metropolitan Life Building, 1 Madison Avenue.

The members of the Executive Committee are Brander Matthews, Dr. Charles P. Scott, Dr. William Hayes Ward, Henry Holt, Dr. Isaac K. Funk, and Col. Charles E. Sprague, President of the Union Dime Savings Institution. Col. Sprague is Treasurer of the board.

The first step will be the sending out of 300 words simply spelled. These will not be revolutionary in their appearance. The Simplified Spelling Board does not wish to shock the public. Its first recommendations will consist of forms that have already been used to some extent, like thru, (through,) tho, (though,) catalog, (catalogue,) and past, (passed,) and of forms which, though unfamiliar to the ordinary citizen, have been passed on and declared fit by philological associations.

It is significant that the name of the new organization that draws its inspiration from Andrew Carnegie does not contain the word "reform," either as noun, adjective, verb, or any other part of speech. The omission was by design. Col. Sprague said so last night.

Might Object to "Reform."

"We were very careful not to put anything about 'reform' in the name," he said. "A man might say: 'I'm against reform,' and he'd get some sympathy. But it doesn't sound so well to say, 'I'm against simplification.' The word 'reform' is not so well loved as it might be. Some men have a congenital opposition to reform—they have that 'agin' the government' spirit—and they just don't like the word."

Except for the money-backed organization there is nothing new about the attempt to change the spelling of English words. Dr. Francis A. March has led the fight in recent years. Less than a month ago he talked to the Lafayette Alumni at the St. Regis and predicted that the spelling millennium would come, whether he lived to see it or not.

Publishers and editors, members of the Simplified Spelling Board, have agreed to adopt the new forms. Henry Holt will use them so far as his authors permit, but if they insist that the "old" spelling be used in their books, then the publisher will give in. Many newspaper editors, too, it was said last night, have joined in.

"As soon as there is established authority for simple spelling," Col. Sprague said, "then people will not be afraid of being considered ignorant when they use the new form. If a man writes a letter to you now and uses g-i-v instead of g-i-v-e, you don't know whether he is ignorant or a spelling reformer. It will be different when recognized authorities have given their sanction to the new method.

Dislikes Those "ie" Words.

"When a man was talking to me about this matter the other day, he said to me: 'I wish you would drop the "i" out of believe, and receive, and deceive, and all those "ie" words.' That is not one of the changes already decided on, but I'm inclined to be in favor of it. That 'i' in words of that kind has no value, and might as well be left out. It has neither historical nor etymological significance, and its presence is ruinous to some persons' spelling. If believe were spelled 'beleve,' I think it would be a good change.

"We are going about the simplification gradually, and are not trying to startle or shock anybody. There was an editorial in an afternoon paper rather unfavorable to our plan, but it did not strike me as being very forceful. The funny man hasn't jumped on us yet—he will begin about the end of the week. Of course we look for all that, and are prepared to stand it.

"One criticism of simplified spelling is that it destroys the history of the language—that it is not consistent with etymology. The best answer to that is that those who so criticise are not usually great etymologists, while at the front of the simple spelling movement you find the greatest etymologists and philologists in the land. There is Dr. March of Lafayette, for instance. He is perhaps the leading philologist in this country now, and he has devoted a great part of his life to trying to introduce simple spelling."

Dr. Isaac K. Funk, one of the editors of the Standard Dictionary, has already begun to give currency to the new forms. For instance, "giv" and "givn" appear in the Standard in just as black type as "give" and "given," though for the meaning of the words the reader is referred to the more familiar forms. In the word "infinitive" the final e is separated from the rest of the word by a single parenthesis mark, which means that "the joint rules of the Philological Societies require the dropping of the letter." The word "slapt" appears, with the definition as "slapped," and it is the same way with "tho" and "thru."

Some New Forms Proposed.

Among the new forms advocated by the Simplified Spelling Board are program, infinitiv, definit, cigaret, coquet, slapt, mapt, deth, welth, tung, stelth, and wisht.

Here follows part of some resolutions passed by the Missouri Press Association several years ago. The form of the resolutions is chiefly valuable as showing lengths to which the Simplified Spelling Board will not go, at present, anyhow:

"Hweraz the iregyularitiz ov Inglish orthografi ar a great obstacl in the progres ov the pepl; and,

"Hweraz silent leterz alone ad about 25 per cent. tu the cost ov ol riting and printing,

"Therefor, be it resolvd by the misuri editorz, in convenshun asembled, that

"We heartili simpathiz with the ernest eforts hwich ar being put forth tu simplifi Inglish orthografi, and,

"We wil aid and encureg wun anuther tu begin and mak such gradjual changes in speling az ar recommended bi the American Filological Asoshiashun and bi the Speling Reform Asoshiashun."

INSULT, SAYS TILLMAN.

He Tells Senate President's Last Message Was Light and Flippant.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Senator Tillman declared in the Senate to-day that President Roosevelt's message, concerning the Tillman-Gillespie resolution instructing the Inter-State Commerce Commission to make examination of railroad discriminations in coal and oil rates, was an insult to the Senate.

The message, which condemned the resolution on the ground that its purpose was not specific, was sent to the desk by Mr. Tillman an reread. The President, after signing the resolution, asked for additional legislation to make it effective.

"I deprecate the necessity of criticising this most extraordinary document," said Mr. Tillman. "Fate has enlisted me as an ally of the President in getting an adequate railway rate bill, and I regret very much to have anything come up which would occasion any disruption of the amicable relations that now exist, or appear to exist between us."

This statement was greeted with smiles and chuckles from other Senators. Continuing, Mr. Tillman said: "But there are some things that as a Senator I cannot put up with patiently." He said that the Executive contempt and ridicule of the resolution seemed to charge that he had been ignorant of what he was doing in offering the resolution." Now that is going a great way in a very little while. That is a pretty big contract the President has taken on himself to justify such a sweeping charge," he said. The resolution, Mr. Tillman said, was now a law. He read from the Inter-State Commerce act to prove that the commission has the means and authority to make the investigation. "The commission has as much authority to carry out the instructions,' he said, "as we could give it if we passed a resolution every day for the next twelve months. There can be no good reason for the President to scold us in a manner that is almost insulting by charging us with insincerity, pretense, and ignorance. The only reason I can see is that he must have been miserably advised. I am not a lawyer, only a farmer, but I have better common sense than that." He closed with a protest against the President "lightly and flippantly" insulting the Senate. He said he could pardon many things on account of the great burdens on the President and because of his impetuosity.

Senators Lodge and Spooner defended the President, and after remarks by Mr. Bacon in support of the resolution the discussion was dropped.

CULBERSON AGAINST BAILEY.

Does Not Believe in Democratic Leader's Court Review Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Senator Culberson made his speech on the Railway Rate bill in the Senate to-day. He showed that he does not stand with his colleague, Mr. Bailey, in urging an amendment that would restrict the jurisdiction of Federal courts so that an interlocutory decree may not be employed to suspend the operation of a new rate pending the decision by the courts whether a new rate is confiscatory or not. Senator Culberson holds that the carriers would have the appeal to the courts without any language in the law.

His main argument was designed to show from decisions of the Supreme Court that Congress has the power to fix rates and could delegate the power.

CUSTOMER GOT HIS $1,714.

Tailor Cohen Did Not Lock Safe After Changing $20 Bill.

Charles Cohen, tailor, of 706 Third Avenue, is $1,714 poorer to-day because he forgot to close the door of his safe when he made change for a $20 bill early last night. It was some hours after the departure of the man whom he accuses of robbing him before Cohen discovered his loss. He rushed to the East Fifty-first Street Station and told the police that a man who gave his name as Harry Isaacs walked into his store early in the evening and ordered a suit.

Cohen asked for a deposit and the man tendered a $20 bill for $5 deposit. Cohen opened his safe and gave $15 back and neglected to close the safe door. The stranger lingered, interested in watching Cohen at work cutting. Finally he departed. Cohen counted up his money some hours later.

STANDARD OIL BOYCOTT SHUT OUT INDEPENDENTS

Tore Out Pipe Lines and Put Screws on Roads, Witness Says.

OIL 52C.; FREIGHT RATE 57C.

Freight Agent of the M., K. & T. Admits Standard's Man Was Present When Roads Raised Rates.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 12.—Three members of the Inter-State Commerce Commission began an investigation here to-day into charges made by independent oil producers of Kansas that the railroads of Kansas discriminate in favor of the Standard Oil Company in the matter of oil rates outside that State. The charges were first filed with Commissioner of Corporations Garfield.

The petition on which the investigation was begun says the Standard Oil Company is able to secure discriminating rates in its favor by reason of the fact that it controls a great many railroad systems and owns pipe lines.

A. F. Robertson of Cherryvale, Kan., was the first witness. He is a member of the Kansas Oil Producers' Association and the principal witness. He testified that while the rate on oil from Cherryvale to Atchison and Leavenworth, near the Missouri State line, was 10 cents, it was 17 cents to Missouri points. Prior to this advance to 17 cents, which, he said, was made in 1904, the Kansas independents had a market outside the State, but since then they had no market. Robertson said that when in 1904 the railroads raised the rate on oil outside of Kansas, they made no raise in the rate on other commodities.

Robertson said that the Standard Oil Company began a boycott of all the Kansas field Feb. 10, 1905, tore out all pipe line connections with independent producers, and issued orders to purchase no oil from them. After that they had no market.

Robertson testified that the railroad rate from Caney, Kan., to Bartlesville, Indian Territory, a distance of sixty-one miles, prior to the building of the pipe line by the Standard Oil Company, was 12 cents and was reduced to 5 cents while the pipe line was being constructed. After its completion the railroad rate was put up to 19 cents and it stands there to-day. The 19-cent rate makes the rate from the well to the refinery 5 cents a barrel more than the top price paid for crude oil in Kansas or Indian Territory. The top price paid for oil is 52 cents a barrel, while the freight upon a barrel would be 57 cents, according to Robertson.

Mr. Robertson, cross-examined by W. R. Smith, attorney for the Santa Fé Railroad, admitted that fraud charges had been preferred against his company, principally that it was overcapitalized, and that the assets were not sufficient.

F. A. Leland, general freight agent of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway, told in reply to questions of a meeting at St. Louis in 1904 of the traffic managers of the Missouri Pacific, the Santa Fé, the 'Frisco, and his road, to consider raising the oil rate from Kansas. He said that Mr. Borgardus, traffic manager of the Standard Oil Company, was present, but he did not recall that any of the independent oil refiners of Kansas had been asked to attend. After the meeting he was informed that the rate was to be changed from 10 cents to 17 cents from Kansas points to Kansas City, Mo. He said he did not know if any of the Rockefellers were upon the Directorate of his road, but thought they had been.

Mr. Leland testified that on an oil rate of 15 cents a hundred pounds from the Kansas oil fields to St. Louis there was a profit of 2 cents.

SPECIAL COUNSEL RETAINED.

Commerce Commission Begins Coal and Oil Investigation.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The Inter-State Commerce Commission, in compliance with the Tillman-Gillespie resolution to investigate alleged discriminations in railroad rates in freight and oil, has, as a preliminary measure, selected Edward B. Whitney of New York and William A. Glasgow, Jr., of Philadelphia as special counsel. The inquiry will cover traffic to tidewater and to the interior as well, hence, it is said, hearings will be held both in the East and the Middle West as well as in Washington.

Mr. Whitney is a Yale graduate, a classmate of Secretary Taft, and has been a member of the New York State bar since 1888. He was a United States Assistant Attorney General from 1893 to 1897, and has taken part in the argument in the Supreme Court in cases coming under the Inter-State Commerce law as well as the income tax and other cases.

Mr. Glasgow has been counsel for the commission in cases in the Supreme Court. Both attorneys were in conference to-day with Chairman Knapp of the commission.

CITY BREVITIES.

There will be a talk on "Whitman" at the National Arts Club on Wednesday evening, March 21, by Mrs. Amy Grant.

The Rev. Dr. S. M. Zwemer will speak on "The Mohammedan World" next Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the South Reformed Church, Madison Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street. The meeting is in the interest of the Arabian mission. Dr. Zwemer will sail for Egypt on March 17.

The Thirteen Club, which defies all sorts of superstition, will have a dinner at the Port Arthur Restaurant in Chinatown to-night. The members will eat foo yong har, chicken chow main, mo kwo gai long, and lots of other things they don't know anything about but are willing to try. Bird S. Coler will talk to the club on "American Superstitions."

The Purim ball, which is one of the chief sources of the income of the Beth Israel Hospital, is to be held at the Madison Square Garden to-morrow night. The amount so far realized from the sale of tickets is $15,000.

CHINESE AT WHITE HOUSE.

Envoys Call on the President and Secretary Root.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Secretary Root to-day received by appointment at the State Department the Chinese Commissioners, Shang Chi-Heng, ex-Governor of the Shantung Province; Duke Tsai Tse, and Li Shengto.

In the course of the informal conversation which followed the exchange of courtesies, Secretary Root made the prediction that a century hence China would be furnishing a greater portion of the world's supply of iron.

At 2:30 o'clock the visitors were presented to President Roosevelt by the Chinese Minister. The presentation was entirely informal. The President expressed his interest in the mission of his visitors, and through Sir Liang had a pleasant chat with them.

The Chinese Commissioners, accompanied by the Chinese Minister, three of his staff, and a retinue of servants, arrived last night from Washington at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, where they immediately retired to their apartments. This morning they will take a ride in Central Park, and possibly through the lower part of the city. The afternoon will be devoted to business. In the evening the party will be the guests of the Chinese Merchants' Association in Mott Street, and after the dinner will attend the performance at the Hippodrome.

AID ACCUSED DYNAMITERS.

Socialist and Labor Bodies to Hold Meeting of Protest.

Under the auspices of the Central Federated Union, Socialist Party, and about 120 other labor organizations, a "protest mass meeting" against the alleged extradition, imprisonment, and "intended murder" of Messrs. Moyer, Haywood, and other officers of the Western Federation of Miners by the Ohio and Colorado authorities will be held at the Grand Central Palace at 8 o'clock this evening. The speakers will be Ben Hanford, author of "Labor War in Colorado"; Morris Hilquitt, "Mother" Jones, Sol Diledman, Abram Cahan, editor of Forward; Meyer London, Alexander Jonas, and John C. Chase, ex-Mayor of Haverhill, Mass.

GALLOPS AT GRAVESEND.

Lively Work of the Horses in Face of a Blustering March Wind.

In the face of a rather uncomfortable wind the trainers at Gravesend track did considerable work yesterday in preparing their horses for the season's campaign, particularly for the opening meeting at Benning one week from next Monday. No very speedy work was done, but enough was shown to indicate that the thoroughbreds are fast getting into condition. When the first of the metropolitan meetings opens at Aqueduct on April 16, it is almost assured that the horsemen will be ready.

The horses of Newton Bennington were among the first to appear on the track yesterday. De Mund, which is evidently intended for the Aqueduct meeting, stepped a quarter quite handily in 0:25. Clara Duncan and the 3-year-old Cinna of which much was expected last season, but which failed to make good under silks, stepped a quarter together in 0:24¼ after De Mund left the track, the 3-year-old finishing slightly in front.

Goldmate and Charade each turned 440 yards in 0:24¼, and Ellicot and Eastin did the same distance in 0:24¾. Yankee's Sister was a bit quick of foot. She shaded Eastin's time by half a second.

Waterbearer, the three-year-old maiden by Watercress, which spent the greater part of last Summer and very nearly all the Winter as well at John Hynes's Connecticut nursery, galloped three furlongs in 0:39. Waterbearer is decidedly an impressive-looking colt, and it is safe to bet that he will next season run to the promise of his two-year-old trials. Edna Jackson, Reliable's full sister, which won so many valuable filly stakes last Summer, was permitted to run a bit faster than Waterbearer. She turned her three furlongs in 0:38.

"Father Bill" Daly's colt Warning, which appeared on the track about 10 o'clock, stepped the quickest three-quarters seen all Spring. He had a good, big chunk of a boy up, too. Breaking in the front stretch, Warning, which was full of snap and ginger, stepped off his first furlong in 0:12, his quarter in 0:24, the three-eighths in 0:36½, the half in 0:49½, the five-eighths in 1:02⅓, finishing the three-quarters in the backstretch in 1:16 flat. The six furlongs finished, Warning's boy took up and the colt galloped out seven-eighths in 1:31¼.

Whimsical, which has wintered fairly well, showed Tim Gaynor a half in 0:54½. The big daughter of Orlando, which won all hearts by her gameness and consistency last season, is in royal condition. Spangle turned a quarter in 0:27, while Argentina and the Aloha colt galloped at a two-minute clip. Tom Welch's whole string was out in mixed lots, but nothing swift was asked of any of his horses. Merry Lark, Inquisitor, Bull's Eye, and Duenna each breezed three-eighths in 0:43½.

Billy Banastar turned five-eighths in 1:07, and the some time Western plater, Robador, galloped three furlongs in 0:40 for Rob Boyle. Robador wanted to run faster.

GARDNER TAKES FIRST GAME.

Passaic Player Defeats Wright in National Amateur Billiard Tournament.

CHICAGO, March 12.—The sixth annual tournament of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players opened to-night in the gymnasium of the Chicago Athletic Association, with a game between Edward W. Gardner of Passaic, N. J., and Harry A. Wright of San Francisco. Gardner won by a score of 300 to 206. The style of play in the tournament is fourteen-inch balk line, two shots in. It took forty-five innings for Gardner to run out 300 points, making his average 6⅔, while his opponent had an average of only 4 15-22. Gardner's high run was 38, and Wright's 32.

Neither of the men played up to the form shown in practice during the past few days, though the fact that the balls are lighter than those to which they are accustomed perhaps affected the playing. The balls have been in stock for a number of years, and it is said they are the lightest ever used in a National amateur tournament, weighing a trifle under 7 ounces each. Wright, who has never played in a National competition before, appeared nervous and was unable to get his stroke. Gardner was cool and deliberate in his playing, being able to get out of difficult positions.

The second game will be played to-morrow afternoon between Norris and Poggenburg.

Cigars that sell themselves are good cigars to buy.

Perhaps the best proof of the kind of cigars I offer you is the fact that they must and do sell themselves.

If you order a hundred cigars on approval from me I allow you to smoke ten at my risk.

I depend upon that ten to sell the hundred. Then I depend upon that first hundred to sell the second hundred, and so on. There is no salesman to urge them upon you—nothing but the cigars themselves—they must stand on their own merits. Now, you can readily see that when my cigars must sell themselves I have to make those cigars as good as I possibly can.

That is the only way I could make a success of this business.

The cigars do sell themselves, and I have made a success of my plan of selling cigars from factory to smoker at wholesale prices.

In one week recently my repeat orders amounted to over one hundred thousand cigars.

The quality of the cigars did it.

If you would like to try some of these cigars and incidentally save yourself 50% on retail prices, I make you the following offer:

Shivers' Panatela EXACT SIZE AND SHAPE

MY OFFER IS: I will, upon request, send one hundred Shivers' Panatela Cigars on approval to a reader of THE TIMES, express prepaid. He may smoke ten cigars and return the remaining ninety at my expense if he is not pleased with them; if he is pleased, and keeps them, he agrees to remit the price, $5.00, within ten days.

Simply enclose business card, or give personal references, and state whether mild, medium or strong cigars are wanted.

"Cravenette"
Raincoats
$10.00

Not ordinary $10 Raincoats, but Raincoats that at $15 or $18 would only be fairly priced, tailored for us during dull season by one of the largest exclusive raincoat concerns in America.

TAILORING is the most important feature of a Raincoat, next to the material, and as only raincoat experts built these garments we can warrant them to hold the shape until worn out, a guarantee that goes with very few raincoats even though they cost considerably more.

Fronts and shoulders are built with shrunk linen and French haircloth, thus insuring permanence of shape.

MATERIALS expressly woven for raincoats are neat, handsome, worsteds in plain and Herringbone weaves, and all wool black Thibets.

MODELS are extremely full and boxy, 72 inch sweep; cut 52 inches long; distinguishing points are new, angular lapels; deep centre extended vent; snug fitting collar and broad, shapely shoulders.

IN EVERY respect MATERIAL, TAILORING and STYLE these garments would be first class values at $15 or $18. Your choice at $10 each.

COLUMBIA HAS A SET-BACK.

Baseball Field Not Ready and Four Games May Be Canceled.

Columbia's baseball team has received a severe set-back through the failure of the proper authorities to get the diamond on South Field in shape for outdoor practice this week. Capt. W. E. Tilt explained that he had appealed to have the field fixed so that he could get the men out as soon as possible, but apparently no attention has been paid to the requests. In fact, the employes of the university have been busy during the past few days spreading fertilizers all over the field, with the result that a month or more would be required even to get the ground in condition for playing, not taking into consideration the time required to lay out a diamond.

What the Columbia tossers are going to do without a diamond is the hardest problem which Coach Lauder and Capt. Tilt are likely to stumble across this season. No other fields which are convenient for practice are available, and added to this is the further difficulty that four games have already been scheduled for South Field: Polytechnic Institute on March 28, Stevens Institute on the 31st, Pratt Institute on April 4, and New York University on April 7. The Blue and White nine is very reluctant about canceling these games, but without a field this result seems inevitable.

AUTO RACING BOARD MAY MEET THIS WEEK

Advices on Changes Awaited from W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr.

COMMITTEE NEARLY CHOSEN

E. R. Thomas Requests That Unbiased Members Be Appointed—Will Enter Three New Cars in Contest.

A meeting of the new Racing Board of the American Automobile Association may be looked for within a few days. The new Chairman, Jefferson De Mont Thompson, has been carefully considering the personnel of his committee since his appointment last week at the Directors' meeting of the American Automobile Association. Mr. Thompson has selected two or three members, but he stated yesterday that he did not care to mention the names until the committee is entirely made up.

Mr. Thompson and S. M. Butler, Secretary of the Automobile Club of America, are anxiously awaiting some word from William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., regarding the coming race. Nothing definite has yet been heard from him since the receipt of his cablegram, some time ago, stating that the race would be held in America. The possibility of changing certain conditions in the conduct of the race was discussed with Mr. Vanderbilt before his departure for Europe, and his ideas on these matters were to be communicated to the new Racing Committee after his conference with the French automobile officials. If the necessary information is not received within a few days, the officers of the Automobile Club will probably send Mr. Vanderbilt a cable, asking if he has any new conditions requiring the attention of the committee.

Automobilists interested in the success of the race realize that something should be done at once. No announcement has yet been made concerning the time for the closing of entries. Last year this announcement and other conditions were fully known in January. The time for receiving entries was extended to May 15, and if the same conditions prevail this year, the committee has scarcely two months in which to get everything in readiness.

A number of manufacturers are making new and high-powered cars for the race, and they have been anxious to know when their cars will be required to appear before the Technical Committee, if, indeed, there is to be a separate committee of that nature this year. Mr. Thompson realizes that unnecessary delay will not receive any excuses at this late date, and he has expressed his desire to hold a meeting of his committee as soon as possible, so that a formal statement regarding the Vanderbilt Cup race may be made.

Notwithstanding the recent requests from E. R. Thomas of Buffalo, to the effect that no member of the new Racing Committee should be interested in any way in the manufacture of automobiles, it is known that this view was entertained by President John Farson of the American Automobile Association before the latter's election. The committee last year included several members who were commercially interested in the sale or manufacture of automobiles, and this fact was intensified to the detriment of the committee when the selection of the American team was made, after the elimination race. While nothing definite can be told regarding the new committee's policy in the forthcoming elimination race, it is believed that the five leading cars will be accepted as the American team.

Mr. Thomas announced yesterday from Buffalo that, although disappointed in being eliminated from the contest after the Thomas car had qualified among the five leaders, he would be among the competitors again this season. He stated that three new racing cars are now under construction. They will be from 100 to 120 horse power, and all will be entered in the elimination race. Arrangements are being made to secure three of the best racing chauffeurs in the country to drive the cars.

BLIZZARD STOPS GIANTS.

Regular Practice Had to be Abandoned Owing to a Storm.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 12.—This section of the sunny South was visited to-day by a blizzard which caused a change in plans of Manager McGraw. The usual practice in the forenoon and afternoon was abandoned. Instead, spirited work was substituted, commencing at 11 A. M. and ending at 1:30 P. M. Bases were run, and squads divided themselves into separate teams, which went at each other in earnest.

Arthur Devlin again reported to the manager to-day. Devlin was here last week, but disappeared mysteriously. He said that he had business of a private nature in Washington, and refused to deny or affirm rumors that his reported venture in matrimony had been performed. The arrival of Devlin completes the Giants' line-up with the exception of George Browne, the fast outfielder. A telegram was received by McGraw to-day, stating that Browne's wife had recovered sufficiently so that his arrival is expected any day.

The biggest game of the New Yorks' training year will take place to-morrow, weather permitting. The "Cordovas" and "Clarendons" will meet. The teams are selected from the ranks of Giants stopping at the respective hotels. "Christy" Mathewson, the star twirler, has been on the sick list and will not be a member of either team. "Matty" has contracted an aggravating cold. He has been attended by a specialist. His arm, he says, is in good condition, and he denies reports of his having been injured in a football game, in which his valuable right wing asset was said to have suffered.

Gilbert, the only other member of the hospital list, expects to get in the game to-morrow. He will play with the "Cordovas."

BROOKLYNS GO SOUTH.

Manager Donovan and Seven Players Leave for Columbia, S. C.

Manager P. J. Donovan and seven players of the Brooklyn Baseball Club left the Pennsylvania Railroad Station at 3:15 yesterday, en route to their training ground at Columbia, S. C. If nothing should befall them they will arrive at their destination at noon to-day. In the party besides Manager Donovan were Batch, who will be used as a utility man this year; Bergen and Butler, catchers; Jordan, the first baseman who was secured from the Baltimore Club; Eason, pitcher, and Maloney and Lumley, outfielders. At Washington the party will be reinforced by Alperman, a third baseman; Bell and Pastorious, pitchers; Gessler, Lewis, and Hummel.

According to present plans the team will remain at Columbia until March 20, when they will leave for Augusta, Ga., playing in that city on the afternoon of that day and the day following. Returning to Columbia the Brooklyns will meet the Detroit team of the American League on March 28 and 29, and the Charlestons of the Southern League on the 30th and 31st. After these games Donovan will take his men back to Columbia, where they will stay until their return North. Then the schedule reads: April 6 and 7, Danville, Va.; 8, lay over at Washington; 9, Washington American League Club, and 10, Baltimore Club of the Eastern League. On April 12 the Brooklyns will open the championship season at Washington Park with Boston.

With a pitching and catching staff entirely satisfactory to the management, the balance of the team is likely to be made up in this way: Jordan or Gessler, first base; Hummel, second base; Casey, third base; Lewis, shortstop; Maloney, left field; McCarthy, centre field; Lumley, right field.

Before leaving for the South yesterday Manager Donovan expressed himself as being extremely pleased with the prospects, and predicted that the Brooklyns would do much better than last year. He is confident that both Scanlon and Briggs, pitchers, will be with the team before the championship season begins.

PILOT BALLOON FOUND.

But Aero Club Hears Nothing of Big "Ship"—New One to be Ordered.

Word was received at the headquarters of the Aero Club of America in the rooms of the Automobile Club of America, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street, last night that the pilot balloon sent up from Pittsfield last Saturday afternoon to test the direction of the wind had been found. The balloon was sent up while the two big ones were preparing for their double ascension, which did not take place, owing to the high wind.

The pilot balloon was discovered Sunday afternoon near the maple sugar house on Alden M. Curtis's farm at Worthington, Mass. This place is about sixteen miles from Pittsfield, almost due east. Mr. Alden, in a letter to the club, said that the balloon was caught upon a small tree. A tag was attached to it, asking the finder to notify the club and a reward of $5 would be sent to him. Mr. Alden asked for information, as he wished to know what the little balloon had been sent up for, evidently not having had the benefit of the newspapers telling of the elaborate plans for a big ascension at Pittsfield.

Cortlandt Field Bishop said yesterday that nothing had been heard from Leo Stevens's balloon that broke away from its fastenings Saturday night. He has little hope of ever hearing where it went to. The Aero Club, notwithstanding its loss, has taken steps to secure another balloon, and Mr. Bishop said that the new one would probably be ordered from Paris within a short time.

Olympic Team at Thirteenth's Games.

The last appearance in the East of the Olympic team which is to represent the United States at Athens will be at the games of the Thirteenth Regiment of Brooklyn, to be held on the evening of March 24. Schick, the champion sprinter of Harvard, will meet Hillman in a 100-yard dash, and Bonhag of the Twenty-second Regiment will race Cohn and Spring in a long-distance event. The feature event will be the medley relay race between teams from the Twenty-second and Thirteenth Regiments. The first man will run 220 yards, the second a quarter of a mile, the third a half mile, and the last man a mile. It is a military ground-relay affair in which the Thirteenth, Twenty-second, and Twenty-third Regiments will compete. The first race will be at the Twenty-third games on Saturday and the final contest is scheduled for the Twenty-second games on March 26.

Slosson Practicing at Saratoga.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., March 12.—George Slosson, the billiard expert of New York, is practicing at the Saratoga Club here for his match with Willie Hoppe for the billiard championship of the world. They will meet at the Grand Central Palace in New York on March 27. Slosson brought here his own table, which has been temporarily installed in the clubhouse, where the expert is working overtime, meeting local and out-of-town crack billiardists.

FENCERS GOING ABROAD FOR INTERNATIONAL CUP

J. Sanford Saltus Offers Valuable Trophy for Annual Contests.

FOUR AMERICANS SELECTED

First Meet to be Held in London in June—Foils and Dueling Swords to be Used.

An international fencing competition between the best swordsmen in England and the United States will be held this year, probably about the middle of June in London. The contest will be the first of its kind, but through the generous offer of a five-hundred-dollar silver cup by J. Sanford Saltus of this city to the Fencers' Club of New York, conditions have been drawn up and agreed to by the Amateur Fencing Association of London, thereby insuring annual international contests, provided, of course, that a challenge is sent to the country holding the trophy.

While this handsome cup was given to the Fencers' Club of this city, it was turned over by the latter organization to the Amateur Fencers' League of America and the Executive Committee of this National body has been conducting the negotiations with the English fencers. J. Coleman Drayton, previous to his departure for Europe several weeks ago, was made the foreign representative of the Fencers' League in this country. As a result of his conferences, the English clubs have agreed to the American plan of conducting the contest, which is to have each country represented by teams of six men each and to have these men meet in two contests, first competing with dueling swords and then with foils.

The foreigners are more adept with the dueling sword as that weapon has been used to a larger extent there than here in competitions. It was realized by the Americans at the outset that were the initial international meet to depend entirely upon dueling sword skill, the cup would remain abroad, probably for some time, and although the Londoners at first showed some hesitancy in accepting foils, their consent was finally given and definite news to this effect was received a few days ago by W. Scott O'Connor, Secretary of the Amateur Fencers' League.

The London fencing championships are held during the middle of June, and it has been suggested that the international Saltus Cup contest be held immediately after that event. Four Americans have already been selected by the committee to make the team. They are Charles Tatham, one of the best dueling swordsmen in this country and the National champion in 1901, 1902, and 1903; W. Scott O'Connor, the present dueling sword champion and an old-time holder of the championships in foils; Lieut. F. W. Honeycutt of West Point, and who, just before his graduation, was the intercollegiate champion, and Fitzhugh Townsend, who was champion in foils in 1900 and 1903. Others who have been invited to go are Dr. G. M. Hammond, Marshall R. Kernochan, James P. Parker, and S. Cabot, the last two of Boston. Several fencers who have been asked to be on the team find it impossible to arrange their time so as to go abroad, but it is believed that America will be able to send a very strong team of six. The four already selected indicate that their London opponents will have to be capable swordsmen, indeed, to win.

It had been the intention of Mr. Saltus to have the first event held in this city, in the rooms of the Fencers' Club. The London fencers replied that after canvassing the field, it was impossible to find a good team of six who could spare the time for an American trip. Rather than suffer a possible indefinite postponement, Mr. Saltus at once proposed that the cup be fenced for in London. Mr. Drayton's letters to President Hammond and Secretary O'Connor state that the Englishmen are highly pleased over the prospect of this international meeting, and they have promised royal entertainment to the American competitors. Capt. Alfred Hutton, President of the Amateur Fencing Association of London, has taken an active part in furthering the success of the coming international meet and he is now making arrangements to hold the competition in one of the leading clubs in London.

Mr. Saltus, the donor of the cup, is an old member of the Fencers' Club. He has been a liberal patron of fencing for several years. The Saltus medals have been offered for a number of years for novice competitions at the Fencers' Club, and this year he gave to the Fencers' Club a three-hundred-dollar silver cup for the encouragement of dueling-sword contests. This trophy will be competed for by teams of three men each, and the first contest will be held at the Fencers' Club, in the Windsor Arcade, Fifth Avenue, on April 14. Besides representatives from all of the local clubs, teams will be sent from Boston and Philadelphia.

CHAMPION HOPPE IN FORM.

Makes Run of 130 and Defeats Wilson P. Foss by 400 to 163.

Willie Hoppe, the world's champion billiardist, put in a busy day yesterday at his rooms and showed excellent form. He met C. T. Peterson in the afternoon, playing 18.1 balk line against Peterson's 18.2. The champion made a runaway contest and won by a score of 400 to 235. In the evening Hoppe had for his opponent Wilson P. Foss, the ex-amateur champion, the pair playing under the same conditions as those that prevailed in the afternoon game. The champion was in splendid form, and with a brilliantly made run of 130 scored his 400 points while Foss was collecting 163. The scores:

ZETTLER RIFLE CLUB SHOOT.

Good Scores Made Early in Seven-Day Tournament Contests.

The annual tournament shoot of the Zettler Rifle Club, in progress at the club range, 159 West Twenty-third Street, to continue until Saturday, has already produced some good scoring in spite of the disposition of some of the best-known shots to wait until the latter end of the tourney to see what marks are made before entering the competition. The events to be contested are four, all at seventy-five feet, at regulation targets, with twenty-two short cartridges. A special match will decide the ownership of the Zimmerman trophy, a handsome bronze plaque, donated by Gus Zimmerman, the club President, while for the championship 100-shot match a number of special prizes have been donated, including Stevens and Winchester rifles, the Peters gold trophy, a telescope, loving cup, and other similar offers, and a number of cash purses.

The 100-shot championship is shot at twenty-five ring targets, ¼-inch rings. With a possible 2,500 score, E. H. Van Zandt and G. F. Conti lead the present shooters with scores of 2,412 and 2,411, respectively. F. H. Keller, Jr., stands third with 2,368.

In the open ring target, re-entry match, three-shot targets, best three to count, 25 ⅛-inch rings are used. Two men so far have perfect scores of 75—R. Gute and E. H. Van Zandt. Others above 70 are M. Douler, 74; W. J. Zingsheim, 73; G. F. Conti, 73; Charles Mayer, 72. It is expected that the first five prizes will require three perfect targets to win, with possibly two or three 74s to back them up for first prize. Twenty prizes are offered, with three special five-target prizes.

For the Zimmerman trophy two 38 scores have been made. This is shot at the Zimmerman target, on which there are 13 ⅛-inch rings, surrounding a single slit ¼-inch long. The slit counts 13 if hit fairly. The 38 scores hit it twice, with one inner circle, counting 12.

Thirty prizes are offered for single bull's-eyes of three shots, best shot to count and to be actually measured by a delicate instrument. On this the best scores thus far are: R. Gute, 20½ degrees; H. L. Seckel, 20½; G. Ludwig, 23; Gus Zimmerman, 23; H. Fenwirth, 24½; G. Bernins, 29; F. H. Keller, 29.

Meadow Brook Hunting Season Opens.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., March 12.—The first drag hunt of the season was held to-day by the Meadow Brook Hunt Club. A large number of members took part, including several ladies. The meet was at Westbury, and when the hounds were put on the scent they ran easterly to New Castle, where there was a check. Then the trail circled to Woodbury, the finishing point. While the going was not of the best there were no casualties. P. F. Collier, master of the hounds, has arranged hunts daily, live hares to be chased on alternate days with drag hunts.

Among those in the saddle to-day were P. F. Collier, Samuel Willets, Samuel Welsor, Miss Caroline Bryce, Mrs. Wallach, Mrs. Cushing, Mr. Willets, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Duryea, Warner Baltazzi, Fred Okie, and William O. Hayes.

FREE GAMES ATTRACTIVE.

Boys of 83 Public Schools Enter Madison Square Garden Meet.

An army of boy athletes 1,390 strong have entered for the competitions of the novice free games that will be held next Saturday in the Madison Square Garden. This great number of youthful aspirants for track and field laurels represents eighty-three public schools enrolled in the Public Schools Athletic League. They include 280 teams, of which 75 are from the Borough of Brooklyn and 132 from the Borough of Manhattan, the others coming from the Boroughs of the Bronx, Richmond, and Queens. Each of the boroughs has sent the pick of its young athletes, and in a sense the games assume the prominence of an interborough contest.

Hundreds of novices have been attracted to enter for the various events on the long programme because of the abolition of all entrance fees and admissions. This is especially evident in the high school events, and the number of novice teams that will compete from each are:

Manhattan—De Witt Clinton, 6 teams; Commerce, 6; Stuyvesant, 6; City College High School, 6.

The Bronx—Morris, 6.

Brooklyn—Eastern District, 2; Normal Training, 8; Boys', 3; Commercial, 6; Erasmus Hall, 2.

Queens—Bryant, 6; Flushing, 1.

Richmond—Curtis, 1.

City College will send 5 teams for the interclass relay race. Of the elementary schools 27 have sent 4 teams and a majority of the rest will be represented by from 1 to 3 teams of little runners.

Gen. George W. Wingate, President of the league, when informed of the large entry lists, said: "So the league's party is to be a greater success even than was anticipated. Apparently our plan of doing away with entry fees and gate money is already justified. It is not alone the fact that 1,390 boys are entered which is significant. It must be remembered that we have succeeded by this plan in interesting 1,390 boys who have never won an event, and many of whom have never taken any part in games before. It means, moreover, that 1,390 boys have been certified to by their teachers as having done good school work and shown good deportment."

Penn Challenges Yale for Football.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 12.—It was stated here to-day that Yale had received a challenge from the University of Pennsylvania for a football game next Fall. This is the first time that football negotiations have been entered into between the two universities since relations were broken off by Yale in 1894 on the ground of alleged roughing on the part of Pennsylvania men. It is understood that a game may be arranged, providing Yale does not play Harvard as usual.

AMERICA'S CHANCES GOOD IN THE OLYMPIC GAMES

Should Defeat England on Form in Majority of Events.

SEVERAL CONTESTS CLOSE

British Athletes Outclassed in Weight Events and Jumps, but Strong on Track.

The Olympic games at Athens next month will bring together the most famous track and field performers in the world. Though all the leading European countries will be represented, experts believe the games will be in effect a dual meet between America and England. The Britons concede the superiority of America in the weights, and will devote their attention to the track events and jumps.

England's representative in the sprints will be J. W. Morton of the South London Harriers. He is a sure 10 seconds man. He will meet Archie Hahn, W. D. Eaton, W. A. Schick, G. H. Tueryrouze and F. R. Moulton, and if he is in form the Americans will find him a tough customer. Harry L. Hillman and W. A. Schick will face Lieut. Halswell of the Edinburgh Harriers. In the half-mile run K. Cornwallis of Oxford University is easily the fastest man in the world. His record is 1:54 1-5, or three seconds better than H. V. Valentine, the American entry. J. P. Sullivan and G. V. Bonhag will have their work cut out to win from Lieut. H. E. Hawtrey, J. Gough, and W. D. Anderson. Sullivan's best time is 4:23, but all three Englishmen are good for 4:20 or better. George V. Bonhag, W. Frank, and M. Spring are outclassed by the British runners in the five-mile run. A. R. Churchill and F. M. Edwards of Cambridge University and J. McGough, the Scotch champion and record holder, will run. The three Britishers can negotiate the distance under twenty-five minutes. Churchill and Edwards will also start in the Marathon race.

H. W. Kerrigan is two inches better than any Englishman in the jumps, but should C. Leahy of Charleville, the Irish champion, enter, it will be a close thing between him and Kerrigan. Hugo Friend and R. G. Leavitt must beat R. S. Stronach of Glasgow, a sixteen-second man, to win the hurdles. Myer Prenstein and Hugo Friend should have matters all their own way in the broad jump unless P. O'Connor should compete. The latter cleared 23 feet 9½ inches at the Irish championships last year, and holds the record of 24 feet 11¾ inches.

In addition to the above-mentioned athletes the following will represent England in different events: R. P. Crabbe and S. Abrahams, Cambridge University; L. J. de B. Reed, G. E. Lasner, and D. W. Walters of Cardiff, Wales.

It is reported from Boston that Ellery H. Clark will not go to Athens. Clark, so rumor says, agreed to go because America had no all-around representatives, Sheridan being under the ban. Now that Sheridan is exonerated and will go to Athens, Clark is unwilling to sacrifice business interests to make the trip.

The athletes of the American team will have one souvenir, at least, of the occasion. In lieu of a contribution to the fund for sending the team to Greece, Charles J. Dieges, the old-time athlete and member of the New York Athletic Club and the Pastime Athletic Club, has offered to present to each athlete and member of the American Committee a gold badge, appropriately designed with the American and Greek National emblems. James E. Sullivan, Secretary of the American Committee, has accepted the offer of Mr. Dieges.

GRIFFITH'S MEN ARE SORE.

But They Are Made to Take a Stiff Run Around Birmingham Streets.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 12.—After the game of Saturday afternoon, the Greater New Yorks remained quiet Sunday, soreness being the general ailment. This morning Manager Griffith chased the bunch about Birmingham, through the principal streets of the city, after a long run from the park. A dozen or more newsboys fell in, and the procession caused a deal of comment. The visitors were increased in numbers this morning by the arrival of Elberfeld and Kleinow, the former hailing from the mountains of Tennessee and the latter from the waters of Hot Springs. Both players were in fine fettle.

Both the New Yorks and the Birminghams are making dire threats concerning the struggle that will be pulled off on Wednesday. "Ginger" Clarke, one of the best pitchers in the Southern League, and Erwin Wilhelm, who worked out the last two games with Pittsburg and Boston, will be pitted against Orth and Chesbro. "Doc" Newton is occupying a most conspicuous portion of Clark Griffith's heart at present. He has shown up wonderfully well, and he says that he has completely regained the use of his legs. The "fans" here believe that Newton, Orth, and Chesbro will win the American League pennant for the New Yorkers.

GREEN IN BINGHAMTON.

Beavers in his confession implicated ex-Senator George E. Green of Binghamton. According to Beavers, Green was guilty with him of conspiracy to defraud the Post Office Department through the sale of recording time-locks.

After a fortnight's trial Green was acquitted last week by a jury in Washington. On the 10th he returned to Binghamton. Our neighbor The Sun tells how his townsmen welcomed him:

> Ex-Senator George E. Green and wife arrived from Washington to-night and were met at the Lackawanna station by every band in the city and a crowd of 5,000 people. The trip to his residence was one continuous ovation of cheers, and nearly every house on the route was decorated with flags. Red fire and green fire were burned all along the way.
>
> At the house fully 2,000 people listened to a brief speech by Mr. Green, in which he said he had never so much appreciated the value of friendship. * * *
>
> After he stopped speaking the crowd insisted on shaking his hand, and for an hour an informal reception was held, men of all classes, women and children crowding in to greet him. During the past two days there has been a growing sentiment that he be nominated and elected State Senator again this Fall, and it has been taken up by the newspapers.

Yet this Republic has been beswept of late by a wave of angry protests against "graft." The popular resentment is deep, the popular voice is high and loud. There has been a disposition to show no mercy. The agitators and exhorters who fill the pages of the ten-cent periodicals have worn out thousands, maybe millions, of pen-nibs in showing up the rascals and demanding for them stripes and dungeons.

But George E. Green is met by all Binghamton and by every band in the city when, triumphing over indictments and incriminating confessions, he returns to his home. His neighbors give him "one continuous ovation of cheers." On that same evening we have no doubt whatever that they would have vociferously applauded any orator who had hired a hall to denounce the "insurance thieves" of New York City.

Green had been acquitted, though. That does make a difference, certainly. But there are other charges and other indictments. He is still under $5,000 bail to go back to Washington and be tried again. How do his neighbors know that he will not be found guilty on the second charge? How do they know that he would have got off on the first charge if Beavers's whole story had been told to the jury? Is a man under indictment for conspiracy to defraud an appropriate subject for public testimonials of confidence and affection? Or are the people of Binghamton indifferent to all these things and determined to stand by Green, who has done so much for them? Is the great outcry against "graft" really two-thirds humbug? Dishonest practices in public life and breaches of private trust will not be checked or very much diminished unless the common people in Binghamton and elsewhere show some capacity for forming moral judgments and are prepared to visit their condemnation upon the offenders.

THE COAL STRIKE SITUATION.

Through whatever misadventure it happens, the fact remains that in the coal strike situation we have only a blank statement of propositions by the workers against a reasoned refusal upon the part of the operators. This is to be regretted, because it hinders any attempt to arrive at the merits of the controversy.

Dealing with the case as made up, the workers demand what the President's Commission withheld, and the operators rely upon the Commission's reasoning in refusing to accede now any more than before. The principal new matter relates to what has happened in the execution of the award of the President's Commission. For example, the workers ask the substitution of District Boards of Conciliation, instead of a single board, alleging delay in the adjustment of grievances. This is obviously prejudicial to uniformity of procedure and promotive of disagreements. The United Mine Workers' recent convention adopted a rule that there should be no general agreement without an adjustment of grievances in each district. This hinders harmony, and makes it possible to have a strike whenever the workers' leaders desire. Moreover, the Board of Conciliation has worked well. In 149 cases there have been only four where delay beyond three months has not resulted in the defeat of the men, and, since the umpire has rejected demands four times to each demand that has been allowed, there is created a presumption of a contentious spirit undeserving of encouragement.

The President's Commission passed upon "all" matters of difference, and it is only as regards fresh matter that either side has fair cause of a new appeal. That wages were advanced before is not a reason why they should be advanced again. The prosperity of the companies might be an argument if the men were underpaid. The fact is that their wage was fixed by an impartial authority, realizing to the men a percentage of increase rivaling that enjoyed by the companies' shareholders, and at the expense of the consuming public. It is useless to expect the community to sympathize with another advance at its expense. Another matter upon which the public mind is made up is that regarding the "recognition" of the union, and the several matters associated with that proposition. The men have no better friend than President Eliot, who, speaking upon another topic, as reported Sunday, said: "No corporation has a right to submit to, encourage, or connive at any monopoly of the kind of labor it buys, because the corporation which yields to such a monopoly abridges the just liberty of workingmen, and liberty is an indispensable condition of public and private happiness." So everybody thinks except the unionists, and so must all unionists think regarding every union except their own.

The situation is merely that issue is joined, not that a disagreement is registered. A strike is not yet a necessity, nor is it necessary to fear the worst if a strike really happens. Certainly nothing serious can happen for months. The men and the public can get through the Summer comfortably enough, and between then and now the gentlemen who move the price of securities about will have many more interesting things to engage their attention. There is nothing imminent in the situation, and such threat as it embodies is as ominous to the unions as to the community.

GERMANY'S ISOLATION.

The German press recognizes, with a fair approach to unanimity, that Germany has taken rather less than nothing by the truculent spirit she has displayed toward France for the past year, and which she has carried into the conference at Algeciras. The conference was insisted on by Germany as showing, apparently, that the Powers not specifically known as the Mediterranean Powers were as much entitled to be consulted about the affairs of Morocco as the Powers so known. And the result of the conference, the "round-up" of a test vote, shows that the German contention is supported only by Austria, which has its own reasons for wishing to stand well with Germany, and by Morocco, which objects to being regulated at all.

This cannot be called a diplomatic success. It cannot be called anything but a diplomatic failure. And the German newspapers make no bones of calling it so. Naturally, they scold and grumble. They grumble at the ingratitude of Russia to Germany in not deserting her ally, and at the ingratitude of Italy to Germany in deserting her ally. But they recognize the untenableness of Germany's position all the same.

Perhaps the issue has been decided more on sentimental than on practical grounds. Germany had shown an ungenerous disposition to "crowd" France, and had in fact crowded her to the wall, to the point where France could not yield without humiliation. As the Paris Temps observes, "For a nation, every unresisted attack upon its dignity is a lessening of its security." All France felt that, and not only all France, but all the world.

The adhesion of Austria to the German contention is less easily explained than the opposition to that contention of the rest of mankind. For it is quite plain that, when the death of Franz Josef occurs, as in the course of nature it must before long do, the imprisoned winds are to be let loose in the heterogeneous and polyglot empire which his personality alone holds together. The Hungarians will then set up for themselves, even if they await that event, and the "German provinces" will be plainly marked out for the prey and spoil of Germany. Whatever personal reasons there may be at Vienna for upholding at Algeciras the policy of Berlin, there can be no national, there cannot even be any dynastic, reasons. For more than a century and a half the Hohenzollerns have been gaining on the Hapsburgs. Why should the Hapsburgs help them to gain still more? Why, indeed, except upon the principle of the snakes of Ireland, which—

> To save themselves from slaughter.

TAXING NON-RESIDENTS' PROPERTY.

The objections of the Merchants' Association to the Saxe bill for the taxation of the property of non-residents certainly deserve the careful attention of the Governor.

In this matter, as in many others, the Association is the vigilant and faithful representative of the business men of the city. There is no objection made to the taxation of the property of non-residents who seek to escape all taxation by maintaining a residence apart from their business or their financial interests. The objection is to the possibility and probability that the courts may construe the bill as abolishing the exemption of consigned property from taxation. That undoubtedly would be a serious blow to the enormous commission and storage business carried on in this city. This business embraces a very great variety of products, cotton and woolen manufactures, dry goods of foreign and domestic origin, metals, grain, and produce. It is the estimate of the Association that at certain periods of the year, when business is most active, at least $500,000,000 worth of dry goods alone is in store in this city. The owners are all non-residents. The net profits of the commission dry goods business are placed at from 1 to 3 per cent. Taxation of goods in store would reduce this margin by one-third at a minimum, and might easily wipe it out altogether. The result would be to drive this and like interests to other cities or across the New Jersey line.

We do not ourselves share the favorable opinion held by the Merchants' Association as to the taxation of personal property, which is one of the most uncertain, unequal, and least just of all methods of raising revenue. But it is quite clear that if personal property of non-residents is to be pursued, there should be left no loophole for the infliction of so ruinous a burden upon one of the most important interests of the city.

EXTENDING COMPETITION.

The State Civil Service Commission is to be commended for the extension of the competitive principle it has recently made, as is the Governor, whose cooperation is necessary to such action. Some fifty places in the Counties of New York, Kings, and Erie, chiefly in the offices of Surrogates and County Clerks, which have hitherto been in the exempt or non-competitive class, have been transferred to the competitive class, and all future appointments to them must be made for merit and fitness tested by competitive examinations. The duties of the various offices are mainly clerical, but most of them require a pretty high order of practically technical knowledge or training. They are of a sort as to which there may be honest difference of opinion whether efficient men can be got by competition, but on the one hand the politicians are always eager to fill these places with men not tested in any way, and, on the other hand, experience in the Federal and in the State service shows that properly conducted competitive examinations, with firm use of the test of probation, turns out much better men than the old partisan methods.

The Commission has shown a creditable desire to apply fairly and honestly the principle of the Constitution which distinctly requires the competitive test wherever that test is practicable. The politicians naturally hold that the burden of proof that the test is practicable rests with its advocates. The Commission seems to think, and quite properly, that the burden of proof lies with those who claim exemption from the mandatory provision of the Constitution. That is a sound rule of interpretation, and, in this matter, a sound rule of business administration.

SENATOR TELLER'S OBJECTION.

Senator Teller has expressed the opinion that if the United States have jurisdiction over Niagara it can be exercised without the assistance of Great Britain—"so far as our part of the river is concerned." He is inclined to think that it belongs to the State of New York to take proper measures toward preserving the Falls rather than to the General Government. Therefore Senator Teller objects to present consideration of the joint resolution reported by Senator Foraker, which authorizes the President to form with Great Britain an international commission "to examine and report upon the diminution in volume of water passing over the Falls of Niagara."

That Senator Teller has spoken hastily and inadvisedly the following facts show. Dr. John M. Clarke, the New York State Geologist, says that the sill or edge of the Falls is ten feet higher on the American than on the Canadian side; the waters at the crest of the American side are ten feet shallower. Let but the entire flow be reduced by 80,000 cubic feet a second and the American Falls will have vanished, leaving a precipice of dry rock. The charters of the two American and three Canadian companies already allow an abstraction of 48,000 cubic feet a second, and developments on the Canadian side have been planned that will require the use of an additional 70,000 cubic feet a second for power purposes. Engineering difficulties, park restrictions, and legislative prohibitions have effectually discouraged efforts on this side to further deplete the Falls. Yet an increased allowance by the Canadian authorities of 32,000 cubic feet a second would sound the death-knell of the American Niagara.

It is not true, therefore, that we have no need of the assistance of Great Britain "so far as our part of the river is concerned." New York can refuse to permit further diversion of waters only on the American side. The State has no power of control on the Canadian side, nor has it power to enter into agreement with the Canadian Government that the latter shall prevent further diversions. Only the General Government at Washington possesses this power.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Prime Minister of the Dominion of Canada, has expressed the willingness of his Government to discuss this question when its co-operation is invited through the proper channels. The President has directed Secretary Root to take the subject up with Great Britain at once with a view to initiating a restrictive treaty. We hope that, when the joint resolution referring the matter to the International River Commission, which passed the House in February and has now been reported in the Senate by Mr. Brandegee, comes up for consideration in that body Senator Teller will see fit to interpose no further delay by objection.

ASIA FOR THE ASIATICS.

The action of the Chinese Board of Punishments is of immediate importance only to the foreign residents of Shanghai. That is not trifling, since Shanghai contains about one-half of the foreign traders residing in the open ports of China. But the significance of the memorandum is, all the same, mainly symptomatic and indicative of the new-born feeling of "Asia for the Asiatics." The feeling, in turn, or at least the movement in which it is embodied, is due to the dissipation, by the Japanese arms, of the Russian bogy, which has so long oppressed the Chinese mind with the conviction of Russia's invincibility. Poor Russia!

The specific question is grave enough, so far as the foreigners at Shanghai are concerned. In round numbers there are twenty thousand of them, of whom a quarter are British and about an eighth American. Shanghai was "opened" as a treaty port more than sixty years ago, in consequence of the same war with Great Britain that made Hongkong a British possession. Shanghai has remained Chinese, but the foreign colony grew so large, about forty years ago, as to demand and receive the government of its own "reservation." Justice is administered to foreigners, within that pale, by a British Judge, and to Chinamen by a mixed court, presided over jointly by a British and a Chinese Judge. It does not appear that this arrangement is a matter of treaty. In the observance of treaties the Chinese are fairly, perhaps particularly, punctilious. But it was a modus vivendi, acceptable all around. This modus vivendi, so far as it relates to the mixed court for the trial of Chinamen, the Nanking Viceroy has undertaken to upset, and the Imperial Board of Punishments has apparently sustained him in upsetting. Considering the prevalent anti-foreign feeling in China, the decision is calculated to alarm every foreign resident in Shanghai. It will doubtless be the subject, at the very least, of emphatic diplomatic remonstrances, in which the United States may be expected to join.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Spelling Reform Financed. There will be very general interest, we think, in the news that Mr. Carnegie has turned his always effective attention to the subject of spelling reform, and is not only willing to finance the movement, but has already organized a "Simplified Spelling Board" composed of men of the very highest authority in this enormously important matter. The mere reading of their names is enough to convince one that as usual Mr. Carnegie has sought and found good advisers, and it ought to convince all that under such auspices the prospects are that there will soon be "something doing." This prospect, of course, will be pleasing to far from everybody. Many people are instinctively and strongly opposed to any except the slow and inevitable changes in the spelling of English. They admit the absurdities and the inconsistencies and the difficulties of our present orthography, but the result of any simplification is in their eyes a hideous barbarism, and they recur again and again to the pleasure they take in the sight of a word that, as they say, tells its history by means of its now silent letters. Of course this position is understandable enough, and denunciation or derision of it is worse than useless, but the fact remains that the logic of every argument against spelling reform is extremely weak, and in the last analysis every one of them comes down to a mere liking for the familiar and the old. Perhaps nine-tenths of our words are fairly well spelled as it is—as well spelled as they can be with an alphabet as imperfectly adapted to the needs of the language as ours is. A purely phonetic system is out of the question without a much larger alphabet than we have now, but a vast improvement could be effected by reducing to some sort of regularity the spelling of the much-used tenth that makes most of the trouble. That done, children would be saved a very large amount of time and labor that could be applied to more profitable tasks and the foreigner could attempt the learning of the language without running against a stumbling-block that now drives him almost to despair. The fear that reform in spelling would cost us the history of our words is without the slightest foundation, and there is little more basis for the assumption that the present forms teach etymology. They are explained by etymology, but they rarely teach it. Of course the new board will not try to reach an impossible perfection. If they attained it to-day it would be lost to-morrow. They can, however, make English spelling as good, say, as that of Spanish or German. Incidentally, we hope that they will have a few words to say to the American publishers who of late years have been doing their best to rob us of gains already made in this country, merely that they might sell the same editions in England and here.

Dowieism in a New Phase. If there is still life enough in the remarkable Dowie for him to follow with interest the fortunes of what was once his own private "Zion," he must be much worried over the latest developments in his carefully constructed enterprise. The subordinates he left behind to "run the business" during his absence in search of health still profess belief in his claims to supernatural authority and powers, but they have seized upon the cash box and have cruelly informed "Elijah III." that his drafts will not be honored unless his private deposits, as distinguished from the funds of "Zion," are kept adequate to his demands. This means, of course, that Dowieism is at an end, for Dowie is all there ever was to it. His shrewdness in appealing to amiable ignorance and superstition raised the big structure that has for years amused and amazed a considerable part of the world. It is a little hard to believe that a man in so many ways intelligent was sincere in his grotesque pretensions, but probably he was, and there was a large element of method in all his madness. He has been a charlatan, but one on the whole rather likable and decent, and though in the course of his strenuous career he secured a lot of money from his dupes on what, strictly speaking, were false pretenses, he gave them a good deal for it, and perhaps full value. As a manufacturer and merchant he seems to have been skirting bankruptcy for some time past. The expected crash has not come, however, and it is not quite impossible that if Dowie could have avoided the physical weaknesses of old age—as he should have done, with such powers of "healing" as he asserted—he might have put at least a few of his enterprises on a firm footing. That the new "Overseer" will have any success is more than doubtful. His talk is much more sensible than were the tirades of the "prophet," but he has yet to prove the possession of the "prophet's" genius for controlling large numbers of emotional people and for making them put their pocketbooks in his keeping. As outlined, his programme is altogether too sensible—for the conduct of a Dowie "Zion." With the reforms he suggests all the enthusiasm and self-sacrifice will disappear, and his dividends will have to be in dollars instead of in the spiritual comfort and exaltation with which Dowie was able to content his faithful followers. It takes a wonder-worker to work wonders, and as a business man Mr. Voliva will find himself in competition with business men at least as able as himself.

Finding Fault with Gen. Wood. How it does bring back the early days of our Philippine venture to hear from Washington, Boston, and other nice, safe places harsh criticism of the methods selected by Gen. Wood for subduing the Moro bandits! It seems that instead of killing them to a man—and to a few incidental and indistinguishable women and children—in the crater of Mount Dajo, he should have laid regular siege to his enemy and starved them into submission. We never heard that Gen. Wood was a particularly bloodthirsty ruffian, and it occurs to us that perhaps he knew the conditions he had to meet just a little better than do his long-distance advisers. Perhaps it wasn't quite practicable with a few hundred men to surround a big mountain, thickly grown with tropic jungle, and to invest it so closely that active savages, perfectly familiar with the country, could not have supplied their simple wants for an indefinite period. Possibly the General studied the situation with some care before he ordered the attack that was, at least from a purely military standpoint, so brilliantly successful; it is not unimaginable that his vigorous action saved ten lives for every one it cost. Sieges, especially in the tropics, have their fatalities, just as do charges up steep mountainsides, and when a Moro fanatic has determined to conquer or die, our own opinion is that he should not be allowed to—conquer. The slaughter on Mount Dajo was horrible enough, but it might have been worse, and that part of the archipelago is likely to have peace for some time to come.

DR. MAXWELL REPLIES.

Counsels Mr. Shearer to Acquire More Exact Knowledge.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read Supt. Shearer's article in to-day's Times on conditions alleged to exist in the New York public schools. Whether I shall make a reply in detail to Mr. Shearer's criticisms I cannot say until I have read the whole series of articles which The Times promises. I shall only say at present that if this series of articles is to be of value, the author should be more careful in stating the facts from which he makes his generalizations. The article contains many serious errors in statement of existing conditions. If Mr. Shearer's criticism is to be of service to those charged with the responsibility of administering the New York schools, it should be founded upon correct knowledge and upon logical methods of interpreting statistics.

THE STARVING JAPANESE.

Need of a Central Committee to Receive Subscriptions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Although President Roosevelt and Gov. Higgins have appealed to the people for subscriptions for the relief of the starving Japanese, the money comes in very slowly. The trouble seems to be that practically no one knows the address of the National Red Cross Society, nor can it be easily ascertained.

If The New York Times and the other great newspapers would receive and acknowledge subscriptions there seems no doubt that a large sum would be quickly subscribed. A subscription conducted as was the recent one for the relief of the persecuted Russians would doubtless secure all the money necessary for the succor of the starving Japanese.

Lapsed Policies and Their Result.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There has been a great deal of talk about dropping policies in the daily papers, and beyond question a good many easily frightened policy holders have let their insurance terminate. The press recently reports an increase of several million dollars in the money paid out by one of the large companies for surrender values. This means that a good deal of insurance has been dropped and that a good many families have been deprived of protection. If the life insurance people reason rightly, this loss of protection has meant financial loss to some families. It seems to me that a few concrete examples of this kind, where the policy holder has died after dropping his policy, would do more than a little to make people look at the matter sanely.

Chorus Received the Usual Pay.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent issue of The Times "Patron," in a letter to the editor, expressed the belief that Mr. Conried accepted the free services of the members of the chorus on the occasion of the annual benefit, so called, for the manager.

Permit me, as Secretary of Grand Opera Chorus Singers' Local No. 14, to say that several days previous to Feb. 15 Mr. Conried gave orders that the chorus and ballet should receive full salary for that night, although our contracts call for gratuitous service one performance in the season.

In justice to Mr. Conried and our union, will you not correct the erroneous impression given by "Patron's" letter?

His Hand a Sun Dial.

From The Thurston (Me.) Journal.

Walter Nason, living in Newport, Me., has the mysterious ability of being able to tell the accurate time of day by simply looking in the palm of his hand as another would look at his watch. No one has been able to learn his method, and in fact he himself cannot explain the source of his power. Many of the people of the village who doubted his power and who looked upon it as a "fairy story," have by their own observation and experiments become convinced of its truth.

FIRE THE SILENT LETTERS!

Rally Round Mr. Carnegie and Foley's Schoolboy for Spelling Reform.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At last we are to have spelling reform. Mr. Carnagy has put his sholder 2 the weel. Long ago Josh Billings pointed out that Shakespeare had only one fault—he coodent spel. I have no sympathy with those antique fellows who believe that before we try to monkey further with so good an instrument as the English language we ought to try to use it properly. Archbishop Trench's remarks about the historical associations of English words, and the pictures the humblest of them may call up in the minds of cultivated persons, are purely sentimental. Hereafter we shall spell langwidj sensibly and not bother with sentiment.

Josh Billings was a great spelling reformer, but he lived before his time. So did Artemus Ward. I am glad to see the name of Mark Twain among the new pioneers of spelling reform. Hereafter he will spell humor "umer," and then, like Mr. Squeers's schoolboys, go out and do it. Fire the silent letters! Your own Foley's schoolboy is on the right track. Defy tradition and get down to bizness. The descendants of the members of the Simplified Spelling Board can look back with pride on the work of their forebears and exclaim in concert:

> Livs uv grat men awl remind us,
> We can mak our livs sublim,
> And, departing, lev behind us,
> Futprints on the sands uv tim.

New Vowel Characters Needed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When the committee gets to work to simplify the English spelling would it not be well for them to give us a character or letter for each of the vowel sounds? This would help in the pronunciation of many words.

CONRIED AND THE SPECULATORS

Some More Pertinent Questions for the Opera Management.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am not after the Herr Direktor's $500, so boldly offered in The Times of the 9th inst., but not offered, remember, until the opera season had about run its allotted course, nor am I striving to prove that he is in collusion with the ticket speculators that do so throng before his door. I wish only to relate a little fact, and this fact is as follows:

The Feb. 10 matinée performance of "Die Meistersinger" was not generally known a week before its performance, yet when I inquired at the Metropolitan box office on the 3d inst. for seats in the family circle I was politely told that they had all been sold! The hearing of this opera being a "groundhog case" with me, I then bought two good seats from a speculator in front of the main entrance to the Metropolitan at a heavy advance upon the regular price.

"The more fool, you," the Herr Direktor will probably say.

The query that naturally arises in my mind is this: Why, under the foregoing circumstances, were all the box office seats sold, not only a week before the performance, but before the performance had been publicly advertised in the daily newspapers, and why was it that the speculators not only knew of the date of this opera, but were so well supplied with the necessary tickets?

Other theatres in that vicinity have suppressed the speculator nuisance. Why not the Metropolitan? Where there's a will there's a way.

"Search me!" shouts Mr. Conried (in the newspapers) "and I'll give you $500 if you find evidence that I am in league with the speculators." When I see Mr. Conried in front of the Opera House with a megaphone, like some of his fellow-managers, shouting an invitation to come in and get good seats at lower prices than the speculators are demanding, I shall be more deeply impressed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I see in this morning's Times Mr. Scott's suggestion that the law should be altered so as to make all traffic go to the left instead of the right as at present. I did not suggest that in my letter, as I think it is easier to change the few than the whole mass of drivers, for if you change the side of the road you must alter the rule for every one who drives, whereas if you only alter the side of the carriage you will only change those who drive with a groom on the box, who are comparatively few in proportion to the mass who are alone on the box and sit in the middle, which is quite correct.

There is no doubt the altering of the rule of the road from right to left would be better, because then in country districts where run-abouts, surreys, and such carriages are used, the passenger could alight on the sidewalk without disturbing the driver, but outside the cities the driving restrictions are not so severe, and every one does not pull up on the right side, though of course because every one does not do right is no reason why all should do wrong.

Sentence by Jury.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a reader of The New York Times, to whom Mr. A. R. Merot submits the question:

"Should a jury be allowed to sentence criminals?"

I beg to answer: Of course. An individual should not be tried only, but also be sentenced by a jury, and not alone in criminal, but also in civil, proceedings. A Judge should preside and lead the trial and instruct all parties concerned, but sentence should be passed by the jury, never by a single person, who can easily err and possibly be influenced.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

America is very fond of criticising England's course in Ireland and South Africa. How about this news from the Philippines? Put Away the North Pole.

From The Tillamook Herald.

We are getting rather tired of the north pole. It has been overdone. Every man who wants to be a hero and break into print trots off to discover the north pole, and comes back afterward and tells us how and why he failed, and will we make up a purse to send him again? Sure to find it this time. It is getting to be a nuisance. Let the old pole alone. Nobody wants it, anyway.

THE CRUELTY OF WOMEN.

Painting a Dog Green Nothing to Tail-Docking and Bird-Killing.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I believe Mr. Haines's statement regarding the cruelty of women to be absolutely correct, certainly as far as the wearing of feathers, the checking-up of horses, and the docking of horses' tails are concerned.

Many women wrote letters to The Times about the cruelty of painting the little fox terrier green. To my mind that was not to be compared with the torture at least half the New York carriage horses are in whenever they are harnessed, and yet one almost never hears even a remark made at the pitiful sight of horses throwing their heads (when a martingale does not prevent their doing so) in a futile endeavor to get relief.

I once heard a young woman boast of having docked a horse's tail herself.

The answer I have usually gotten when speaking against certain feathers as ornaments has been: "I didn't have the bird killed, it was already dead!"

An Ingenious Device for Restraining Overambitious Automobiles.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Study of the habits of the domestic automobile has convinced me that the ingenious device of the good people of Chatham, N. As the wheels of the moving terrors would not meet the rise simultaneously a motion which would never be forgotten would result.

Vanity and Pneumonia.

Vanity, vanity, thy name is woman, or, rather, apology for woman! How forcibly is this fact thrust upon me as daily I walk homeward up Fifth Avenue after business hours and meet this particular type bedecked in what she considers the "height of fashion."

What comprises a smartly clad maid this Winter? A girl who has her hair "marceled," adorns her lovely face in numerous veils, wraps her body in wools and furs, and her limbs and feet in openwork Summer stockings and slippers. Such a sensible and harmonious costume, but how satisfied the Miss is! The winds play havoc with her skirts and every passerby is invited to view—and smile.

Spitting Nuisance Not Yet Abolished.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I notice that the Greater New York public conveyances carry a sign that reads, "Spitting on the Floor," &c., "Strictly Forbidden by Order of the Board of Health." Every time I have occasion to ride in one of these conveyances this rule is violated. The conductors, whose duty it is to see that it is not infringed, turn blind. And all shall be Roosevelt and Taft;
And no one shall whisper "sea level,"
And no one shall mutter of "graft."

Nay, all shall be pleasant as could be;

Shall swear, "The Canal as It Should Be

THIS SEASON'S OPERA COST $51,000 A WEEK

Conried's Defense Against the Charge of Cheapness.

BIG OFFERS TO CONDUCTORS

They've Failed to Tempt Foreign Musicians, Says the Director—Difficulties About Rehearsals.

Answer to the charge that he has been conducting the Metropolitan Opera House on a cheap basis was made by Heinrich Conried, the director, in the report he submitted yesterday to the annual meeting of the Conried Metropolitan Opera Company. Mr. Conried declared that for the season just ending he spent $230,000 more than Mr. Grau spent in his last season as director, and that a corresponding expenditure will be kept up for the next season.

"Notwithstanding this fact," he says, "the New York receipts and the receipts on tour were so tremendous that the net profits compared favorably with those in the most successful preceding seasons at the Metropolitan Opera House. These profits were earned, although, in the higher interest of the public and the company, I had cut down to a minimum the revenue formerly derived by renting the Metropolitan Opera House and through outside engagements of our artists."

Mr. Conried points out that when he took charge, $200,000 was spent in preliminary disbursements, and that this was made chargeable at the rate of $40,000 a year for five years. In addition, this season $100,000 was spent for special expenses, improvements of the stage, and scenery.

The average weekly expense for this season was $51,000, which Mr. Conried says is shown by the records to be $10,000 more a week than under Mr. Grau's management. He expects that the preliminary outlay for next season will be at least $110,000, and that the weekly expense bill will be $51,000 again.

He gives a comparative table of expenses under Mr. Grau in the season of 1902-03, and under him the present season. He thus comments on it:

"On examining these figures you will see that our expenses last year for artists (exclusive of those who receive regular salaries) were about $22,000 in excess of those of Mr. Grau, that we paid about $19,000 more for the chorus, ballet, and supers, about $10,000 more for musicians, and $36,000 more for railroad transportation of the company. In the last instance the increase is accounted for by the great length of last year's tour.

"Owing again to the new and more liberal arrangements which I had made with the Opera House carpenters and stage hands the total cost last year in that department was more than doubled, while a considerable increase (roughly $7,000) is noticeable (for similar reasons) in the payments to the property department."

Mr. Conried then pays attention to difficulties that he has had to overcome and to conditions that he declares are a hindrance to the proper conduct of opera affairs. Here are some of his comments:

"You must consider particularly some of the difficulties which render it so infinitely harder to realize one's operatic ideals in New York than in some other of the great cities of the world.

"During a brief season of about four months the management of the Metropolitan Opera House is expected—and, indeed, required—to present between thirty and forty works, all handsomly and appropriately given, with proper costumes, properties, and scenic accessories. On Sundays, which, in less crushing conditions, might be reserved for rest, we are compelled to give concerts:

"The chief artists concerned in our various productions are prevented by European and American engagements and by other causes from reaching this city until from one to two weeks before the opening of the season. Some, indeed, cannot arrive even then. Imagine, if you will, the obstacles that stand in the way of adequate rehearsals of new works—obstacles which, in the Continental opera houses of Europe, where six months are often devoted to preparations for a single novelty, do not exist.

"Another and most formidable stumbling block is the present system which obliges the management to guarantee the chief artists two or more appearances each week, having always a due regard for the absolute refusal of those artists to rehearse on the days when they are to sing.

"Lastly, the space at the disposal of the management in the Metropolitan Opera House for storing scenery, costumes, and properties, for the rehearsal of the chorus, the ballet, and the principals, and for other purposes is utterly inadequate. After each performance it is necessary to have the scenery removed to storehouses outside the building. The rehearsals of the orchestra are disturbed by rehearsals of the chorus, and those of the chorus by the proceedings of the corps de ballet.

"Under these circumstances the wonder is, not that the productions at the Metropolitan Opera House are occasionally faulty, but that they are so good. Nothing would be more agreeable to me than to be shown a remedy for the at present inevitable deficiencies of grand opera in New York, if one can be provided."

Because of the difficulty of properly preparing new productions, Mr. Conried says: "I suggest going to the enormous outlay of preparing all new productions, as far as at all possible, before the beginning of the season, in order to be able to get along with as few rehearsals as possible afterward."

On the question of conductors he says: "Without reflecting in any way upon the ability of the fine musicians that are leading our orchestra, attempts have been made in vain to engage any one of the few chefs d'orchestre of world repute in Europe by offering them an income thus far unheard of in the annals of operatic history in America. Thus far each one of them has refused our offers.

"These gentlemen command an incredibly large income, even in Europe, and will not, even for the sake of earning more, leave their congenial surroundings to assume the leadership in an institution where circumstances forbid their doing themselves justice through frequent rehearsals with orchestra and artists to which they are used. I will continue endeavors in this direction and hope they will finally be crowned by success."

HOPPER MAKES A NEW SPEECH

And "Happyland" Now Finds New Favor at the Casino.

De Wolf Hopper returned to the Casino last night with a speech between the acts that, so far as could be discovered, had not previously been delivered. Doubtless subsequent visitors to "Happyland" will have an opportunity of hearing it, which is fortunate, for, like all of the comedian's impromptu efforts, its best qualities are lost in the effort to fix them in cold black type.

Mr. Hopper conveyed the gratifying intelligence that he was glad to be back in New York, (this part of the speech was not new,) and emphasized his remarks by a passing—one might say a passing through—reference to Petersburg, Va., where he played one night. "The people of that place were no doubt very nice," he said, "but I really don't know—there were so few of them." Incidentally, Mr. Hopper told his audience what a "one-night stand" is, and communicated other similar information most useful to unsophisticated Broadwayites.

As for "Happyland," it created the same agreeable impression as on the occasion of its original production at the Lyric Theatre. Dainty, bright clean, and tuneful, it is in refreshing contrast to most of the so-called musical comedies, and will probably enjoy a new lease of life at the Casino, where Mr. Hopper, Mr. Danforth, Marguerite Clark, and the several other principals repeated their former successes.

A DOUBLE BILL AT THE OPERA.

Mme. Eames's Indisposition Causes a Substitution for "Le Nozze di Figaro."

For the last week of the opera season the first and only performance of Mozart's comedy, "Le Nozze di Figaro" had been planned. But it was not to be, for Mme. Eames, who was to take the part of the Countess, was indisposed, and without her the opera could not be given. It was a disappointment, and a keen one, doubtless, to many opera goers who love it, and who hope to see it given at least once in the season, as it has been in recent years. There was compensation, however, for in place of it a double bill was given, including "Don Pasquale" and "Pagliacci." Mme. Sembrich, Mr. Scotti, Mr. Dippel, and Mr. Rossi sang in the former, and Mr. Caruso, Mr. Campanari, Mr. Reiss, and Miss Alten in the second. So that, so far as the list of names was concerned, the audience may be considered to have gained by the change. The artistic balance between the comedy of the elder Italian and the hot-blooded tragedy of the younger, together, as against the century-old comedy of Mozart, is another matter.

Spirited performances were given of both, and that of "Don Pasquale" was extremely brilliant, chiefly through the singing and acting of Mme. Sembrich, who was in superb form vocally, and in her gayest and liveliest spirits. Rarely has she sung with more lavish outpouring of tone or a more brilliant and perfect delivery of the scintillating and sparkling music. Mr. Caruso likewise sang the music of Canio in his most fervent style, and there was rejoicing all through the house.

BENEFIT OPERA PROGRAMME.

Souvenir for "Haensel und Gretel," Which Mrs. Roosevelt Will Attend.

A fine souvenir programme, with illustrations, including a picture of President and Mrs. Roosevelt and their children, will be a feature of the special performance of "Haensel und Gretel" for the benefit of the Legal Aid Society at the Metropolitan Opera House next Thursday evening. The Humperdinck opera was chosen for the occasion at Mrs. Roosevelt's special request. Mrs. Roosevelt will be present, and it has been rumored that the President, who is an honorary Vice President of the society, may accompany her.

The special programme, which is now being prepared, will be a substantial little book bound in white linen. On the cover will be the title of the opera, in gilt, and just above an appropriate black witch on a broomstick in silhouette against a golden moon.

Besides the picture of the President and his family, the programme will contain a story of the opera with illustrations; also portraits of the composer, Humperdinck, Director Heinrich Conried, and the members of the cast, including Nina Abarbanell, Bella Alten, Louise Homer, Marion Weed, and Otto Goritz. There is an appreciation of the fairy opera and its author by Henry T. Finck, followed by a definition of the aims of the Legal Aid Society by its President, Arthur von Briesen, who explains how the society tries to help "the 210,000 little Haensels and Gretels" of a great city.

From Mark Twain, Andrew Carnegie, Henry Loomis, Brander Matthews, and Lyman Abbott come letters commending the work of the society, with a picture and fac simile signature of each writer.

The souvenir was arranged and edited by Louis Windmüller, Treasurer of the Legal Aid Society. The illustrations and designs are by Thomas A. Sindelar.

"HUMPTY DUMPTY" REVIVED.

A revival of "Humpty Dumpty," the spectacular, claimed the stage of the New York Theatre last night. The performance had already been announced as of the "as originally produced" variety. Enchanted glades, fairy forests, coral strands, and rainbow-clad choruses have gathered themselves together into the old form in which the stage of the New Amsterdam transposed them from Drury Lane.

The cast is substantially the same as before. Frank Moulan is still the eccentric cook; George Schiller is again the King; Maude Lillian Berry, Diamond Donner, and Nellie Daly have their old rôles. The only new member of the cast is Augusta Greenleaf, upon whom, as the Fairy Queen, devolves the usual task of unrolling the plot in rhymed couplets and singing Spring songs while the scenes are shifting.

A good-sized audience applauded the familiar songs. "Mexico," "Texas Dan," "Man, Man, Man," "Down in Mulberry Bend," "Sambo and Dinah," and "On Lalawano's Shore" were all encored as ever.

A new feature of the Grigolatis Aerial Ballet consists of a dozen white pigeons that flutter down from the top balcony of the theatre to perch on the arms and head of the chief "flyer" as she rises from the stage.

LEE WANG BANG BURIED TO THE TOCSIN'S BOOM

While Paper Prayers Kept the Evil One at Bay.

WAS CHINATOWN'S SINGER

For Fifty-eight Years He Had Chanted the Wickedness That Was His Thirty Centuries Ago.

The body of Lee Waug Bang was escorted through the streets of Chinatown yesterday on the way to his grave, while his friends sounded the tocsin, clashed the gong, and kept the Evil One at bay with ten thousand paper prayers.

Lee Wang Bang was the sweet singer of Chinatown. There was scarcely a Celestial who had not sat through three long days and nights in the Doyers Street Theatre listening to Lee Wang Bang as, dressed like a Mandarin of the Pink Button, he chanted the wickedness which was his in life 3,000 years ago. In his day as an opera singer he had played the Chinese characters from the lover to the saintly inquisitor. When he was told that under the white lights the foreign devils had a grand opera of their own, he would sneer.

"I do not wish to see it," he would say. "How can these foreign devils teach soul-singing to me, whose ancestors for 5,000 years have sung of the good and the evil?"

His latter days were fraught with troubles. The climate of the West crept into his bones, and the pigeon's blood and rice sprouts of his country were ineffectual nourishment against disease. And the spirit of the Occident came among the people of his race. The foreign devils said it was the spirit of the Orient. But Lee Wang Bang smiled. It was the spirit of jealousy which made societies. It was not the spirit of the art-revering Orient which urged the Hip Sing Tong and the On Leong Tong to choose the temple of soul-singing wherein to fight their battles.

These things crept upon the heart of Lee Wang Bang, the sweet singer, with his fifty-eight years of toil for his art. That scourge of his people, the White Death, raced through his thin frame, and he knew that the last notes of his soul-song were due. He called in his friends of the Lee Yong Society, a form of Free Masonry among Chinese, of which he was Grand Master, and told them he was about to die. He commanded that he be borne to his grave with every custom of honor and mourning known to his race in their own land. They must call him thrice before the lid of the coffin was closed; they must tap on the coffin once and listen; they must strike the tocsin once and listen, and if he answered not—Lee Wang Bang would be dead.

When he died on Friday last the Grand Masons carried his body to an undertaker's in Mulberry Street, where it was placed in a mahogany coffin. On Sunday night a fire started in the basement of the undertaker's shop. Quickly six Chinese appeared, and Lee Wang Bang in his coffin was carried to the street, where he lay with his face upturned to the rift of moonlit blue between the houses. The fire was put out and Lee Wang Bang was carried back to the place where he had lain and the six Chinese went silently away.

Things happen in Chinatown as ordained. At 1:25 o'clock yesterday afternoon hundreds of Chinese with their hands in their sleeves came from the queer abodes, went to the undertaker's, and waited outside. A hearse drove up and twenty-five carriages lined up behind it. The carriages were filled with Chinese, who said nothing.

Then from the crowd came six Chinese, each with a coil of red, white, and black cotton around his breast. One carried a tocsin. They entered the room where Lee Wang Bang lay. At that sign two carriages appeared, each drawn by a pair of white horses. One of these went before the hearse, the other went behind the line of carriages.

The six Chinese stood around the coffin of Lee Wang Bang. The new Grand Master looked at the dead man and called him by name thrice. When no answer came, all bowed their heads and wailed. Then, without straightening their bodies, the six Lee Yongs raised their hands, and at a signal rapped sharply upon the coffin. There was no answer. Then they wailed again, with their arms outstretched. The Grand Master then took the rubber of the tocsin and raised it above his head, while two others held the instrument suspended high between them.

The Grand Master struck. The hollow sound boomed through the narrow place and echoed to the street in the tense silence that followed. There was no answer from Lee Wang Bang.

Then a wail went up which was caught in the street. Clash after clash of bronze cymbals and tocsins came from the carriages with the white horses, and pipe music shrilled through the windows. A young Chinaman led the way to the street before the coffin, hurling paper prayers at an unseen Evil One, who relentlessly sought the soul of the sweet singer. But he must read every prayer before he could claim that soul. Prayers were hurled at him, hundreds, thousands, until the street was white with them, while the pipes, tocsins, and wood instruments blared defiance at him.

Out into Chatham Square went the strange cortége; into Doyers Street, past the scene of Lee Wang Bang's days of dramatic travail; into Pell Street, where, behind the doors the Chinese burned sulphur matches; into Mott Street, whence many hurried to the temple to hang prayers upon the toe of the Great Joss.

All the way to the Cypress Hills Cemetery the musicians and the prayer makers defied the Evil One, who had to stoop to catch the wind-blown prayers. Over the Williamsburg Bridge he followed. Foreign devils stopped to wonder whence and why came the hollow roar of the tocsin, the occasional clash of cymbals, and the shower of paper slips.

Only when the body of Lee Wang Bang was covered by the sod did the Evil One give up, for his way was barred by joss sticks and a grave wreath of 2,000 prayers.

RED RIDING HOOD MET WOLF.

He Murdered Two Dolls, but Granny's Custards Were Safe.

Six-year-old Grace Merrill decided yesterday morning that she would play Little Red Riding Hood to a sick "Granny," who was really Mrs. Schmidt, a washerwoman, of 136 East 104th Street, who has been ill in bed for the last few days.

With a basket full of custards, pies, bananas, and oranges over her arm, Grace left her mother's place at 370 West 118th Street. On the way she decided to call for her cousin, Mary Spencer, the same age as herself, of 140 West 114th Street. Mary decided to take her three dolls in their gocart for an airing.

The two children, the three dolls, and the gocart went along safely until they came before Mrs. Schmidt's house. Here they met the wolf, a bull pup, with Edward Walsh of the same address as Mrs. Schmidt. The pup and the boy came to a dead halt, as did the two girls, the three dolls, and the gocart. The boy glared at the girls; the pup glared at the dolls.

"Huh!" snorted the boy.

"Hugh!" replied the girls.

"Ur-r-r-r!" growled the bull pup. The dolls maintained a dignified silence.

"How do you do?" said Grace, who is tactful.

"Aw, gwan!" said Edward Walsh. "I'm older'n you, anyway."

"Yes," said Grace, "but I'm bigger."

"You're not."

"I am."

These retorts were abruptly ended by a shriek from Mary. Two of the dolls were in pieces on the sidewalk, their flaxen hair and life's sawdust strewn everywhere. The bull pup was savagely tearing the third to pieces.

A man in uniform happened to be passing. He was appealed to. He was Capt. Tappin of the East 104th Street Police Station.

"He's murdered two dolls and nearly murdered the other," wailed the girls.

"He didn't," retorted the owner of the pup.

Capt. Tappin took them all to the station. There he had a hard time arranging the matter. After patching up the dolls as best he could with some sticking plaster, he proposed to send the dog to the pound. Edward Walsh wailed.

"Why shud you patch up them dolls and p'izen my pup?" he howled.

Finally they were all sent away happy. When boy and dog were gone Grace turned a blanched countenance to Mary and whispered:

"What if he'd known what was in the basket?"

Mrs. Schmidt got the dainties.

J. A. GWYNNE DIES SUDDENLY.

Retired Banker Expires at His Home in Rye—Was 74 Years Old.

John A. Gwynne, a retired New York banker, widely known in Westchester through his connection with the plan to establish a large county park at Rye Beach, on the Sound, died at his home in Rye yesterday in his seventy-fourth year. The death of Mr. Gwynne was a surprise, as he had been in the best of health until a few days ago.

Mr. Gwynne arrived in Rye on Friday night, and on Saturday had a chill. He suffered an attack of heart weakness yesterday morning and expired before a physician could be summoned.

Mr. Gwynne was the senior member of the banking firm of Gwynne, Day & Co., of Wall Street, which was one of the financial concerns that survived Black Friday in 1873. He was a member of the Lotos Club, the American Yacht Club, the Apawamis Golf Club, and the Masonic fraternity.

Last November Mr. Gwynne ran for Supervisor of the town of Rye, but he was defeated. He celebrated his defeat by giving a dinner to the entire Board of Supervisors, and requesting his successful opponent to be the toastmaster. He leaves a widow and four children.

As "The Conspirators," the Columbia 'Varsity troupe swept into success at Carnegie Lyceum last night. The comedy was the work of Kenneth S. Webb, '06, and Louis J. Ehret, '08. As a conveyance it seemed fully strong enough to stand the wear and tear of a strenuous week.

Hans Blauderblatz and Prof. Oglethorpe, two Coney Island sharks, had dark designs to deprive the kindly Senator Van Twiller of his millions. Hans also had other reasons for wishing ill of the Senator, for Ferdy Van Twiller, the Senator's son, and, incidentally, the young and handsome hero, possessed the heart of the dashing Texas girl, Madge Fairmont—and Hans was desperately in love with Madge.

In Central Park, which had been rented by the Senator to give his daughter Doris a birthday party, the two "bad men" began their evil work and through the machinations of the professor the lovers were all changed to stone from drinking a love philter. The scene then changed to the Senator's country seat at Riverdale-on-the-Hudson. Here the conspirators exhibited the statues, but by a lucky chance the professor made a slip and back again they all came to life and presumably lived happily ever after.

There were so many individual hits that one might easily have called the company an "all-star cast." While as for flowers, the Weber Music Hall, in its most palmy first night, never equaled the floral tributes that went over the footlights last night. As the dashing leading man, Fedry Van Twiller, Emil V. Kehrlein, Jr., one of the best broad jumpers in college, and also a cotillion leader, perhaps won on the matter of floral reception. At the end of his first song, "The Girl from the Lone Star State," he was deluged with bouquets as large as himself. Mr. Kehrlein doubtless will find himself a matinée idol before the week is over. To Ralph K. Wuppermann fell the rôle of the leading woman, Madge Fairmont, and one wondered how it could have been played with more masculine charm. The duet between Madge and Ferdy, called "Two Little Eyes," with the masculine soprano, was grotesque.

Walter Kelley and Louis Ehret got all the comedy possible out of the rôles of the two comedians and gave a clever bit of burlesque acting in the song, "How to Act." Mr. Ehret, as Tinker Bell, in a travesty on "Peter Pan," was voted irresistible. R. G. Conried, as Percival; Kenneth Webb, as White Eagle; T. A. T. Hopping, as Doris, and C. E. Dunwoodie all scored heavily.

But more than a word should be given to the chorus of "nursemaids" and "boarding-school girls," conscientious in their work, though at times most wonderfully ungraceful. Some of the gyrations can be appreciated only when seen.

Perhaps the big song hit of the evening was "The Real American," sung by Kenneth Webb in the first act. Other numbers that went well were "My Story Book Queen," sung by R. M. Richter, and "The Bogie Man," sung by A. E. Dunwoodie and R. M. Richter. The ensembles were effective, and everything had an encore. For a week "The Conspirators" will hold forth at the Carnegie Lyceum.

A DAY'S WEDDINGS.

PROHIBITION A FRAUD, DECLARES MISS COUZINS

Thinks Local-Option Law Would Do Great Harm Here.

KANSAS A HORRIBLE EXAMPLE

There, She Says, a Porter Swore to Eight Diseases, Including Perjury, to Get Seven Bottles.

Miss Phoebe Couzins, anti-woman's suffrage agitator and anti-prohibitionist, stopped in New York yesterday on her way from Albany to Washington. Last Thursday she addressed the New York Legislature, arguing against the proposed local option law.

Miss Couzins was seriously injured in an accident about a year ago, and has been West most of the time since, trying to get the use of her limbs again. When she reached Albany it was thought that she was sufficiently recovered to address the Legislature standing up, and when she sent a message asking for a few moments to "prink," get her hair straight, and set her bonnet at the right perch, it was thought that she was in robust health.

She surprised the members of the Senate and the Assembly by being wheeled in a chair to the Speaker's dais and by delivering her speech from her chair.

"I am not yet strong enough to stand long," she explained yesterday. "Still, I believe I managed to say enough to make the prohibitionist women and preachers realize that a Gatling gun had been wheeled into the Capitol."

Miss Couzins received a TIMES reporter at the Waldorf-Astoria, and declared that after twenty years in public life she had settled down to two lines of fighting—fighting the suffragists and fighting the prohibitionists.

"Prohibition in New York and blue law enforcements on Sunday," she said, "will mean the greatest harm to the community. While I was speaking to the Legislature Thursday some one in the gallery, evidently a preacher, hissed me because I referred to the drink offering prescribed by Moses. But I didn't mind that. I knew I was not sacriligeous, and I also knew that only geese and snakes hiss."

Miss Couzins declared that she didn't care what her former co-workers thought of her for changing sides and fighting suffrage and then attacking prohibition.

"I spent a year in Kansas," she said. "I saw enough in that prohibition State to make me believe with Bishop Potter that prohibition is an impudent fraud, an impudent failure, and that it breeds cant, hypocrisy, and perjury, and honeycombs the State with far greater evils than the open saloon system does when the saloon is watched and safeguarded.

"The Rev. Dr. Dinwiddie, Secretary to the Anti-Saloon League, when he says that the three prohibition States have absolute prohibition makes a statement that cannot be confirmed.

"I have spent a year in Kansas and know what I'm talking about. In that State all you need do is to swear that you are ill in order to get your whisky or beer from the drug store. A porter in one of our hotels was sent to a drug store, healthy, strong, and cheerful, to get seven bottles of beer for a party of commercial travelers. When he returned with the beer he had liver complaint, appendicitis, paralysis, neuralgia, indigestion, Bright's disease, cataract, and perjury. But he managed to keep on with his duties, and the beer party had no qualms of conscience. He had been compelled to swear to a different complaint for each bottle.

"This means that in prohibition communities men and youths are being taught to disregard the scanctity of an oath, and in Kansas they have lost all respect for it in the matter of getting drinks. What respect they had for the simple, unsworn-to truth they lost long ago.

"In Wilson, Kan., where I lived, I have seen the maid carry out 150 drug store liquor bottles on a morning, to say nothing of the beer bottles. A schoolteacher there told me that frequently her boys came to class showing plainly that they had been drinking. It is a frequent spectacle to see little boys and young men following grown men to the drug stores, and, when they come out with their bottles, offering to lend them corkscrews for a drink.

"The grade of liquor to be bought in such speak-easies is vile and harmful. An open saloon would not sell such stuff, for it would lose its business. If New York gets a taste of prohibition it will find that there will be just as much drinking, only it will be worse. And if the workingman is denied his beer in a decent, clean place on Sunday he will carry his liquor home and make home all the harder for his wife.

"I believe in beer gardens. They are open-air places for those men who need social pleasures. The men work six days a week, and should have some chance on their resting day. I was a Prohibitionist in my callow days, but I have seen enough of prohibition to make me an anti forever from now on."

Miss Couzins smiled at the proposition of a closed Sunday in New York.

"Sunday closing laws are always evaded," she said. "It is a humbug to try that. The saloons might be closed for a number of hours on Sunday, but not for all day."

You Must Certainly Wish to Help.

If the families we are helping to-day were to gather in Madison Square and tell their stories of sacrifice and privation, we could raise thousands for their relief. Yet their suffering is no less intense because under ten thousand roofs instead of one.

Do you not want to feel that sick babies and mothers may have food and warmth and medicine without advertising their need from house to house? You are generous. Law's Delay Committees Consider Remedies for Clogged Calendar.

The Wainwright bills and other remedies proposed for the clogged condition of New York courts were discussed yesterday at a luncheon given by the Chamber of Commerce committee, at its building, to the committees of the Bar Association and Merchants' Association on the subject. The Wainwright bills are the measures proposed by the Commission on the Law's Delay, with some amendments.

Justice Ingraham sent a letter to yesterday's meeting urging that the Legislature be asked to increase at once the number of Justices in the First Department to the limit allowed by the Constitutional amendment passed last year, and to provide for the election of the new Justices next Fall.

He also declared that, with the increased number of Justices, the courts could no more than care for current business. To clean up the arrearage of 8,000 cases he proposes the appointment of Commissioners empowered to try cases with a jury, as provided in the Ingraham Constitutional amendment to come before the Legislature for a second vote this year.

Another conference of representatives of the three committees will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. All three committees will go to Albany for the hearing on March 20.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Celluloid Articles Held to be Toys—Other Decisions.

In a decision by T. S. Sharretts, the Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday sustained a claim filed by B. Illfelder & Co. of New York, regarding the classification to be awarded certain articles made of celluloid. Collector Stranahan had assessed the articles at the rate of duty provided for the component of chief value, but the board finds that the articles should be granted entry at the rate of 35 per cent. under the provision in the Dingley tariff law for toys.

The Acme Leather Goods Company of this city filed a protest against the action of the Collector in assessing duty at the rate of 47½ per cent. on cotton velvet goods. Instead, the importer alleged the merchandise to be properly dutiable at 45 per cent. ad valorem. General Appraiser De Vries, for the board, finds that the claim is without merit.

Other importers' claims overruled were filed by R. F. Downing & Co., the Henry E. Frankenberg Company, Schein Brothers & Co. and others, Fleitman & Co., and the Ringheim Schlichten Ramie Manufacturing Company, New York; the Rosenthal-Sloan Millinery Company, St. Louis; Samuel Thompson's Nephew & Co., Boston, and F. W. Myers & Co., Plattsburg, N. Y.

The board sustained claims filed by Sullivan, Drew & Co., J. V. A. Cattus, and George W. MacCutcheon, New York.

THE COMMERCIAL WORLD

WHEAT—Some heavy covering of shorts in which Wall Street was understood to have figured largely sent wheat up from ⅜c to ⅞c a bushel in yesterday's market. Partial reactions followed the opening and fresh short accounts were put out by the room element, but declines did not proceed far at any time before meeting with a good demand from various quarters. The most important buying took place after midday when the name of a prominent Wall Street operator was associated with the purchases by a group of brokers in Chicago. The market, not being burdened by any weight of long wheat, responded quickly, gaining nearly 2 cents a bushel from the season's low point, at the close of last week. The world's shipments were 9,936,000 bushels, according to Broomhall, compared with 10,504,000 bushels the previous week. On this and the Government report of Saturday Liverpool closed ¾d net higher. There were also advances of 5 to 15 points at Paris and of 4 points at Budapest, but the Berlin market closed 1¼ to 1½ marks net lower. The visible supply increased 418,000 bushels, which compared with a decrease last year of 963,000 bushels. The cash market closed firm as follows: No 2 red, 84⅝c, elevator, and 86⅜c free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth, 87⅞c, free on board, afloat.

CORN—The corn market started out firm and higher on influences similar to those controlling wheat, but lost the decline at midday on account of realizing sales. In the afternoon returning strength in response to covering and strength in wheat gave the market a firm tone at the close, with prices ⅛@¼c net higher. The seaboard clearances ran up to 854,000 bushels, half of it from New York, while primary receipts were only 420,000 bushels, against 668,000 bushels last year. World's shipments were reported at 3,274,000 bushels, compared with 3,419,000 bushels the previous week. There was an increase of the visible of 68,000 bushels. At the close the cash market was firm with export sales of 8 loads, quotations in New York being as follows: No. 2 corn, 50½c, elevator, and 48c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 49c, and No. 2 yellow, 49c, free on board, afloat.

COTTON.—The cotton market was nervous and unsettled yesterday, with local bears quite aggressive and considerable stop loss selling on a scale down. The close was easy at a decline of 12@16 points, and sales for the day were estimated at 300,000 bales.

The opening was steady at a decline of 1 point on March, but generally unchanged to 3 points higher, which was a rather disappointing response to higher cables. After selling about 6 points net lower on the active months there was a rally to practically the closing figures of Saturday on covering of shorts. But the market failed to hold the advance, and bears began selling aggressively again with a view to catching stop loss orders on the short side under 10½c for May. Forced liquidation was in evidence under this figure, and the market increased the decline to 10.41c for May, or within 1 point of the lowest level reached under March notices at the close of last month. Final prices were only a point or so up from the bottom. Southern spot markets were reported quiet, with prices unchanged to ⅛c lower.

Coal Operators' Reply and Gold Engagement Diverse Market Influences.

The influence of Saturday's favorable bank statement and of the announcement of the engagement of $1,250,000 in gold in London for importation here were unequal yesterday to the task of offsetting the uneasiness bred by the publication of the operators' flat-footed refusal of the coal miners' demands. Nevertheless, these matters were of sufficient importance to mitigate the full effects of the operators' reply, and, while prices at the close of the day were in general substantially below those obtaining at the close on Saturday, the declining movement was leisurely; the trading was on a scale so diminished as to denote no exaggerated fears over a strike or its outcome, and the market at all times displayed a firmness of undertone rather notable under the conditions prevailing. The full influence of the situation created by the stand taken by the operators was naturally reflected in the prices of some of the stocks of the roads which will be directly affected if a strike ensues. Thus Reading's maximum loss was about 3½ points, some of which was later recovered, while Ontario and Western fell 1¾ points and Lehigh Valley, in the Philadelphia market, practically 1 point. On the other hand, Pennsylvania and New York Central were comparatively firm, although they, too, declined in some measure. The losses outside of these issues were on a most moderate scale, save in the case of high-priced shares such as Great Northern and Northern Pacific, which are subject to wide fluctuations either way, and in some directions, as in American Smelting, Central Leather, and National Lead, sharp advances were made, although these may be ascribed in large measure to pool activity.

There was little surprise in Wall Street over the definiteness of the operators' refusal of the union miners' demands. It has been understood that practically all operators in the anthracite regions were satisfied that any legitimate claims of the miners could be adjudicated by a renewal of the authority of the commission appointed as a result of the strike of 1902. This belief, of course, forms the main contention of the reply of the operators, and the contention is so well founded that the issue seems very clearly placed upon the shoulders of the miners' representatives. Particular attention in the financial district was devoted to that part of the answer which dealt with the disturbance entailed in an acceptance of the proposition that any agreement made should cover only one year, and the refusal of the operators to accede to any such provision was warmly approved, since a compact of so short a tenure would not only lead to a yearly unsettlement of all security markets and all lines of business related in any way to the coal trade, but the uncertainty bound to exist would be a continuing source of unsettlement through the twelvemonth periods. A partial explanation of the composure with which Wall Street looked upon the possibility of a strike growing out of the operators' refusal, is found in the general recognition of the fact that the operators were never in better shape to enter such a contest than at present, owing to the mildness of the Winter, which has permitted accumulations of coal not only by the companies themselves but by individuals the country over. That there would be losses, and serious losses, as a result of a strike in the anthracite regions is not questioned, but a tie-up of the bituminous industry would be fraught with much more serious consequences, since it would lead inevitably to a wide suspension of manufacturing. It is urged that a strike in both the bituminous and anthracite fields is unlikely, since the resources of the miners are so slender that work must go on in one region to maintain those workmen engaged in a contest. The indications of a strike in the bituminous field are less clear than of a similar issue in the anthracite district.

Yesterday's engagement of gold in London follows the sharp break in the exchange market last week, which plainly foreshadowed this outcome. The price of bar gold in London hardened yesterday, and demand sterling rates here were firm, but whether these movements possessed such permanent quality as to check any substantial inflow of gold, it is, of course, too early to determine. A continuation of high rates for money here and a speedy settlement of the Moroccan differences would undoubtedly favor a heavy movement. Money rates were a trifle easier yesterday, the natural outcome of the gold engagement and of the better showing which the banks are making in their transactions with the Sub-Treasury, from which since Friday they have gained $690,000, which compares with a loss of $1,059,000 in the same period a week ago.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

Bar Iron's Weakness Affecting the Pig Trade—Big Imports.

Pittsburg reports a marked weakness in the price of bar iron, which is quoted at $1.70. But little more than a month ago the price was $2.05. Trade advices predict a further drop of 10 cents a hundred. Pig iron shares tell the weakness, though United States Corporation officers have signified their readiness to take the unsold output in March at $17.25.

February steel exports have broken the record for the month. A large proportion of these shipments have gone to South America, where competition is strong with British and German makers.

The imports of various raw materials last month were the heaviest of any month in the history of the iron and steel trade. The total imports of iron ore, manganese ore, chrome ore, iron pyrites, and pig iron, &c., aggregated 158,098 tons. They came chiefly from the Cuban properties controlled by the Pennsylvania steel interests. The call for ore by mills in the interior is so urgent that substantial imports are being made from Spain and Greece.

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, March 12.—Money was in fair demand in the market to-day. Discounts were quietly firm. The rate of exchange in New York was followed with close attention.

Prices on the Stock Exchange were fairly steady, but trading was inactive. Consols were quiet early in the day, but closed easier.

Americans opened weak, improved to over parity, hardened during the last hour, and closed below the best quotations of the day. Grand Trunk suffered on account of the new issue. The new guaranteeed "two-premium" Canadian Pacific hardened on the traffic returns.

Foreigners were strong. Russians and Spanish were in good demand on Paris buying, but closed generally rather easier.

Japanese imperial 6s of 1904 were quoted at 104.

$1,250,000 IMPORT GOLD ENGAGED BY CITY BANK

All the Day's Offerings of Bars in London Market Coming Here.

EUROPE TAKING SECURITIES

Movement of American Stocks Leads to Favorable Influx of Gold—More Federal Deposits.

The National City Bank engaged for import about $1,250,000 gold in London yesterday. This is the first transaction of the kind this season, and marks, it is believed in banking circles, the beginning of a substantial movement of gold to New York. The National City Bank got all the gold bars that came into the open market in London yesterday.

Further large arrivals of gold are expected in London, and part of these, it is said, may come to New York. This initial engagement of gold was facilitated by the very large sales in the last few days of bills of exchange in the New York market against shipments of American securities to Europe. Further large offerings of security bills, it is said, probably will come upon the market, so that the supply of exchange from this source is likely to continue.

The fact that shipments of our securities to Europe made possible this first import of gold is a particularly interesting feature of the transaction. Europe has been buying heavily of American securities. It is said also that a large amount of stock which has been carried in this market is being transferred to European markets. A continuance of this movement of our securities to Europe would be a decidedly favorable factor in the New York money market, particularly in view of the fact that it already has led to the movement of gold in this direction.

Money was fractionally easier yesterday, and exchange rates advanced slightly. Call loans were made from 5 per cent. down to 3½ per cent., with 4½ per cent. the ruling rate for the day. Demand sterling, at the close of the day, was quoted at $4.8535 for Thursday's steamship, an advance of 5 points from last week's closing rate.

An interesting development yesterday in connection with the recent special deposits of Government funds was the placing of about $100,000 with New York City banks in addition to the $3,000,000 allotted to them last week. It was explained that this additional allowance was made possible by the fact that some of the banks in Philadelphia and other cities had failed to accept their full proportion of special deposits of $10,000,000. The balance made available in this way was redistributed, New York's share being about $100,000.

Opening prices in the local copper shares were firm, followed by a little selling pressure, which was readily cared for however, and prices were generally well held. Commission houses were fairly active throughout the list, but no very great volume of business appeared in any particular issue. United Copper was the feature among the copper shares, advancing over two points, and the American Pneumatic issues were features in the miscellaneous list, the common gaining over 2 points and the preferred 1 point. Closing was at a slight reaction.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, March 12.—Seaboard common and second preferred stocks were active and strong in the local market today. The common opened at 30½, an advance of ⅛, going to 31. The second preferred sold up to 61½, an advance since the last previous sale of 1½ points. The strength of the stocks was attributed to the small floating supply in the market in view of the demand.

The market opened strong, but eased off on the second call. Consolidated Gas lost a point, as did also Anacostia and Potomac 5s. United Railways 4s lost ⅜, and Alabama Coal and Iron 5s gained ½.

The market closed firm but dull. Sales: Bonds, $69,000; stocks, 3,520.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 12.—La Salle Street put a wholly erroneous interpretation on the United States Supreme Court decision in the local traction case to-day. North Chicago, West Chicago, and Union Traction shares were bought on the assumption that the decision was a victory for the companies. In response thereto prices of the stock jumped ahead, those of West Chicago some 10 points.

The general idea was that the ordinance rights of the companies had been extended to fit the claims under the ninety-nine year extensions of the companies, whereas there now is no ninety-nine year franchise line in the city.

Just before the closing several small lots of traction stocks came upon the market. City Railway sold off 4½ points to 193½. West Chicago fell 5 points from its high figure of 60, but closed 5 points higher than recent figures, at 55. North Chicago was up 5 points, at 85.

Subway shares were active along lines similar to those of the revived speculation of Saturday.

Swift was firm, and Western Stone profited from prospective dividend payments and bond retirements. Carbon common fell 2, Carbon preferred 11⅛, and Title and Trust 1.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

What yesterday's stock market seemed most to lack was initiative. It was as unresponsive to one kind of news as to another. An aggressive bear crowd might have attacked stocks on the comprehensive refusal of the coal operators to entertain the demands of the miners, or, on the other side, an enterprising bull crowd might have bid prices up on the announcement of an initial engagement of gold for import, but it seemed to be nobody's business to translate these things into fluctuations, and the market drifted aimlessly through its appointed five hours. The coaler stocks were generally weak, under the leadership of Reading, but no weaker than they could have been without the news referred to—no weaker, for example, than they were at intervals last week, on rumors that the operators would present an unyielding front. Professional traders contributed perhaps 80 per cent. of the business transacted. They were about evenly divided on the market and free of bias, willing to go either way under any leadership, but there was no real incentive either to buy or sell. A majority of the room crowd appeared up to midday to be working perfunctorily for a rally; in the afternoon those who had bought in the forenoon sold out, prices sagging.

⁂

The mild bull fever which seized the market toward the end of last week subsided yesterday for want of something to feed upon. There was very little outside business.

⁂

The annual Missouri Pacific meeting will be held to-day. The first quotation on Missouri Pacific stock yesterday was made at 11:05 o'clock. This lack of interest, however, was conspicuous in the case of Missouri Pacific only because it has been somewhat chronic. A number of well-known stocks were not quoted at all yesterday. At 2:30 o'clock no less than thirty stocks, all sufficiently prominent to be regularly designated on the quotation boards of commission houses, were unquoted. Several of these, notably Chicago & Northwestern, Wabash common, Atlantic Coast Line, and Federal Smelting, "opened" in the last half hour. In such well-known issues as Delaware & Hudson, Rock Island preferred, Alton common and preferred, Atchison preferred, Manhattan, Twin City Rapid Transit, American Locomotive preferred, Corn Products common and preferred, American Car & Foundry preferred, Reading second preferred, Baltimore & Ohio preferred, and Wisconsin Central there were no transactions. The list could be made longer.

⁂

Traders can hardly recall an occasion when the market made so little response to an initial transaction in gold, either for export or import. The initial engagement of last October's import movement was the pretext for an aggressive bullish demonstration in stocks.

⁂

Three commission houses in every five are either so conservative that they will not encourage their clients to buy stocks or outright bearish on the speculative situation.

⁂

The psychology of Wall Street tipping is an inexhaustible subject. A man, previously unknown, who could give out a money-making tip each morning for thirty days would have on the thirtieth day a following whose obedience would make his word a power in the stock market; but why should such a man want a following? The vendor of tips is not a philanthropist. He makes his money selling his opinions instead of acting upon them. Once in a while a professional tipster is employed by men who are conducting operations in the market. They give him three or four tips which are made good, and then that tipster has a ten days' vogue which is turned to good account by his employers. The idea of a tipster selling for $5 the information that a stock will have an advance of 5 points on the day following is so ridiculous that one can take the success of tipsters in general only as another illustration of the infinite credulity of the speculative mind. No professional follower of speculation as a means of livelihood hopes to be right more than a fraction over half the time. One of the best known operators in the Street has said that if he could be right three-fifths of the time instead of four-sevenths of the time he would get all the money in Wall Street. The difference between three-fifths and four-sevenths is one-thirty-fifth. Another professional speculator, a floor trader who has made a great deal of money in the last twenty years, says that he needs to be right only two-fifths of the time to keep ahead of the game. He reasons that in five trades he will make more money on the two in which his judgment is right than he will lose on the three in which his judgment is wrong. But a tipster undertakes to keep his people right all of the time. It is impossible.

There seems to be generally a very bearish feeling on Consolidated Gas stock. Speculators have become very solicitous about the investment holders of the stock, believing that the dividend is likely to be reduced. Indeed, opinion is everywhere agreed that the dividend will be reduced; the only question is as to whether it will be cut to 6 or 5 per cent. Some extremists predict that it will be reduced to 4 per cent. as an object lesson to legislators. There is some curiosity to know, in the meantime, where the stock has been coming from. It is not a stock that is widely held in speculative hands. A very large proportion of it is held by investors. Brokers say without any hesitation that the selling has come from the inside, but they refer to the selling under which the price has declined so rapidly in the last few weeks. These particular insiders have not often been taken unawares. The chances are that they did their selling at much higher prices. The further chances are that from around 175 down there has been a lot of miscellaneous short selling. When the stock was selling around 180 bear tips on it began to come from Tammany sources. But the tips were superfluous. The stock did not begin to break badly until after the eighty-cent gas order was made. It was selling then around 175. There is probably no stock in the whole market in which a large short interest would be more vulnerable, especially a political short interest.

⁂

"I once had something to do with a political account in Consolidated Gas," said a well-known broker. "The politician is now dead, so I suppose I may talk about it. He was a big man in Tammany, and I imagine that he did only what his crowd did. He sold a big line of the stock short and it went steadily down. There was no appearance of a short interest. I had no difficulty in borrowing the stock to make deliveries on my client's short contracts, and, in fact, I made something in the interest account, because the stock was loaned to me at a fraction over the money rate. This had been going on for some time, when suddenly the stock became very hard to borrow and in a day or two more it was lending at a premium. Nothing had happened in the market to create this condition. Those who had been lending the stock so freely were simply calling it in. My client covered finally at a loss of about 20 points on his whole line. I don't know how the others fared. If I were running the market in Consolidated Gas right now I should make it very accessible to borrowers and encourage short selling."

⁂

After having sold in London at 130½ Reading opened here at 129 and sold down steadily from that figure to 125½. The good buying which brokers reported last week was not in evidence yesterday. Here is another stock touching which general sentiment is very bearish. When it crossed 125 last year on the upward movement the bull crowd hotly denied that there was any manipulation going on and asserted that the stock advanced on investment buying. Perhaps, then, this of the last few weeks has been investment selling. The good buying of Reading reported on last week's decline probably represented the taking back of stock sold by well-informed men at much higher prices. It is supposed that some large holders of the stock sold it heavily on the advance to 164 and borrowed it to make deliveries, holding their own possessions intact. Such men might cover their outstanding short contracts below 120 and still not be keen to increase their original long interest.

⁂

Those on the long side who overstayed last week's bulge in prices found a very narrow market yesterday on which to sell.

⁂

The strongest features of the market yesterday were American Smelting and National Lead. The last transaction reported on the tape was one of 2,000 shares in American Smelting at 160.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Directors of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. on the company's stock payable on April 16 to stockholders of record March 16.

The February gross earnings of the Manila Electric Railway amounted to $70,600. Operating expenses were $34,845, leaving net earnings of $35,755.

William A. Read & Co. have purchased from the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie Railroad Company $2,860,000 first consolidated mortgage 4 per cent. gold bonds of that company, due 1938, payment of interest guaranteed by indorsement by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

The Etna Iron and Steel Company has been organized and is to be incorporated shortly with a capital of $5,000,000 to develop several thousand acres of iron ore lands near Cedar Town, Ga. The concern will erect furnaces and a steel plant. The organizers are Alexander Hamilton, T. N. Barnsdall, S. H. Wagner, and W. D. Lowe, the latter a resident of this city.

The terms of subscription to the 2,000 new shares of stock of the Knickerbocker Trust Company are at $1,000 a share in proportion to the holdings of stockholders of record March 31. Subscriptions must be accompanied by a payment of one-third the amount due, which must be made by April 2.

The Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Company has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred stock and a semi-annual dividend of 2½ per cent. on the common. The quarterly report shows a surplus to March 1 of $2,930,594. President Maben again denied yesterday the stories that control of the company had been bought away from the present management. He said that, at the stockholders' meeting to be held Wednesday, the old Directorate would be re-elected.

ACTIVITY IN GERMAN TRADE.

Reflected in Reports of the Greatest Joint Stock Banks.

BERLIN, March 12.—The annual reports of the greatest joint stock banks of Berlin, which have just been published, reflect the activity in German trade and industry in the year 1905.

Nine of the principal banks, excluding the Reichsbank, with an aggregate capital of $277,000,000, distributed nearly $24,000,000 in dividends, being an increase of over $4,000,000 as compared with the preceding year. All departments of banking activity exhibit largely increased figures. The current liabilities amounted to $951,500,000, an increase of $156,000,000. The liquid assets aggregated $869,000,000, an increase of $64,000,000; cash on hand, $102,000,000, a decrease of $6,500,000.

The pressure upon the resources of banks attracts comment, and is explained as being partly due to the heavy movement in foreign trade anticipating the new tariff. A number of the largest banks considerably expanded their foreign business in the course of the year.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 12.—The announcement that the answer of the anthracite operators to the demands of the miners was a flat refusal made no impression whatever upon prices at the opening, the tone at that time displaying no little firmness, but it was not long maintained. New York persistently pressed Reading for sale, and as its price weakened it carried Lehigh Valley with it. The remainder of the list was sympathetically affected. The movement against Reading is believed here to have been deliberately planned by the "shorts," as several houses had been advised early that a "drive would be made against Reading."

The weekly statement of the local banks disclosed a very weak showing, the percentage of reserve to liability being only 25.5 per cent., while no fewer than eight banks were below their legal reserve. Shipments of currency to New York last week were very heavy.

Total sales, 27,712 shares.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Brisk Trading in Mining Shares on the Curb.

Nevada Consolidated Up to 18—International Salt Sells Down on Heavy Trading.

Trading in mining shares was brisk on the curb yesterday and well distributed, but little activity developed in the rest of the outside securities. The feature of the light trading among the Industrials was the weakness of International Salt, which went rapidly down before the heaviest selling that has appeared in this stock. The price was well supported between fractions over 43 and 44 until the afternoon. Then as no let-up in the selling orders followed the morning's activity, a decline set in which was carried down to 40⅝ at the close, after sales of 6,500 shares, more than were traded in the entire last week.

Nevada Consolidated gained 1 point after selling 10,000 shares, closing at 18. Tonopah Extension sold 8,000 shares up from 11⅛ to 13⅛, and United Copper, after a day of what was light trading for that stock, closed at 69⅞, 2⅝ above the opening. The other mining shares for the most part receded fractionally.

SAXE BILL WON'T STAND, CENTRAL'S COUNSEL SAYS

But the Road Doesn't Object to Its Requirements.

SPEAKER JEERED AT HEARING

Crowd Howls When R. E. Ingersoll Says "Keep Children Off 11th Av."—Tracks Must Go, Says Mayor.

Speaking, as attorney, for the New York Central Railroad, Ira A. Place declared to Mayor McClellan yesterday that the Saxe bill to compel the removal of the railroad tracks from Eleventh Avenue and the placing of them in a subway was unconstitutional. The declaration was made at a lively public hearing held at the City Hall.

"The necessity of either removing or depressing the railroad tracks in Eleventh Avenue is conceded by the city," declared the Mayor in opening the hearing. He then called on Mr. Place, who headed the opposition to the measure. Mr. Place was followed by representatives of the hay, seed, and grain interests along the west water front, who also opposed the measure.

Mr. Place began, by declaring the bill unconstitutional, but asserted the readiness of the Central to do all that the bill required if it could be done in legal form by a contract between the city and railroad company.

"Our objections are not to the purposes of the bill," Mr. Place said, "but that it is in such form that the purposes cannot be attained. We concede that the purpose is a good one. Our objection to the bill in general is that it will not and can not accomplish its avowed purpose."

Mr. Place said that his company would not feel justified in expending the large sums of money that would be required to make the necessary changes unless the courts first pronounced the bill constitutional. If the tracks had to be placed in a subway the company would be deprived of facilities by which it now handles 2,000,000 tons of foodstuffs annually.

Mayor McClellan suggested that Mr. Place seemed to be speaking in favor of placing the tracks on an elevated structure instead of in a subway.

"We do not seek to impose any plan on the city," Mr. Place replied, "but we do submit that an elevated railroad tapping the dock system would be the best solution of the question, and that in many places there could be no objection to such a system."

A representative of the Gansevoort Marketmen's Association urged the Mayor to remember that the removal of the tracks for a subway system would paralyze an industry in foodstuffs which handled $300,000,000 of grain and meat annually over the Eleventh Avenue tracks.

W. W. Hatch, J. E. Walsh, George F. Secor, and R. E. Ingersoll, representing handlers of perishable freight, to the amount of several thousand carloads daily, also protested against the bill.

"No one believes a subway can ever be built," Mr. Ingersoll said. "If it be a good thing to shift the tracks and refuse an elevated road then shift them and compensate the railroad and the merchants who will be ruined. The talk of the loss of life has been exaggerated. Most of those killed were children who were climbing on the cars to steal. Let the clergy who are protesting against the tracks tell their parishioners to keep their children off Eleventh Avenue—"

A howl of derision that called forth a rebuke from the Mayor drowned Mr. Ingersoll's remarks.

Senator Saxe was first to speak in favor of the bill. He contradicted the figures of the marketmen and declared his ability to prove that a large proportion of the produce to which they referred came from New Jersey, and not down Eleventh Avenue.

M. M. Dawson of the Committee of Fifty of the Social Reform Club declared that as an elevated structure was out of the question the committee was compelled to favor a subway.

"The Central is pursuing its usual tactics of delay," said Mr. Alger, who drew the bill. "If the company was in earnest and wanted an elevated system it could have appealed to the Rapid Transit Commissioners."

Father Chidwick was the last speaker. He repeated the arguments he has advanced from time to time during the last three years at public meetings and elsewhere as to the loss of life and limb by the operation of the railroad.

The Mayor made no comment as he declared the hearing closed.

TRAINS TO SHIP CANAL.

But They Whiz by Washington Heights Stations.

Residents of Washington Heights have been yearning many months for subway trains. Yesterday they got them—in a way. The sad part of it is that the trains that now run all the way to the Harlem Ship Canal give no more relief to the Heights section than if they didn't run. For the two deep stations at 168th Street and 181st Street are not open and the trains flash by so fast that they appear a mere blur.

Yesterday these two stations seemed to be far from completion. In that at 168th Street, which is the further advanced, the elevator shafts are not ready and there is still ground to be hollowed out for the station proper, where the entrance, the ticket booths, and other necessary appurtenances will be.

The first train to carry passengers through the tunnel started from 157th Street at 6 o'clock yesterday morning. There were only two trains, of three cars each, on the route. They ran on a twelve-minute headway in the early and late hours, but in the middle of the day the interval was sixteen minutes.

North of 157th Street the first stop is at Dyckman Street. That station is at the foot of the mountain where rests Fort George, and it is far away from Washington Heights, whose residents have been most urgent for a prompt opening of the tunnel. The country between Dyckman Street and 220th Street, the present terminus, is an open valley, with the nearest house blocks away.

The station at 207th Street is now nothing but a skeleton of steel, with no floors, doors, or stairs, so of course the trains don't even slow up there. There is a stop, though, at 215th Street. The end of the line at present is the south side of a drawbridge running from the King's Bridge station of the New York Central. A new draw will have to be put in before the Interborough line is continued on to Van Cortlandt Park. None of the road north of the Ship Canal has been built yet.

Many passengers curious to see what the new stretch of tunnel was like boarded the shuttle trains at 157th Street yesterday. They had rather long waits and peered anxiously through the arch for a sight of the orange lights that distinguish the Heights shuttles. "King's Bridge!" is what the guards yell out to the northbound passengers, but they don't say anything about having to walk over a long bridge to get there.

BAKERS WANT ELEVATORS.

Urging Coggeshall Bill to Amend the Bakeshop Law.

Why can't bakers have dumbwaiters? is the query that bakers are agitating now. When the tenement house law went into effect one of its provisions was that no bake shop should use or have a dumbwaiter, and for years the bakers of this city have been obliged to have the bread, biscuit, pies, cakes, and other products carried upstairs from the basement bakery to the salesroom in wooden trays by a baker or baker's helper.

State Senator Coggeshall of Oneida County has introduced an amendment at Albany to allow the use of dumbwaiters, and the New York Retail Bakers' Association is making efforts to have the bill passed. The State organization is backing up the movement. L. A. Ware, President of the local association, said:

"It is supposed that the object of this law was to prevent fires, but it is a matter of record that, proportionately, there are fewer fires in bakeshops than in other places.

"Our dumbwaiters are private, and run only one story. The bake shops are fireproofed, according to law, and the dumbwaiters also are fireproofed."

Members of the bakers' association say this discrimination against them has caused the fire insurance companies to charge bakers almost prohibitive premiums. A movement has been started to form a bakers' co-operative fire insurance company.

MRS. ROGERS KILLED HERSELF

She Had Quarreled with Kirby, a Bank Clerk—Williams Cleared.

Coroner Shrady decided yesterday after a preliminary inquiry into the death of Mrs. Ruth Rogers that the case was one of suicide. Mrs. Rogers, who was young and pretty, was found dead in her flat, 154 West Eighty-fourth Street, Sunday morning by John S. Williams, a roomer. There was a bullet wound in her head, and by her body lay a revolver with an empty chamber.

Williams, who is employed by the Harrolds Motor Car Company, 1,789 Broadway, was arrested on suspicion, as he was the only other occupant of the flat when the fatal shot was fired. He was discharged yesterday under a small bond to appear as a witness if wanted. His employers speak highly of him.

The police and Coroner Shrady think Mrs. Rogers killed herself because of a quarrel with Howard E. Kirby, an employe of the Hanover National Bank, who is now critically ill in the Presbyterian Hospital. Detectives learned that Mrs. Rogers had a five-year-old daughter, who was being cared for by Mrs. J. Frazer of Perry Avenue and 208th Street, the Bronx.

Mrs. Frazer was a witness before Coroner Shrady. She said that Mrs. Rogers's maiden name was Lillian Ruth Andrews. She told the Coroner that she had heard nothing of Rogers for more than four years. Mrs. Frazer promised to rear the child.

Miss Marian Pierrot said that Mrs. Rogers told her Saturday night that she had quarreled with Kirby and that she meant to kill herself.

Kirby has not yet been told of Mrs. Rogers's death. The inquest was postponed in the hope that he will soon be sufficiently recovered to testify.

LAWYER MILLER IS SORRY.

Not for Hitting Comstock, but for Doing It in Court.

When the case of Ernest Richards was called yesterday before United States Commissioner Shields, in the Federal Building, Lawyer Hugh Gordon Miller, who at a former hearing of the case struck Anthony Comstock for characterizing one of his statements as a lie, handed the following communication to Commissioner Shields:

> I desire now publicly and in open court before this case is disposed of, to offer my profound apology to your Honor for an episode which occurred in this court and in this case on Friday. I do this independent of and as an entirely separate proposition from the cause of the regrettable occurrence or the provocation I had in striking Mr. Comstock. I offer this apology not in any way to Mr. Comstock, but to the court in recognition of the respect due it as a temple of justice as well as to your Honor personally. In the excitement of the moment I omitted this apology at the time of the occurrence. I wish this voluntary apology to the majesty of the law, which your Honor has so long and so ably represented, to be spread upon the record of the court in this case.

Mr. Miller has received more than a hundred letters thanking him for hitting Mr. Comstock.

Richards, the accused, charged with using the mails for improper purposes, was released yesterday on bail.

BURGLARS ESCAPE POLICE.

Entered Store Opposite 125th St. Station—Alarm Scared Them Away.

Burglars broke into a department store directly opposite the West 125th Street Police Station yesterday morning, cut through the flooring, and were about to dynamite the safe when they touched off a burglar alarm.

The ringing of the bell scared the thieves, who beat a hasty retreat so that all the police captured was an empty whisky flask, a complete kit of burglar's tools, and a coil of fuse. That the thieves were thoroughly acquainted with the ground was evident from the manner in which they went about entering the store, which is occupied by Misel Brothers. It faces the station house, and is so near to it that Sergt. McKeon, who was on duty, heard the ring of the alarm.

JUDGE IN AUTO CASE WAS A WITNESS, TOO

Barlow Testified Before Himself Against a Motorist.

MORE CENSURE BY CRANE

Colgate Hoyt, Who Offered Rewards for Reckless Drivers, Bails Out His Nephew on Speeding Charge.

Motorists heard a good deal about speed and the speed limit law from several of the Magistrates yesterday. Magistrate Barlow, having witnessed a spurt on Fifth Avenue himself, appeared as a witness before himself, and Magistrate Crane, in the Yorkville Court, supplemented what he had already said on the subject.

Up in the Westchester Court Nelson S. Riley of 499 Fifth Avenue, who was answering a summons to appear for exceeding the speed limit, and who had read of Magistrate Crane's views on the subject, paused at the door to inquire:

"I wonder if there is any chance of Magistrate Crane being on the bench?"

Mr. Riley was informed that there was no chance of that, as Magistrate Whitman was sitting there. He apparently gained nothing by the difference, for Magistrate Whitman held him in $300 bail for trial in Special Sessions.

The case in which Magistrate Barlow jumped in to assist as a witness was heard in the Jefferson Market Court. The accused man was Maxwell S. Mannes, a real estate dealer, living at 2 West Ninety-fourth Street. Bicycle Policeman Presley testified that he had stopped the machine in which Mr. Mannes sat with three women, in Fifth Avenue, near Twenty-fourth Street, having followed it from Thirty-third Street, and that it was going at the rate of seventeen miles an hour.

Before Mr. Mannes testified Magistrate Barlow asked him if he had counsel, and also asked him if he was a brother of David Mannes. Mr. Mannes said that he was, the Magistrate remarking that he and David Mannes were friends. Mr. Mannes stated that he considered his arrest entirely uncalled for, denied that he had exceeded the speed limit, and said he had been compelled to spurt a little before the Holland House in order to avoid a collision.

"I desire to be sworn in the case, Mr. Stenographer," said Magistrate Barlow.

The Magistrate was sworn and testified that he was on Fifth Avenue Sunday with a friend and saw a big white automobile going south at a speed of at least fifteen miles an hour. He remarked to his friend: "That fellow ought to be pinched." Then he saw a policeman going after the man and arresting him. It appeared that the case was that of Mannes.

Magistrate Barlow then held Mannes in $500 bail for trial, remarking: "I don't consider your arrest an outrage; I consider it well-timed. Officer, if you had not made this arrest I should have preferred charges against you."

Colgate Hoyt, who, as Vice President of the Automobile Association of America, has recently been offering rewards for the arrest of reckless autoists, appeared in the West Side Court to give a bond for his nephew, Alexander M. Thackera. The latter was arrested by Roundsman Cosey of the bicycle squad for exceeding the speed limit in Forty-ninth Street, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues, on Sunday.

Mr. Hoyt seemed perturbed over his nephew's arrest. It was he who offered $500 reward for the apprehension of the man who caused the death of Mrs. Jane Craig, wife of Police Sergeant Craig, in the automobile smashup in Jerome Avenue on Friday last.

Thackera, who is the manager of the George Westinghouse Automobile Company, and was formerly an Ensign in the United States Navy, explained that he was trying a new machine, and that although he had applied the brakes it had shot through Forty-ninth Street at a pretty lively clip.

"What was the matter with the machine?" asked Magistrate Breen of Thackera.

"It was new, in the first place," answered Thackera, "and it was cantankerous in the second place."

"Oh, indeed," remarked the Magistrate, seemingly surprised at the excuse. "What made it cantankerous?"

"There was too much oil in her tanks and I had to do something to let some of the oil out," Thackera explained.

Mr. Hoyt furnished a bond of $100 for Thakera's appearance in court, giving his home, 25 Park Avenue, valued at $400,000, as security.

John Ballard, chauffeur for F. W. Woolworth, proprietor of a chain of five and ten cent stores, appeared in the Yorkville Court before Magistrate Crane. Mounted Policeman England arrested him in Fifth Avenue, between Fiftieth and Fifty-first Streets, on Sunday, charging him with going over twenty miles an hour.

"You should have arrested the owner instead of the chauffeur," said Magistrate Crane, when England had stated his case against Ballard.

"I don't think, your Honor, that we were going as fast as the officer says," remarked Mr. Woolworth, who was standing close by.

"Of course, you don't," said the Magistrate. "You automobilists never do know how fast you are going. You go as fast as you please, and toot your horn, and if any one escapes you by the skin of his teeth you give him the laugh."

"I think you are too severe on automobilists," Mr. Woolworth remarked.

"No," said the Magistrate. "I'm not a crank on the question. I simply know what I am talking about. I know how automobilists ignore the laws."

The Magistrate held Ballard in $300 bail for trial, Mr. Woolworth furnishing the bond.

Nelson S. Riley of 499 Fifth Avenue, who was arrested for speeding along Pelham Parkway, East Chester, on Sunday, said when asked why he had exceeded the speed limit:

"I thought I was still in Connecticut."

COURT WANTS MRS. BILLINGS.

She Ignores Subpoena in Case in Which She Was Complainant.

Mrs. C. K. G. Billings, wife of the horseman, did not respond to the subpoena issued on Saturday directing her to appear in Yorkville Court yesterday against Arthur Ester, arrested last Friday night for attempting to swindle her. Her butler was in court, but that did not satisfy Magistrate Crane. Ester said he lived at Woodmere, L. I. Mrs. Billings complained that he attempted to sell her tickets for a ball of the "Telegraph Clerks and Lady Operators' Union," a bogus organization. When the case was called on Saturday Mrs. Billings was not present, and Magistrate Moss directed that a subpoena issue for her. To-day the case was adjourned again until to-morrow, and the Magistrate directed Detective Conroy to try to get Mrs. Billings to court.

NEW PLAN TO COOL SUBWAY.

Chief Engineer Rice Has One, but He Won't Tell What It Is.

A new plan for cooling the Subway in the Summer time has been worked out by Chief Engineer Rice of the Rapid Transit Commission. He will embody it in a report to the commission within a few days. What it is exactly, the Chief Engineer will not say as yet, but it is expected materially to improve hot weather conditions in the Subway.

One plan suggested by an engineer is to store compressed air in a central reservoir, and then to turn it loose in the Subway. It would have to be distributed through pipes to every part of the tunnel. But there is little likelihood of such a scheme being put into practice, because the commission's engineers think it impracticable.

The aim is not to purify, but to cool the air. Repeated analyses have convinced the engineers in charge that the atmosphere in the Subway is as healthful as that in the streets, but it is a great deal hotter.

ROCKEFELLER, JR., QUITS MISSOURI PACIFIC BOARD

Resigns with Prentice, Other Standard Oil Member.

SEVERING GOULD RELATIONS

Wall Street Thinks the Plan to Extend Western Pacific to the Coast Explains Withdrawals.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and E. Parmalee Prentice, the two Standard Oil representatives on the Missouri Pacific Railroad Board, retired as Directors of the company at the annual meeting of the company in St. Louis yesterday and were succeeded by James Henry Smith and S. Davies Warfield. The retirement of the Standard Oil representatives was regarded in Wall Street as highly significant. It was learned that the Rockefellers have disposed of most of their holdings of Missouri Pacific. This practical severance of the Rockefellers' relations with the road, following their retirement from the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company, another Gould property, naturally aroused much interest in the financial district. It led to the belief that the course adopted by the Rockefellers in leaving these Gould properties was an outcome of the determination of the Goulds to proceed with their Western Pacific plans notwithstanding the opposition of the Union Pacific interests to the building of a Gould extension to the Pacific Coast.

The fact that the Rockefeller representatives have retired from the Missouri Pacific caused Wall Street yesterday to doubt the accuracy of the statements made at the time of the adoption of the Gould plans for a Pacific Coast extension, that this action on their part would not affect the relations between the Union Pacific and the Standard Oil interests. The withdrawal of the Rockefellers from the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company was regarded as an indication of a disposition on the part of the Rockefellers to withdraw from their affiliations with the Gould interests and their action in leaving the Missouri Pacific goes a long way to strengthen this belief.

E. T. Jeffery, the spokesman for the Gould interests, said yesterday, however, that so far as he knew no significance could be attached to the retirement of the Rockefeller representatives from the Missouri Pacific. He added that he was not himself a member of the Missouri Pacific Board and could not, therefore, speak officially. He doubted he said, if the opposition of the Union Pacific interests to the construction of the Western Pacific by the Goulds had any bearing on the retirements.

Mr. Jeffery said that he did not believe that the Rockefellers had disposed of their holdings of Missouri Pacific. People, he said, did not sell stock in that fashion. He added that the Rockefellers were gradually resigning all their Directorates. Mr. Jeffery's attention was drawn to the recent retirement of the Rockefellers from the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company, and to the fact that they had disposed of most of their interest in that property. Mr. Jeffery said that he had no knowledge that the Rockefellers had disposed of their Colorado Fuel & Iron holdings and that the general understanding to that effect could not be regarded as reliable.

The Gould and Union Pacific interests came into conflict over the plans of the Goulds for an extension to the Pacific Coast, invading the territory of the other transcontinental line. The decision of the Goulds to carry out their plans for the building of the Western Pacific, which is to give them this outlet to the Pacific, resulted in the retirement of the Gould representatives from the Union Pacific Board. Now the separation of the two systems is made still more complete by the Rockefellers, who have very large holdings of Union Pacific, retiring from the Missouri Pacific Directorate.

Wall Street recalled yesterday the report current for a while during Joseph Ramsey, Jr.'s, contest for the Presidency of the Wabash Railroad, that he had gained the support of the Rockefellers against the Goulds. Wall Street doubted the accuracy of these reports, and it was shown at the annual meeting of the Wabash that Mr. Ramsey had not the support of any large percentage of the company's security holders. The news of the retirement of the Rockefellers from the Missouri Pacific and the statement that they have sold their holdings of that stock suggest that even at the time of the Wabash contest their holdings of Gould securities were very much smaller than was generally supposed at the time.

S. Davies Warfield is a Director of the Western Maryland Railroad, which was taken over by the Goulds as the eastern end of their extension to the Atlantic seaboard. He is the first of the old Western Maryland Directors to be added to the Missouri Pacific Directorate.

Townsend Resolution Appropriates Money for Commerce Commission.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce to-day decided for favorable report on the Townsend joint resolution providing for an appropriation of $50,000 to enable the Interstate Commerce Commission to investigate railways and monopolies under the Tillman-Gillespie joint resolution and remedying defects in the original resolution.

The President to-day sent for Chairman Knapp of the Commerce Commission to inquire the amount of money needed for the investigation. Mr. Knapp said the commission would require at least $50,000.

ICE WON'T GO HIGHER.

The Trust Will Do the Best It Can Without Further Increasing Prices.

It was learned yesterday on the authority of a high officer of the American Ice Company—the Ice Trust—that no further increase in the price of ice will be made by that company, in spite of the shortage it will have to face this year.

Since the company announced an immediate increase of 10 cents a hundred pounds in the retail price of the commodity, and it was intimated that owing to the failure of the Hudson River crop and the shortage elsewhere this would only be the first of a series of increases, it has been the object of bitter attack. It was widely intimated that the company intended to make a good thing out of the shortage. Its shares went up at a great rate in the stock market, while denunciations of the trust for its failure to get a sufficient supply from out-of-the-way sources correspondingly increased.

It is now understood that the company will do the best it can without increasing prices further. The last increase was due as much to the feeling of the company's officers that its profit of 25 cents a ton on the ice sold was too small as it was to the prospect of a short crop. Exactly how the shortage will be met has not been determined. It costs 50 cents a ton additional to bring ice from Maine to New York, anyway, and the Maine crop is short, but the present determination of the company's Directors is to do everything possible rather than face the public indignation which further increases in cost to the public would undoubtedly elicit.

E. T. Bedford of the Standard Oil Company, who resigned from the American Ice Company's Directorate several days ago, because of the multiplication of his duties in the Corn Products Refining Company and other fields, was quoted in THE TIMES on Saturday as saying that he did not think that the shortage of ice ought to be made the excuse for increasing dividends, and that the company could not and would not increase its earnings by selling less ice at increased prices. Mr. Bedford's comment, it was learned yesterday, was not elicited by the increase in the price of ice, but by the higher price of American Ice securities. He believes that there has been no warrant for their advance in the expectation of larger profits due to a short crop.

CAPTAIN COWED PASSENGERS.

Panic in French Liner's Steerage in a Storm—Skipper Showed Revolver.

When the French liner Hudson, in yesterday from Havre, tied up at her pier in Hoboken, Capt. Juhan, one of the veterans of the French Line, declared that the voyage had been the roughest he had experienced in thirty years at sea.

On March 10 the Hudson ran into a gale. It was a southeaster, and before it began to subside the wind blew a hurricane, while the seas that accompanied it were so big that it was almost impossible for the liner to make any headway.

When the storm was at its height the passengers, all of whom were in the steerage, became panic stricken, and the minor officers and stewards had to appeal to the bridge officers. The passengers declared that if they had to die they wanted to die in the open, and finally they tried to get past the officers to the deck. When Capt. Juhan and First Officer Mahauaz reached the steerage a panic was on.

Capt. Juhan, as a last resort, threatened violence if the passengers tried to go on deck, where they would certainly have been swept into the sea. There were no more attempts to get out on deck. At one time the skipper had to exhibit his revolver in order to persuade the passengers that he meant business.

SOME NEW TRAFFIC RULES.

Herald Square Regulations Changed—New Mounted Posts.

At the recommendation of Inspector Flood, head of the Traffic Squad, Police Commissioner Bingham has ordered several changes in the details and rules of that section of the department, to go into effect to-day.

Four new posts for mounted men are established along West Street, between the foot of West Tenth Street and Battery Place. The men will be located at the various "farms," as the wide spaces used for storing trucks are called. Three new mounted posts are established in South Street, between Fulton and Montgomery Streets.

The rules regarding traffic in Herald Square are also changed. Heretofore, vehicles going down Sixth Avenue and bound west through Thirty-fourth Street, were forbidden to pass through Thirty-fifth Street, south of the Herald Building, which is the most natural course, between 4 and 6:30 P. M., and during those hours were required to go through Thirty-sixth Street, north of the Herald Building, to get to the west of Broadway. The afternoon restriction upon the use of Thirty-fifth Street for westbound traffic is removed.

DANGER IN A LOCK CANAL.

W. B. Parsons Tells Why He Advocates the Sea-Level Plan.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—William Barclay Parsons of New York, a member of the Board of Consulting Engineers which reported on the best type of canal for Panama, to-day testified before the Senate Committee on Interoceanic Canals. He is an advocate of the sea-level canal and a signer of the majority report. The committee examined him concerning his objections to the lock type proposed by the minority.

Mr. Parsons said that ships 900 feet long were in near prospect, and these would require 1,000-foot locks if they were to pass through the canal. It was his opinion that if a big ship should strike one of the gates everything movable would be carried to the Caribbean Sea. The cost of constructing 1,000-foot locks at Gatun, said Mr. Parsons, would be sufficient to condemn the minority plan, even if safety were not taken into consideration.

Mr. Parsons will continue his testimony to-morrow.

MORE CAPITAL FOR HARPERS.

Publishers Increase It from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000.

ALBANY, March 13.—Harper & Brothers of New York City to-day filed with the Secretary of State a certificate of increase of capital from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000. The certificate is signed by A. E. Orr, G. B. M. Harvey, J. Henry Harper, and others.

Col. George B. M. Harvey, President of Harper & Brothers, said last night that the increase was purely a routine matter, made for the purpose of substituting income bonds for stock.

CARNEGIE FINDS A RIVAL IN BENJAMIN FRANKLIN

In a Stop at Richmond He Learns of Another Library Founder.

GIVES $110,000 IN A JIFFY

Tells a Delegation That He Wants to Get All Men with Lots of Money to Give It Away.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., March 13.—It took twenty minutes for Andrew Carnegie to give away $110,000 this morning upon his arrival here from Jacksonville, Fla., en route to Hot Springs, accompanied by his little daughter.

The sum of $100,000 was added to a similar amount already donated for a Carnegie library in this city. The $10,000 is for a Carnegie Hall in the Railroad Young Men's Christian Association Building, which is to be erected in Main Street.

Mayor McCarthy, upon learning of Mr. Carnegie's presence in town, went to the station, hoping to greet him in his private car. In the meantime, however, Mr. Carnegie had gone to the Mayor's office, and had been there alone fifteen minutes when the Mayor returned. When Mr. McCarthy walked in he found that his visitor was ransacking his library and had discovered a book that interested him.

"Do you know, Mr. Mayor, that I have found a book here in your library that I never saw before," remarked Mr. Carnegie, as he displayed Volume II. of Fletcher's Columbian Knowledge Series. "I find here that Benjamin Franklin founded the first public library in Philadelphia in 1778. That is information to me, and I will use that fact in a lecture that I am to deliver shortly."

Mr. Lorraine, spokesman for a Railroad Young Men's Christian Association delegation, informed Mr. Carnegie that $60,000 had already been contributed for a new building, and that about $10,000 more was needed to fit out an extra floor.

"We need $10,000 to complete this work, and we would like to ask you if you would not help us out in the matter," said Mr. Lorraine.

"Is that all?" said Mr. Carnegie. "Why, certainly. I am only too glad to do it," and the gift was made in much the same way as one man would give another a cigar. When the delegation began to thank him Mr. Carnegie said:

"My, my, don't mention it. It pleases me more than it does you. What I want to do is to get all men with lots of money to give it away. One certainly can't take it away with him when he dies."

Four years ago Mr. Carnegie offered to give the city $100,000 for a library if the Council would appropriate $10,000 annually for its maintenance. The city refused to do this, and the proposition fell through. Mr. Carnegie, however, never withdrew the offer, which to-day he voluntarily doubled.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., March 13.—Andrew Carnegie passed through this city to-day en route to Hot Springs. Prof. J. M. Page was at the station to invite him to visit the university between trains, but Mr. Carnegie was unable to accept the invitation and proceeded on his way.

Prof. Page announced to-day that under the offer Mr. Carnegie made of $500,000 to the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Fund of the university, provided alumni and friends raised a like amount, one-half of the required amount had been raised to date.

EXPLAINS KILLING OF WOMEN.

Gen. Wood Says Slaughter at Dajo Hill Was Unavoidable.

MANILA, March 13.—Major Gen. Wood, who has arrived, has announced that he assumes full responsibility for the fight against the Moros at Dajo Hill, near Jolo. He said that there was no wanton destruction of women and children in the fight, though many of them were killed by force of necessity because the Moros used them as shields in the hand-to-hand fighting.

Major Gen. Wood declared that many of the women wore male attire and their sex could not be distinguished. Another confusing cause was the desperation with which the women fought, the priests having worked all the Moros to a religious frenzy. Many of the Moros feigned death and butchered the American hospital men who were relieving the wounded. Gen. Wood says:

"Neither in this nor any fight has an American soldier killed a woman or child except in a close action when it was impossible to distinguish sex."

Secretary of War Taft cabled for a full explanation of the deaths of the women and children and Gen. Wood has sent a lengthy reply, of which the foregoing is the substance.

VICTORY FOR OPEN SHOP.

Chicago Edison Employes Give Up Strike Called in December.

CHICAGO, March 13.—Employers scored the first "open shop" victory of the year against a labor union yesterday when 150 strikers returned to work for the Chicago Edison Company.

The men, employed on outside line work, walked out early in December on demand for the closed shop.

REPEAL OF MORTGAGE TAX.

Dowling Bill to be Reported and May Be Passed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 13.—The opponents of the repeal of the mortgage tax law in the Legislature are evidently beaten. It now looks as if the Legislature will pass the bill of Assemblyman Dowling of Brooklyn, which wipes out all annual taxation of mortgages and substitutes a recording tax of one-half of 1 per cent.

House Committee Plans for a Great Battleship.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The House Committee on Naval Affairs is about ready to finish up the Naval Appropriation bill, which, if present plans are worked out, will carry at least one great fighting ship—a battleship of even greater tonnage and heavier armament than the Dreadnought, recently launched for the British navy.

The delay in approving plans for the two battleships authorized by the last Congress has operated to prevent the authorization of any more such ships at this session. But the launching of the Dreadnought has brought about a change of sentiment, and it is now practically assured that the new navy programme will contain at least one great battleship.

Representative Foss, Chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee of the House, has been opposed heretofore to authorizing any new construction of large ships at this session, but a majority of the committee members are now in favor of such action, and it is not believed Mr. Foss will continue his opposition. Plans for the Michigan and South Carolina, authorized last year, have not yet been adopted, but as far as work on them has proceeded they are believed to be nearly equal in battery power to the Dreadnought.

If Congress goes further, as now seems likely, and adds several thousand tons to their limit of displacement, in providing for the new ship naval constructors will have opportunity to show how far ahead of the Dreadnought they can go. Besides this big fighter the naval bill will carry a number of high-powered sea-going torpedo craft.

This will be following out the reccommendations of President Roosevelt, who has taken a leaf out of Japan's books and now desires to bring the torpedo craft of our navy up to standard with the fighting portion of the fleet. It is not unlikely also that the bill will carry appropriations for two new docks, one a graving dock and the other floating.

CROKER COMING IN MAY

For the Burial of His Two Sons—Committee to Escort Him Back.

Richard Croker is expected back in New York toward the end of May to attend the services which will be held when the bodies of his dead sons, Frank and Herbert, are put in the mausoleum constructed to receive them.

There will be nothing political in the return of the old Tammany chieftain any more than there was in his last visit. That was for the funeral of Frank Croker, when the latter was killed in an automobile accident at Ormond, Fla., more than a year ago. Not many months afterward Herbert died in a railroad car in the West. His father did not come back for his funeral, but arranged then to return when both bodies were to be placed in their final resting place.

It is likely that five of Mr. Croker's old friends, ex-Mayor Robert A. Van Wyck, ex-Fire Commissioner John J. Scannell, Andrew Freedman, Deputy City Chamberlain Campbell, and President John Fox of the Democratic Club will go to Ireland about May 1 and will act as a sort of informal committee to escort Mr. Croker back here on his mission. If this plan is carried out Mr. Croker may remain in the city for a few weeks, visiting old friends and old scenes before returning to his Irish estate.

TAFT FAMILY COUNCIL.

Secretary to Wire His Decision on Supreme Bench Offer.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—To-morrow afternoon Secretary Taft will go to New York to hold a family council with his three brothers on the question whether to retire from the world and become a Justice of the Supreme Court or continue in public life. One of these brothers, Henry W. Taft, has always been the Secretary's chief adviser on personal and business matters. Another brother, Charles P. Taft, will come from Ohio to attend the conference, and a third from Connecticut.

The Secretary's decision will be made known to the President by telegraph, and it is the present programme to announce it on Friday after the Cabinet meeting.

Mr. Taft's visit to New York has also an official aim. He goes in connection with the Prison Ship Martyrs memorial, which is in danger because of the New York Legislature's failure to carry out the terms of the grant by Congress.

WOMEN CROSS SIERRA MADRE.

Mrs. Hensey and Mrs. Cassidy the First Who Have Done So.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, March 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Hensey of New York, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Cassidy of Washington, D. C., and William T. Cumming of Boston have arrived here after a visit to Mexico, in the course of which they visited the Mitchell copper mines, which are across the Sierra Madre Mountains, 125 miles from Mexico City.

Mrs. Hensey and Mrs. Cassidy are the first women who ever crossed this mountain range. The party numbered thirteen. The altitude reaches 10,000 feet and the trip entails much hardship. It requires seven days and nights. The Americans had with them fifty mules.

Gen. Chaffee was to join the party, but had to give up the plan at the last minute.

ROOSEVELT FOR OLD MEN.

Turns Down California Organization and Chooses a Veteran.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—In discussing the appointment of a Postmaster for Pacific Grove, Cal., to-day with Representative Needham of California, President Roosevelt informed Mr. Needham that, all other things being equal, he would give preference in such appointments to soldiers of the civil war.

He indicated that for the particular office under consideration he probably would appoint M. H. Stansbury, an ex-Union soldier, instead of J. A. Bell, a business man, indorsed by the Republican organization.

RAPID TRANSIT BILL REPORTED TO SENATE

Board of Estimate Must Pass on Manner of Letting Contracts.

COMMISSION TO OBEY PLAN

And Let Contracts Singly or Together, as Directed—Mayor to Fill Vacancies on Commission.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 13.—After a session lasting until nearly midnight, the Cities Committee of the Senate to-night reported out the Elsberg Rapid Transit bill in amended form, and it is likely to be passed as amended.

The changes in the bill, to which all the contending interests agreed, make the clause concerning the manner of letting of constracts for the construction, operation, and maintenance of new subway routes permissive instead of mandatory, or practically what the City Club has contended for and what has been incorporated in the Page bill.

There is, however, this exception, that the manner of letting the contracts is put up to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, which shall say in the first instance whether it is expedient and in the public interest for the contracts to be let singly or together. Then the Rapid Transit Commission takes hold and follows the plan laid down by the Board of Estimate.

Another feature of the measure does away with the self-perpetuating character of the Rapid Transit Commission, in that all vacancies on the board are filled by the Mayor.

"The bill as reported is satisfactory to all the interests who have been contending," said Mr. Elsberg. "It meant an amendment or death in committee for the bill, and, as the bill is a distinct step in advance, I thought it best to let it go out in the form agreed upon."

"When you say all interests do you mean the merger people, too?" was asked.

"I do not," was the reply. "Why should they be consulted? They have not been nor will they be."

Mr. Elsberg said that William M. Ivins and Senator Ford, who had contended for the bill in the original form, had agreed to the amendments.

In the committee, after a hot session, the three Democratic members, McCarren, Grady, and Martin, voted against reporting the bill.

LITTLE FIRE IN HOTEL YORK.

On March 13, in Room 1313, on Floor 13—Damage, $1,300.

There was a fire shortly after 10 o'clock last night in the Hotel York, at Thirty-seventh Street and Seventh Avenue. The blaze was on the thirteenth floor and happened on the 13th of the month in room No. 1,313, which is used by the hotel as a laundry. The damage was put at $1,300. A bellboy, known as No. 13, was passing through the hall and saw smoke coming from the room. He did not lose his head, but quietly notified Manager Williams.

The manager sent out a boy to turn in an alarm and assembled the hotel fire force. The blaze was confined to the laundry and was extinguished by the employes in a few minutes. When the firemen arrived at the hotel there was nothing for them to do. There was no excitement among the guests and most of them knew nothing of the fire until the engines rattled up to the door.

The blaze was caused by defective insulation of electric light wires passing through the laundry.

NEW CHICAGO ROUTE.

Pennsylvania Railroad Plans to Skip Pittsburg with Its Through Trains.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 13.—It was reported here to-day that the Pennsylvania Railroad planned to cut down the running time between New York and Chicago by eliminating Pittsburg and the heavy grade over the Alleghany Mountains on the through run.

Such a move has become necessary, it is said, through the fact that the New York Central will soon lop off sixty miles of the distance from New York to Chicago by using the Franklin-Clearfield cut-off. This reduction will make the New York Central route from New York to Chicago about 920 miles, or 10 miles longer than the present Pennsylvania route. The new Pennsylvania low-grade route would make the distance about 10 miles longer, or about the same as the New York Central, but through the absence of grades it is thought by the Pennsylvania people they can outfoot the New York Central from city to city. The Enon cut-off is not yet completed.

ROOSEVELT AND TAFT JOIN.

Honorary Members of Anti-Boss Republican Club in Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, March 13.—President Roosevelt and Secretary of War Taft have accepted honorary membership in the Roosevelt Republican Club of this city. The organizers declare their purpose:

"To maintain a Republican organization in the City of Cincinnati and County of Hamilton opposed to bossism and machine politics and to advocate more direct participation by the people in nominations, and to separate municipal affairs from national party politics."

GET RID OF THE MOROS,

Says Col. Keck, and Upholds Shooting Women and Children.

At the monthly dinner of the Canadian Club of New York at the Hotel Vendome last night Col. Frank Keck, United States Army, the chief speaker, said he believed the soldiers in the Philippines were justified in firing at the women and children, who, he asserted, "arm themselves and fight with the men. The Moros," he said, "have no idea how to fight in an intelligent and civilized way. They will be a source of trouble until they are got rid of. There will be no comfort there until that time arrives."

PARKER BOOMS McCLELLAN.

Tells Mississippians the Mayor Should Be Next Presidential Nominee.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSON, Miss., March 13.—In conversation with members of the Mississippi Legislature to-day Judge Alton B. Parker of New York expressed the opinion that Mayor George B. McClellan of New York should be the next Democratic nominee for President.

He made it quite plain that he does not personally expect or care for a second nomination, and spoke in terms of the warmest eulogy concerning Mayor McClellan and his fitness for the place.

Judge Parker left on the night train for New York. He spent the afternoon horseback riding with Gov. Vardaman.

SHIP AFIRE IN SOUND?

New London Sees Bright Light—Brush Fire, Montauk Says.

NEW LONDON, March 13.—A brightly burning light, presumably a ship afire, was first noticed from the Pequot at 11 o'clock to-night in the direction of Montauk Point.

The light appears between Fisher's Island and Montauk, southeast from Race Rock and between Race Point and Race Rock Lighthouse, and is in the path of steamboats from New Bedford, Fall River, and Providence for New York.

At Fort H. G. Wright, Fisher's Island, the fire was visible. From there it could not be discerned whether it was on the water or on the Long Island shore.

At Stonington the light was plainly visible and appeared to be floating.

Special to The New York Times.

SAGAPONSAC, L. I., March 14.—After many vain efforts to reach points within sight of the supposed burning vessel, communication was established with the United States Life-Saving station at Quogue at 2 o'clock this morning. The station queried the life-savers at Montauk, who reported that a large brush fire was raging along the point, but that there was no ship, nor anything else, burning upon the water.

NO PRUDENTIAL INQUIRY.

New Jersey Senate Kills Resolution for an Investigation.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, March 13.—The Senate, by a vote of 12 to 5, this afternoon adopted the Judiciary Committee's adverse report on Senator Colby's resolution demanding an investigation of the Prudential Insurance Company and its allied concerns. The committee reported adversely on the ground that there was no apparent reason for an investigation and no demand for it except from the "New Idea" promoters of the Colby reform movement.

Mr. Colby made a fight against the adverse report, but he could only muster the votes of Senators Horner, Shinn, Price, and Martens to his aid. Martens and Price are Democrats. The other Democrats of the Senate, Cornish and Minturn, did not vote. Senators Wakelee and McKee also refrained from voting.

Assemblyman Martin, the Colby leader in the lower branch, has a similar resolution pending before the House Committee on Banking and Insurance. Action on it is slated for next Tuesday, when it is expected that it will be killed.

MR. ROCKEFELLER'S MODESTY

Wants It Understood That He Was Photographed by Request.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, March 13.—John D. Rockefeller has been careful to have it understood that the latest photograph of himself was taken at others' solicitation.

Last Summer a committee of prominent Cleveland citizens called on Mr. Rockefeller at Forest Hill. Two months ago all those who called received a handsomely bound booklet containing as a frontispiece a new photograph of Mr. Rockefeller, wearing his wig.

To-day each recipient of the booklet received a leaf to be inserted in the book. A letter accompanied the leaf. It asked that the leaf be inserted in the book alongside the picture of Mr. Rockefeller.

On the leaf is the printed explanation that the photograph was taken at the request of the committee that called on Mr. Rockefeller.

COURT'S BLOW TO TRUSTS IS FAR-REACHING--PARKER

Destroys the Last Refuge of Unlawful Combinations.

NEED NO NEW LEGISLATION

Law-Breaking Corporations Must Submit to Examination and Prosecution Under Sherman Law.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSON, Miss., March 13.—Ex-Chief Judge Alton B. Parker of the New York State Court of Appeals was asked to-night to express his opinion in regard to yesterday's decision by the Supreme Court of the United States that the trusts can no longer take refuge in secrecy.

"This decision," said Judge Parker, "is in line with what I have been saying for many years—that the present laws are sufficient for the thorough probing by the Government of these immense corporations, provided only that the laws are rigidly enforced. Any further legislation on this subject is entirely unnecessary. I made this subject one of the keynote in my recent campaign, and cannot but feel a slight pride in finding that the highest court of the Nation should sustain me in every particular.

"The decision I regard as one of the most important and far-reaching that have ever been delivered from the bench, and will be recorded in after years as one of the events of American history.

"By this action the Supreme Court has taken away the last loop hole through which the trusts hoped to avoid the limelight of publicity being thrown upon their unlawful methods of dealing with competitors. It opens the way for a complete examination of their affairs, which I have no doubt will be immediately probed to the bottom, if not in this administration at least within the next few years.

"The Tobacco and Paper Trust cases are but examples of how officers of these huge corporations have always attempted to avoid being exposed. Since the Government first attempted to investigate their illegal methods, they have followed this course, and generally with a considerable degree of success, as is shown by the little progress that has been made contrasted with the great efforts on the part of Government officials to look into their affairs.

"This decision means that their last resource to avoid the law has been exhausted, and nothing is left but for them to submit to an examination which in most cases will no doubt result in a prosecution under the Sherman anti-trust law. This will generally mean a conviction, and the breaking up of these unlawful combinations. Altogether I regard Monday's decision as one of the greatest things that has happened for the welfare of the American people in modern years."

SATISFACTION IN WASHINGTON.

Executive Departments Expect Decision to Smooth Their Paths.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Yesterday's decision by the Supreme Court against the Tobacco and Paper Trusts was the chief topic of discussion here to-day. In the Department of Justice and the Bureau of Corporations there was unmixed satisfaction, not only because of the immediate effect of the decisions, but because of the way in which they smooth the path of the Government in cases not yet begun.

These two departments are pretty nearly the same thing as far as trust prosecutions are concerned. The Department of Justice is the arm of the Bureau of Corporations, and the strength of the latter is immensely increased by the decisions. The decisions now make it necessary to produce the books not merely in proceedings actually begun, but in Grand Jury investigations where no proceeding has been instituted, and such defiance of the Government as the Beef Trust has lately displayed, for instance, is not expected in the future.

Among the lawyers in the Senate the decision was discussed with great interest. None was found to say that the court had taken a reactionary position. To every one the conclusions of the Justices were a surprise. Senator Spooner said:

"As I am able to understand the decision, the court holds that the guarantees and immunities of the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution do not apply to corporations. Hitherto the court has construed this amendment with great liberality as to persons. The decision now made is a powerful weapon to put in the hands of the Executive, and especially at this time, when inquiry into the affairs of corporations is being urged."

Senator Foraker said: "Until I read the decisions I cannot say a word of any value in regard to it. I am only satisfied from newspaper reports of the position taken by the court that the decision is a most important one, far in advance of the law that has obtained up to this time."

Senator Tillman said: "This decision is right in line with other decisions that the Supreme Court has made of late looking to the relief of the people from the evils that attend the performance of business for the country by corporations. As I understand it the court holds that a corporation is not a person, so far as the immunity in testifying about its affairs is concerned.

"It should prove a wholesome law. Furthermore it suggests that when we think it is not constitutional to enact a law that courts shall not by injunction or interlocutory decree suspend a rate made by the Inter-State Commerce Commission, the right course is to put that idea into law and take it to the Supreme Court for a decision. Many things that we think are unconstitutional may be held by the court to be constitutional."

Senator Cullom said: "I have not read the full text of the decision and cannot talk advisedly about it. If it is as I understand it, it can hardly fail to accomplish good. At any rate it is the work of the Supreme Court, and is law until the court shall reverse itself or the Constitution is amended."

Senator Lodge said: "It seems to be a remarkable advance on existing law under the decisions of the court."

MARCH 1906

STANDARD TO KEEP UP FIGHT.

Hadley May Seek to Compel Oil Trust Officers to Go to Missouri.

KANSAS CITY, March 13.—The Standard Oil Company, through Alfred D. Eddy of Chicago, its General Western Attorney, has notified Herbert S. Hadley, Attorney General of Missouri, that it will give him no more information than it is compelled to in his suit to oust the Standard and its allied companies from Missouri. Mr. Hadley said to-day:

"A week ago, when the testimony of H. Clay Pierce was to have been taken before Commissioner R. A. Anthony in St. Louis, Mr. Eddy told me there would be no further resistance on the part of witnesses already subpoenaed in New York to answering questions they previously had refused to answer. I then suggested to Mr. Eddy that if he would produce H. M. and W. H. Tilford and M. Van Beuren before Commissioner Sanborn in New York on March 24 I would not file an application in the Supreme Court to bring them to Missouri.

"Mr. Eddy promised to give an answer to this suggestion as soon as he could consult his clients in New York. He has informed me that he does not feel authorized to make this arrangement. Consequently, if service on them is not obtained at the time the taking of depositions is resumed in New York, I shall apply to the Supreme Court for an order to compel their appearance in Misssouri."

"What about John D. Rockefeller?" Mr. Hadley was asked.

"The question of subpoenaeing him did not enter into the discussion with Mr. Eddy. We have been and are still endeavoring to get service on him, but there are other witnesses for whose presence I am more anxious."

$300,000 LOSS IN FIRE.

Block-Wide Mass of Flames in Fourth Street Keeps Firemen Hustling.

In a fire in which the flames streamed from a hundred windows at once, the five-story brick and iron structure at 15-17-19 East Fourth Street, extending through to Lafayette Place, was almost destroyed last night. The loss will reach at least $300,000, according to Chief Croker's estimate.

Four alarms were turned in, and for an hour the firemen succeeded in keeping the flames in the basement, where they started. Suddenly the blaze burst forth on the upper floors, and in a moment the building was a mass of flame. Chief Lucas of the Fifth Battalion and Capt. Rush, Chief Croker's aide, had been on the fifth floor a moment before. They escaped by the narrowest of margins. When the fire burst forth it tore up the sidewalk and blew out windows.

The fourth alarm brought twenty-one engines, six trucks, two water towers, two search lights, and five battalion chiefs, besides the Chief and Deputy Chief.

There were five firms in the building, and aside from the American and Westcott Express Companies, which occupied the ground floor, the others had unusually large stocks, which were completely destroyed. The amount of stuff stored by the express companies was also large, as this place was one of the main shipping points for the two companies in the city. The firms that suffered loss were C. H. Tenny, manufacturer of hats, in the basement; Fox, Lederer & Co., on the second, third, and fifth floors, and Schwartz, Dobirner, Cohen & Co., fourth floor.

In front of the building is a long shed-like structure. When the smoke rolled out from the basement it struck this shed and dropped down again, so that the firemen had a hard time of it. Finally Chief Croker saw that, in spite of the great amount of water, the fire was not in the least under control, and he sent in a fourth alarm. He had hardly done so before the fire leaped up the elevator shaft at the northwest corner on the Lafayette Street side, and soon afterward, almost an hour after the fire started, the flames burst through all the windows. It was a spectacle seldom seen at city fires.

The firemen tried to save the five-story brick and iron building at 11 and 13 East Fourth Street, but in a short time the fourth and fifth floors of this building were also on fire, although the firemen with the water towers held the flames from going below. The reserves were ordered from eight precincts, with Inspector Hogan in command, to hold in check the large crowd which gathered. The guests of the Lafayette Hotel and Turkish baths opposite the burned building were interested spectators, sitting in the windows at vantage points.

The damage in the building at 11 and 13 East Fourth Street was estimated at $50,000. The two firms burned out in this building are Shapiro, Manalen & Locks, clothiers, and Latner & Lewy, hat manufacturers. The stock of Sylvester Brothers & Levy, clothiers; Benjamin Shapiro & Brothers, clothiers, and Marks Rosenburg & Brothers, clothiers, was damaged.

Fireman Kane of Engine 3 was overcome by the smoke about 11 o'clock and for more than an hour physicians worked over him. At one time it was believed he would die. He was working on the third floor when he toppled over. Kane was taken to St. Gregory's Hospital after regaining consciousness.

The owner of the burned corner building is Mrs. Jennie Simon. Lederer, Fox & Co., who occupied three floors, employ 250 men and women, who will be thrown out of employment.

SPOONER'S RATE PLAN HAS MAJORITY'S FAVOR

Provides Court Review, After Deposit to Secure Shipper.

VOTE WITHIN THREE WEEKS

Senators Will Give Tillman Full Sway Until Close of Debate—To Restore Rebate Penalties.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—While debate runs on in the discussion of the rate question in the Senate it is clear that the conservative element on both sides of the chamber has the upper hand. While any amount of rope will be given to the radicals, their propositions will have little chance of becoming law.

Senator Bailey, who is classed among the big lawyers of the Senate, admits that he is in doubt as to the constitutionality of the amendment that Tillman desires to prevent interlocutory decrees.

A long conference was held to-night attended by Senators Spooner, Aldrich, Foraker, Kean, Rayner, Foster, and Knox. They discussed the situation for an hour. A Senator who was present said afterward that from a careful inquiry through the Senate there was no doubt that the bill would be passed after three weeks' debate with a court review amendment. There is a general belief that the plan devised by Senator Spooner will meet the approval of a majority of the Senate.

An illustration will serve to show how the Spooner bill approaches the problem. The wheat farmer in the West sells a carload of wheat when the price in Chicago is $1 a bushel and the freight rate from his shipping point to Chicago is 20 cents.

The price paid the farmer therefore is 80 cents. If a question is raised as to the rate, the railroad is to be required to deposit an amount sufficient to cover the aggregate amount of freight for all the wheat that would be affected by the controversy. The sum might be millions.

The agent, warehouse man, or elevator manager who buys the freight would be authorized to give the farmer a receipt or certificate stating the amount of wheat the day when it was shipped, and the rate paid. If the Inter-State Commerce Commission's rate should be sustained by the court the difference would be payable to the farmer who produced the goods shipped. The same rule would apply to manufacturers or any originators of freight.

Another feature of the measure is a provision requiring railroad companies to make a monthly report to the Inter-State Commerce Commission of all goods shipped, the shippers, and the rates paid. This would involve a vast amount of labor on the part of the roads, but practical railroad men realize that they are fairly up against the necessity of managing their properties with regard to public interests, and some of the best railroad men in the country have pronounced the plan entirely feasible.

The lawyers of the Senate who have been taken into the confidence of Senator Spooner have been completely won over to the plan by its completeness and sagacity. The bill will not be advanced until late in the debate in order that every phase of the question may be thrashed over in detail.

Senator Lodge is convinced that the penalty of imprisonment for granting rebates by railroad managers and of receiving them by shippers should be restored to the Inter-State Commerce bill. This provision was in the original Inter-State Commerce act, but repealed by the Elkins act. He is preparing an amendment to that effect which he will propose and endeavor to have adopted.

Senator Tillman to-day took up the bill prepared by Senator Hoar and reported from the Judiciary Committee in 1902 forbidding the use of injunctions by courts to restrain labor organizations whose strikes might impede inter-State commerce. That bill was a remarkable measure, and it is likely to attract much attention in the course of the debate. All the Republican members of the committee, it is said, voted for the Hoar bill, but no report was made, and the billl never was passed.

The fact that a committee of great constitutional lawyers voted to report the bill, however, has great weight with the Senate in considering whether the amendment that Senator Tillman desires for the purpose of preventing injunctions to suspend the rates made by the Inter-State Commerce Commission is constitutional or not.

Tillman to-day announced that after to-morrow he would seek to have the rate bill taken up for consideration each day immediately after disposing of the routine business of the Senate, instead of waiting until 2 o'clock. He considered the bill too important for "dawdling." Senator Simmons of North Carolina spoke to-day in support of the Hepburn bill.

Mr. Simmons gave practically all his attention to the right of Congress to confer on the Inter-State Commerce Commission the power to fix rates, contending that such a right existed beyond question.

He defended the Inter-State Commerce Commission against the charge of incompetency and, coming abruptly to the question of the power that should be given the courts, said:

"We had as well look the fact in the face. The plain truth in this contest between these corporations and the people is that the railroads want the laws affecting them administered by tribunals composed of men appointed for life and whose amenability to the people is therefore remote.

"They are not opposed to trusting the powers conferred by this legislation in the Commerce Commission because they do not believe competent and impartial men will at all times compose that commission, but because they fear that the power of the people to quickly call them to account for any forgetfulness of their interest will lead them to put the public weal above that of special privilege.

"I have no objection to such right of review by the courts as does not in effect either interfere with the rightful authority of Congress in this matter of rates or so hamper it in the discharge of these powers through its commission. Within these limitations, the right of review by the courts ought not to be denied, and if it does not already exist it ought to be conferred."

Mr. Scott presented an amendment to the bill requiring railroads to make connection with intersecting lines, with proper facilities for transfer of business and the exchange of cars.

TO AGED CLERKS' DEFENSE.

Salary-Cutting Plan Stirs Protests—Corporal Tanner's Letter.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The House to-day, in general debate on the Legislative Appropriation bill, discussed the question of eliminating aged clerks from Government offices, free alcohol for the arts, and the restriction of Japanese immigration. The total of the bill is $29,134,181.

Mr. Littauer of New York and Mr. Livingston, Georgia, representing Republican and Democratic views, agreed that something must be done in the way of reorganizing the Government service.

The bill, Mr. Littauer said, provided salaries for 14,406 public servants. The Government bureau chief was an increasing power and Congress was helpless in controlling the expenditure of appropriations.

Mr. Grosvenor asked if there was no power to get rid of an incompetent clerk.

"There is, but it is not lived up to," answered Mr. Littauer. "This Government should not be made a charitable institution and its service a home for the aged and infirm."

Mr. Littauer defended the proposition in the bill to reduce the salaries of aged clerks, and after 1913 eliminate clerks of the age of 70 years. Incidentally he remarked that the bill of expenses showed that a Senator cost the Government just three times what a member of the House cost.

"Corporal" Tanner, Commander in Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, has written a letter to Representative Tawney of Minnesota, Chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations, protesting against reducing the compensation of clerks after the age of 65.

BOLTE TO TESTIFY TO-DAY.

Ex-Justice to be a Witness in the Trial of Lawyer Browne.

Ex-Municipal Justice Herman Bolte, who was removed from the bench by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court about a year ago, will appear as a witness before Judge Foster in General Sessions to-day at the continued trial of Lawyer H. Huffman Browne on the charge of forgery. He will be called by Assistant District Attorney Train for the people.

Some interesting facts regarding heretofore unknown connection between Bolte and the $800,000 estate of Ebbe Peterson, which Browne is alleged to have made his own by a series of operations almost without parallel in legal history, were discovered by Mr. Train yesterday.

The former Justice told Mr. Train that he entered into negotiation at one time with Browne for the purchase of a portion of the Peterson estate known as Lot 44. One day Bolte, according to his story yesterday, was told by somebody that the lot in question had been recorded in his name. He went to Browne at once and asked for an explanation.

Browne replied to Bolte's inquiry that the transfer was a mistake, and that Bolte would do him a favor by transferring it to one Benjamin Freeman. This Bolte did, he told Mr. Train.

The contention of Mr. Train in this trial is that "Freeman" is a fictitious person created by Mr. Browne for the purpose of covering up his operations with the Peterson estate.

Benjamin D. Levitan was the principal witness called yesterday. He told about several real estate transactions with Browne involving parts of the Peterson estate at Inwood and Mount Hope.

HE SPRINKLES BAD DRAFTS.

Detective Agency After E. P. Schmidt, Who Gives Worthless $500 Papers.

If E. P. Schmidt, a stoutly built man, who wears a black mustache, stands about six feet high, weighs in the neighborhood of 190 pounds, dresses neatly in dark clothes, and leaves a trail of worthless drafts on a fictitious London firm wherever he goes, will kindly visit Pinkerton's Detective Agency at 57 Broadway, he may learn of something to his disadvantage.

The Superintendent of the detective agency will not say how many drafts the man has succeeded in floating, nor will he disclose the identity of those who have been victimized. All the information he proposes to give is in this circular, which he sent out yesterday:

Sixty and ninety day £100 worthless drafts, bearing bogus rubber stamp acceptance of the London and Southwestern Bank, Limited, signed Ferdinand Hartog, to Messrs. Jamison, Notaris & Co., (a fictitious London firm,) whose address is given as No. 2 Cavendish Court, Devonshire Street, London, E. C., are being circulated in New York City and vicinity by E. P. Schmidt, who is described as follows: Fifty-two years of age, about 6 feet in height, weighs about 190 pounds, stoutly built, darkly complexioned, black mustache, blue eyes, dressed neatly in black clothes, wears black flat crown derby hat. If one of these worthless drafts is presented the Pinkerton National Detective Agency desires to be notified at once.

SUES REDMOND FOR LIBEL.

Inspector of Incumbrances Asks $25,000 Damages from Politician.

Michael Redmond, who was defeated for Alderman on the Municipal Ownership ticket in the Fortieth Aldermanic District of the Bronx last Fall, was made the defendant in a suit for libel begun in the Supreme Court yesterday. Morris W. Cohen, an Inspector of Incumbrances, is the plaintiff.

He demands $25,000 from Redmond on account of remarks alleged to have been made by the latter in the Municipal Building, at Third Avenue and 177th Street, when Redmond was the defendant in a proceeding brought against him for violation of the law with reference to the obstruction of sidewalks. The case against Redmond at that time was dismissed.

Redmond has a contest pending against Alderman Arthur H. Murphy on the ground that he was illegally declared elected.

LOUIS DE LANGE KILLED IN HIS ROOM IN HOTEL

Whether Playwright Was Murdered the Police Can't Say.

SOME OF HIS EFFECTS GONE

His Sister-in-Law Says He Had Two Strange Visitors Early Yesterday in Mock's.

Louis de Lange Moss, playwright, and actor, better known as Louis de Lange, either committed suicide or was murdered in his room in Mock's Hotel, 145 West Forty-second Street, early yesterday morning. He was found dead with his throat cut.

The facts adduced thus far by Coroner Shrady and the West Forty-seventh Street police seem to point to suicide, but the police would like to find two or possibly three men who were rushing up and down from de Lange's room all night up to 4:30 o'clock in the morning, to get them to explain several things which seem to require explanation.

A watch, waistcoat, and a ticket to a safety deposit vault are missing from the playwright's room.

Mr. Moss, or de Lange, as everybody called him, was the adopted son of Isaac M. Moss, a wealthy stationer of Philadelphia, who in his youth adopted him, and educated him in the University of Pennsylvania to become a dentist. De Lange adopted the stage. This seems to have displeased his foster father. De Lange was 50 years old, and well known to almost every theatrical man in town.

He lived with his wife, whose stage name is Selma Mantell, a member of the Weber company, and his two-year-old child, at Mock's Hotel until two days ago. Then his wife went over to Long Island City with her child, to live with her mother there for a time. The reason for her leaving, according to De Lange's brother, Alexander Clark De Lange, a comedian, better known as Alexander Clark, was that Mrs. De Lange was not feeling very well and that she thought she could get better treatment at her mother's. The Clarks live at Mock's, too.

De Lange is said to have attended a performance of "The College Widow" early Monday evening. He went to Weber's Theatre about midnight so as to escort his wife as far as the Long Island ferry. He bade her good night cheerfully at the ferry, and then, his wife supposed, started back to his room at Mock's, which he had retained after his wife's departure.

Where De Lange was, and whom he met between the time that he left his wife at the Long Island Ferry, at about 1 o'clock, and 3:30 o'clock yesterday morning, when he arrived at Mock's Hotel, the police have not ascertained.

At 3:30 in the morning Mrs. Clark, who was not well and who was up much of the night, saw her brother-in-law coming home. Clark lives with his wife on the fourth floor, while De Lange's room is the hall room fronting on Forty-second Street, on the third floor. She saw her brother-in-law being led up the stairs. She is not sure whether two men were with him or only one. He seemed to her to be under the influence of liquor.

A little later, about 4 o'clock, a young man wearing a cap went out of De Lange's room and hurried down and out. Mrs. Clark says he carried a package. A little later she saw him returning. Then she saw her brother-in-law go out. He returned with two men, the young man whom she had seen, and an elderly man who appeared to her to be a cabman. The elderly man stayed at the door. A little later Mrs. Clark heard some one in De Lange's room exclaim:

"Heavens! Don't do that!"

A little later the young man with the cap rushed out of the room and out of the house. It was then 4:30 o'clock.

After all this commotion Mrs. Clark awakened her husband. He took his revolver and went down to his brother's and knocked, but, getting no response, concluded that his brother had perhaps just indulged too much and had fallen into a deep sleep. He went back to his rooms again.

About 10 o'clock Clark tried to get into De Lange's room again. He wanted to call him to get his breakfast. There was again no response. The door was locked from the inside and the key was in the door. By getting another key for the door and working at it the key on the inside finally fell out and the door was opened. De Lange lay dead on the floor in his underclothes. His throat was cut. The razor with which the cutting had evidently been done, and which had been a present from his foster father, lay on a washstand in the room.

In view of the fact that the door was locked on the inside and the man who was with him had been seen to leave de Lange's room, the case looked pretty clearly like suicide. It was soon discovered, however, that a waistcoat which de Lange had worn, a gold watch, and some other articles of jewelry were missing. That de Lange had been robbed seemed clear to Clark and to another brother of the dead man, who lives in the house.

Mrs. de Lange came to Manhattan yesterday morning to attend rehearsal at Weber's. She went to Mock's Hotel about noon. Coroner Shrady and several detectives were already at the house beginning the inquiry when Mrs. de Lange arrived. She fainted, and when she was revived became hysterical.

The detectives immediately began to inquire for a motive for suicide. Clark said his brother was in the best of health, and was far from being a poor man, having some $50,000 in some safe deposit vault. The ticket for the property in the vault and De Lange's watch and waistcoat were then found to be missing. De Lange, according to Clark, had nearly completed the negotiations for some financial deal in Philadelphia which looked promising.

Clark also stated that there was absolutely no trouble between his brother and Mrs. De Lange. Manager Miller of Weber's said last night that De Lange had recently asked him for some part. At first Miller told him that there was nothing, but on Saturday he told De Lange that he had talked his case over with Mr. Weber, and that De Lange might find a place in a theatrical venture they were talking of. When De Lange died, therefore, he had reason to believe that he would get something to do from Weber.

The watchman of Mock's Hotel, Steffen Ladodinsky, heard De Lange's visitors tramping up to and down from his room. He got tired of it at last, and told the young man with the cap when he went out at 4:30 o'clock that he could not get back again. From the watchman the Coroner and the police got a vague description of the young man.

He was dark and clean shaven, perhaps too young to have a beard. A cab was at the door when the young man went out the last time. Tillie Saur, a servant girl in the house, who was awakened by the noise of the tramping, says she heard something about "50 cents," which might have referred to cab hire.

De Lange was well known not only as a playwright, but as an actor and stage manager. He made large sums of money at times, but is said to have speculated a good deal. Some of his best-known plays are "The Globe Trotter," "The Little Host," which he wrote for Della Fox; "Pousse Cafe," and things of that kind.

He made a good deal of money for several years taking up the Weber & Fields productions after they had left the old Broadway music hall and taking them over the road. He also presented and staged plays for Chicago managers.

De Lange's room was littered with the manuscript of a play when the Coroner entered the room. Selma Mantell, de Lange's widow, is one of the most beautiful women in the Weber company. She is much younger than her husband was.

Samuel Kermen, 17 years old, of 52 East Third Street was arrested in Times Square at 1:15 o'clock this morning by Detective Sergeant Braun as a suspicious character and locked up in the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station. They say he is the youth who went to the room with De Lange. The police obtained no statement from him.

WITHDRAWS CENSURE OF JUSTICE LEVENTRITT

City Bar Association Says He Has Proved Fitness.

MR. ROOT CAUSED REVERSAL

Wickes, Who Wrote "Lewis Jarvis" Letters, Is Expelled—Need of More Justices.

The City Bar Association at a meeting last night unanimously adopted a resolution removing its censure from Justice David Leventritt of the Supreme Court. Its condemnation of the Justice, recorded in 1898, grew out of his candidacy for the Supreme Court bench. Secretary of War Elihu Root, a late President of the Association, was instrumental in bringing up the matter.

The resolution, in Mr. Root's handwriting, reads:

Whereas, This association, in the year 1898, when Mr. Justice Leventritt was a candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court, from information then received, judged him to be an unfit person for that office, as appears by its records; and

Whereas, During the seven years of his judicial service his administration of the office has given general satisfaction to the people and the bar, and has been marked by ability, learning, diligence, and a strong sense of justice; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the association, believing that this acknowledgment is due to a deserving public officer, hereby publicly reverses the adverse opinion expressed by it before his election.

On a report of the Grievance Committee, Thomas P. Wickes, the author of the "Lewis Jarvis" blackmailing letters, who is now in the penitentiary, was expelled from the association.

Austen G. Fox of the Committee on the Judiciary reported in reference to bills pending in the Legislature concerning an increase in the number of Justices of the Supreme Court, a resolution declaring that the condition of the calendars in the First District demands that seven additional Justices should be elected at the next election. Provision was made for a committee to urge the matter before the Legislature and Governor.

A memorial of James C. Carter, prepared by Joseph H. Choate, was read.

The following were elected members of the association: Francis L. Field, Thomas E. Wing, William R. Conklin, Horace L. Cheyney, Joseph B. Barnes, Louis M. Sonnenberg, Howard S. Meighan, Alonzo G. McLaughlin, Martin L. Stover, Thomas W. Churchill, Geoffrey Parsons, Edward M. Stothers, and Charles A. Colin.

DUTY ON CHICAGO'S ANIMALS.

Wild Beasts Intended for Lincoln Park Taxed 20 Per Cent.

The City of Chicago has been defeated in an attempt to enter duty free various wild animals for exhibition purposes at Lincoln Park, in that city. H. L. Hammerstein & Co. imported the animals for the city, with the expectation that the customs authorities would grant free entry to the animals.

On the contrary, the officials levied a 20 per cent. duty on the ground that the entries were "live animals" within the meaning of the Dingley tariff law.

THE GILBERT SALE ENDED.

Lloyd Bingham Bids In the Actress's "Lucky Skirt."

The concluding lot of the effects of the late Mrs. C. H. Gilbert, sold by order of her executors, was disposed of yesterday at the Knickerbocker Art Galleries. An old silk dress was one of the most interesting things sold. It was the first silk gown ever owned by the actress, and was made by her as a girl of 17. It was bid in by Mrs. De Wolf Hopper for $6. Mrs. Gilbert's "lucky skirt" was another relic of her early wardrobe. It was plain black silk, neatly bound around the lower edge with mohair braid in an old-fashioned way. It was sold to Lloyd Bingham for $3.

A green velvet dress with a Court train lined with satin and trimmed with a green and silver iridescent trimming was bid in by Clara Lipman for $21. Charles Burnham bought a number of books, and $31 was paid for a gold chain given Mrs. Gilbert by Annie Russell. This had a number of ornaments attached. One was a gold lead pencil holder, given Mrs. Gilbert by Orrin Johnson; a rabbit's foot, with a silver top, was from Augustin Daly, and a small basket and lucky stone from Mrs. Van Amringe.

COURT CLERK ACCUSED.

E. G. Tully Is Charged with Helping Tillinghast, the Jury Fixer.

The examination of Edward G. Tully, a clerk in the City Court, on the charge that William H. Tillinghast was allowed to sit as a juror when he was not on the panel in cases against the Metropolitan Railway Company, in 1900, was adjourned yesterday by Chief Clerk Thomas F. Smith until Thursday. Tully was represented by Max D. Steuer, while Assistant Corporation Counsel Crowell appeared for the Chief Clerk. Mr. Steuer asked for the adjournment on the ground that he had just been called into the case.

The charges against Tully recite that Tillinghast served as a juror in six cases in May and November, 1900, when his name was not on the panel. The railway company obtained verdicts in four of the cases, one resulted in a disagreement, while the plaintiff got a small verdict in the sixth.

PRICE OF ANTHRACITE HAS ALREADY GONE UP

Agents of Independent Operators Raise It 50 Cents a Ton.

INSTRUCTED AGAINST STRIKE

Some of the Pennsylvania Delegates to the Miners' Convention Ordered to Oppose It.

Most of the selling agents of the independent anthracite operators raised the price of coal in the small steam sizes yesterday 50 cents a ton, this being the first tangible evidence that a strike of the anthracite mine workers is feared. The increase will be made general by the independent operators, it is stated. The increase brings the prices up to the circular prices of the coal-carrying companies, which are $3 a ton for pea and $2.50 for buckwheat sizes. In the last month or two the independent operators had reduced the prices to 50 cents a ton less than these rates.

The members of the Coal Merchants' Association, it was stated yesterday, had been receiving innumerable letters from their customers asking for advice as to whether to lay in a supply of coal, but they would not undertake the responsibility of giving such advice at present. President J. Samuel Smoot of the association said last evening:

"We are never considered in a case of this kind. If there is a strike we will not know it until it is on us. We have absolutely nothing to go on. Two hours before the last big anthracite strike was declared John Mitchell told me there would be no strike. He probably told me what he then thought to be the truth."

Mr. Smoot said that a coal strike would be a disaster to the entire community. No one in the trade wanted to see the horrors of the last coal strike repeated. He added:

"At present there are about 400,000 tons of anthracite in the metropolitan district, which is a week's supply. It is true that the anthracite operators have a reserve of from 6,000,000 to 8,000,000 tons, but this would not all come to New York in case of a strike."

SHAMOKIN, Penn., March 13.—Delegates from the northern section of the Ninth District who will attend the United Mine Workers' National Convention at Indianapolis left to-day for that city.

Many of the delegates from the Upper Schuylkill region and the lower end of Columbia County have been instructed to vote against a strike. Those from this section go uninstructed.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 13.—Representatives of the anthracite and bituminous coal miners are arriving for the convention which begins on Thursday. The National Executive Board will meet to-morrow, and among other matters will take up the Dolan situation at Pittsburg.

President John Fahy of the Shamokin district, President W. H. Dettrey of the Hazleton district, and George W. Hartlein, Secretary-Treasurer of the Shamokin district, three of the anthracite leaders and members of the Anthracite Miners' Sub-Scale Committee, held a conference with President John Mitchell to-day.

Most of the members of the Full Scale Committee will be here in time for a conference to-morrow. This conference will consider the reply of the anthracite operators and will decide whether or not the anthracite situation will be handled here in the National convention or in a special convention of anthracite districts immediately following the Indianapolis convention.

POST OFFICE CLERK A SUICIDE

William Banks Was Despondent Because of Continued Illness.

William Banks, a clerk in the foreign branch of the Post Office at West and Morton Streets, killed himself by inhaling illuminating gas early yesterday. Banks was 26 years old, and lived with his widowed mother on the third floor of 471 West 153d Street. He had been ill for some time, and despondency over that fact, it is believed, caused his suicide.

Yesterday morning Mrs. Banks smelled gas and traced it to her son's room. He was unconscious when she opened the door, and died soon after an ambulance surgeon arrived.

Banks had worked in the Post Office four years, and was considered an efficient employe.

SPELLING REFORMERS WILL MIX US ALL UP

Then, They Think, We'll Be Glad to Take Their System.

SO SAYS PROF. MATTHEWS

He Thinks German Is Supplanting English as a Commercial Language, Being Easier to Write.

In lecturing to his class in English at Columbia University yesterday afternoon, Prof. Brander Matthews devoted most of his time to the hopes and aims of the Simplified Spelling Committee, of which he is the head. This came about through some queries by the students and the submission of samples of reformed spelling for examination.

"The first aim of the committee," said Prof. Matthews, "will be to create such chaos that everybody will spell to suit himself; after that point has been reached, reform will be an easy task. Every one will be at sea and will gladly accept a simplified and improved system."

Prof. Matthews pointed out that a most remarkable inconsistency in modern life was the fact that the most practical people, business men and professional men, were in reality the worst spellers. As a result of this, and despite the fact that the English language is easier to master, as regards a speaking knowledge, than any other language, German is, according to the professor, taking the lead as a commercial language, being easier to write. Not only is English being displaced by German as the language of commerce because of our poor spelling, said Prof. Matthews, but many otherwise liberally educated persons are being continually counted among the illiterates, owing to their inability to get the English spelling books at their finger tips.

The cause of the whole trouble, the lecturer thought, is the great number of superfluous letters the writing of which wastes a vast amount of time, paper, and money during the course of a man's life. The aim of the reformers will be to eliminate all these silent letters, particularly those which are final and to substitute simple vowels for diphthongs. Furthermore, words which are pronounced entirely differently from the way in which they are spelled will be changed to meet the tests which the committee will apply to these "monstrosities of speech."

While satisfied with the way in which the attempt at spelling reform is being received, the head of the reform committee intimates that this apparently hospitable attitude may be only the calm before the storm; but to check any attempts to dissuade them from their work, the committee will meet fire with fire.

"Whatever may happen," said Prof. Matthews, "we have the dictionaries behind us and we will change them first."

"Fine," said one of the Columbia boys, "we'll all pass the exams in June."

On being questioned he explained: "Why, that's simple. We all flunk now for poor spelling, but when we get a chance to spell as we please, we'll do it, you bet, and we'll all pass."

LONDON, March 13.—Andrew Carnegie's spelling reform movement finds little favor with British authors. Many opinions on the subject are published this morning. Most are opposed to the innovation; others admit that the idea is worthy of consideration. Charles Algernon Swinburne describes the movement as a "monstrous, barbarous absurdity."

W. R. HEARST DENOUNCED AT SOCIALIST MEETING

All Because His Newspapers Didn't Advertise It.

"MOTHER" JONES STIRRED UP

All Hands Protest Against the "Murder" (Meaning Trial for Murder) of Idaho Miners.

Police Inspector Walsh, Police Captain Lantry, of the East Fifty-first Street Station, and 100 patrolmen were on hand last night when 2,000 men gathered in the Grand Central Palace, as "representatives of the trades' unions and the Socialist Party," to protest against the arrest of Moyer, Haywood, and other officers of the Western Federation of Miners and their deportation from Colorado to Idaho on the charge of conspiracy to murder ex-Gov. Steunenberg of Idaho.

John C. Chase, the Socialist Mayor of Haverhill, Mass.; "Abe" Cahan, editor of Forward; "Mother" Jones, Solomon Fieldman, Benjamin Hanford, and other Socialists were on the stage with a band which poured out "La Marseillaise" with vigor.

There was no physical violence of consequence at the meeting, but there was plenty of violent language. Some of it was emitted when Mr. Fieldman, who was acting as Chairman, started a demonstration against W. R. Hearst.

Mr. Fieldman had started to raise funds to pay the expenses of the meeting, and remarked that the Hearst papers had not advertised it.

"We did not expect much from the other papers," declared Mr. Fieldman, "but we got much compared to what we got from Mr. Hearst."

"He's afraid!" cried a man well down in front.

"He's a traitor!" yelled another, amid a volume of hisses and hoots.

"Yes, he's worse than a traitor," cried back the Chairman, "for a man has first to be classed as a friend in order to be afterward classed as a traitor." Above more jeers and hoots another voice cried out:

"He's a stool pigeon!"

"He's not a stool pigeon," replied the Chairman: "He is a capitalist, but is not serving the capitalists. He is serving himself."

"Walk home if necessary," continued Mr. Fieldman, "but put something in the basket to help the campaign against the conspiracy of silence."

The Hearst condemnation was silenced only by the band.

Mr. Fieldman also took a rap at Mr. Mitchell. He warned his audience to beware of leaders who banqueted with the capitalistic class.

"The things the capitalistic class are for are the things the working people must stand against," he declared. "Those who are praised by the capitalists are the ones to be warned against. Moyer and Haywood are in danger of being hanged, murdered, and they are not praised by the capitalistic class. It is safe to suggest that detectives murdered the ex-Governor of Idaho to bring hurt to organized labor and the labor class."

Morris Hillquitt reviewed the murder of the Governor, the confession of Orchard, which brought about the arrest of the officers of the Western Federation of Miners, and the deportation of the prisoners to Idaho.

"These officials had to be deposed in a way to fasten infamy on the cause of labor," he declared. "Moyer and Haywood are well known as being opposed to unlawful acts. It was through their efforts that the natural rage of the workingman was kept down. Cowardly murder is not the weapon of organized labor but rather of its enemies. The arrests of these men make a part of a cowardly, dastardly, cold-blooded plot on the part of capital against labor."

The speaker was cheered as he declared that the working class would not allow the "murder" of the Western Miners' officers on perjured testimony. Seven million workingmen, he declared, would know the reason why if these men died as the result of the charges against them.

Alexander Jonas, who was introduced as the grand old man of Socialism in this country, spoke in German.

"Police up stairs, police down stairs, police everywhere," he said, waving his arm to the cordon of bluecoats, "and that is the stupidity of the Government. Are they here to protect us? Not lawyers, not money; only the protests of American workingmen will save the men in prison. Protest until the end of this drama. How it will end I know not."

"Mother" Jones wore an old-fashioned shirtwaist, a black skirt, and heavy shoes.

"We stand in the dawn of the world's greatest war," she declared. "It will be the war between the robbed and the robbers, and the robbers will go down. When they talk of hanging Moyer and Haywood, now why didn't they talk of hanging the men who shot down innocent working men in Virginia? Why don't they talk of hanging the commercial pirates who are murdering the little children in the mills of the South? The daughters of the capitalists are dancing on the hearts of the murdered children in the mills.

"When your leaders come here and banquet with Belmont and the Civic Federation—"

"Well, how about Gompers?" inquired a man in the audience.

"Gompers has a right to go and fill his stomach," she replied, "if you want him to do so.

"If you go to the ballot box bravely and combined you will find Roosevelt, who sent 9,000 guns against you, scratching his head and drawing his union card. If they force us to shoot they will find that they never struck such a band of fighters as the American workingmen."

Turning to the galleries, where most of the policemen were on duty, she called to the officers:

"Take off your badges and buttons; don't bother about your jobs. Come with us."

Then the police ejected a man who had been circulating pamphlets roasting the Socialists for not letting the United Workers in on the ground floor.

ROBBERY DREAM CAME TRUE.

Young Dreamer Is Held by the Police Pending an Investigation.

Otto Doedecker of 346 East Seventeenth Street called on Mrs. Hannah Neumeyer of 1,455 Madison Avenue a few days ago to tell her about a dream.

"I dreamed," he said to Mrs. Neumeyer, "that you had been robbed of all your jewelry."

"Oh, you're entirely wrong," replied Mrs. Neumeyer pleasantly. "I haven't been robbed. Come in here and I'll show you."

They went to another room, where Mrs. Neumeyer showed him three diamond rings and other jewelry. Later in the evening Doedecker had occasion to go to the kitchen of the house several times, passing through the room where Mrs. Neumeyer's jewelry was. The next day she went to the police.

"The boy's dream came true," she said at the East 104th Street Station. "I ought to have taken precautions."

The police had other theories, and, finding Doedecker, arrested him on suspicion.

SPIES FOR THE OIL TRUST.

Former Agent Tells How He Spotted Independents' Customers.

KANSAS CITY, March 13.—The Inter-State Commerce Commission resumed hearing to-day on charges of discrimination railway rates on oil filed by the Kan. Oil Producers' Association.

E. McCarthy of the Mission Mining Company of Quapaw, Indian Territory, produced two letters on oil rates answering an inquiry last November, one from the Standard Oil Company's office at 26 Broadway, New York, and the other from the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad's general offices. The letters were offered to show that while the railway charged all others 17 cents for transporting oil from Neodosha to Baxter Springs, Kan., it charged the Standard Oil Company only 6½ cents; also, that while the Standard got a rate of 6½ cents from Neodosha to Baxter Springs, approximately fifty-six miles, the railroad charged 17½ cents for a haul of six miles further beyond the Kansas line.

E. L. Wilthoyt, formerly a Standard Oil agent at Topeka, but now an independent dealer, with offices at Joplin and Springfield, Mo., testified:

"The Standard Oil Company, when I was with them, was charged $5 a car by the Terminal Company in St. Louis for transporting a car from East St. Louis, Ill., to St. Louis. To save this the Standard laid a pipe line under the river, and every car of oil bound westward was pumped out in East St. Louis and pumped into another car in St. Louis. This $5 a car was that much off the ability of the independent dealer to live in competition with the Standard.

Mr. Wilthoyt said that while agent for the Standard at Topeka he was instructed to watch all shipments of oil to that point, ascertain the name of the shipper, and the point of distribution.

"How would you get information from railroads as to your competitors' shipments?" was asked.

"I never went to the railroad officers," he said. "I always got my information from employes of the railroad. I was allowed $8 a month to spend with railroad employes, buying drinks and making myself a good fellow, and I was permitted to give away oil and gasoline to railroad employes and report such gifts as 'donations.' The $8 a month was sent me in a personal check by E. P. Pratt, manager for the Standard in Kansas City, and later by J. W. Mayer, who succeeded him as manager.

"My instructions were always given in person. I was instructed to promise railroad employes good places with the Standard Oil Company. I was instructed to tell them that a man could get a salary with the Standard greater than the President of the United States.

"Before I was placed at Topeka, while I was a traveling agent for the Standard at Wichita, the Rocky Mountain Oil Company shipped a carload of oil to a wholesale grocer in Arkansas City, Kan. I was notified of the number of the car and told to go there and tie up that grocer with a contract to buy all his oil from us or to maintain our price in his territory.

"This dealer refused to contract, although I offered him oil for a dollar a barrel, or 2 cents a gallon less than we were selling it in the open market. I reported that to my superior officer, and he ordered me to go back and tie up that dealer in a contract no matter how much of a cut in price I had to make. Before I returned the Rocky Mountain Oil Company had failed."

UNITED COPPER'S DIVIDEND.

Preferred Stock Apparently Not to be Retired at Expected Time.

The directors of the United Copper Company held their semi-annual meeting in Boston yesterday and declared the regular half-yearly dividend of 3 per cent. on the preferred stock and the regular quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent. on the common, with ½ per cent. extra, which is the same as the last quarter. When the Heinze interests sold out their disputed claims in Butte to the Butte Coalition Mining Company, for $10,500,000 in cash and an unnamed amount in securities, it was announced that the preferred stock of the United Copper Company would be immediately retired. The payment of another semi-annual dividend would indicate that this retirement will not occur as soon as has been expected.

Besides the declarations of dividends, the Directors voted to sell to the Butte Coalition Company the $3,500,000 of bonds of the United Copper Company still in the treasury. It was given out in Boston after the meeting that the proceeds of the bond sale represented cash in addition to the $10,500,000 already received by the Heinzes for the United Copper properties.

This is at direct variance with a statement, which came from Amalgamated sources at the time of the settlement, that the cash payment made public at that time would be the total. It was said in Wall Street yesterday by those familiar with the terms of settlement, that the bonds which the Directors had voted to sell had undoubtedly been included in the original terms.

MURDERED MAN IN CANAL.

Body Weighted Down and Had 8 Bullet Wounds—Vendetta, Say Police.

Evidences of a deliberate murder surround the discovery of the body of an unknown man, apparently an Italian about 35 years old, in the Morris Canal in the Forrest Hill section of Newark, yesterday. The man had been shot to death, eight bullets having penetrated the body. There was also a wound in the neck. The body was weighted down with a stone weighing nearly 100 pounds.

The police theory is that the man was the victim of a vendetta rather than of robbery, as his pockets did not appear to have been rifled.

The presence of so many bullet wounds in the man's body leads the police to believe that at least two men were concerned in the crime. That it was a prearranged murder is borne out by other facts. A cherry tree near the spot had been hacked about two feet from the base, as though marking the spot for rendezvous of the murderers.

CRUCIBLE STEEL DIVIDEND.

An Extra ½ Per Cent. Declared for This Quarter.

The Directors of the Crucible Steel Company, which paid the first dividend on its preferred stock since 1903 last December, when 1 per cent. was declared, has declared for this quarter an extra ½ per cent. If continued this will put the preferred stock on a 6 per cent. basis.

The $25,000,000 issue of preferred stock of the company is 7 per cent. cumulative, but bad business in 1903 compelled the company to suspend dividends.

The Crucible Steel Company produces more than 90 per cent. of the tool steel made in the United States. Its troubles date from the building of the Clairton steel plant, which was run at a loss and which was sold to the United States Steel Corporation in 1904 at a loss of $4,000,000, leaving the company more than $6,000,000 in debt. At the end of the last fiscal year this debt had been reduced to $3,650,190.

Republicans Rule in Ossining.

OSSINING, N. Y., March 13.—At the Charter Election here to-day the Republicans made almost a clean sweep, reelecting Dr. J. B. Madden, President of the village and gaining one in the Board of Trustees, which will have seven Republican and two Democratic members.

Hollis H. Price Fined $1,025.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 13.—Hollis H. Price, formerly of the Price-Barlow Hay Company, who pleaded guilty in the Federal Court to falsifying weights and conspiracy to violate the inter-State commerce laws, was fined $1,025 this afternoon.

CUBA SERENE AND BUSY, REPORTS J. M. CEBALLOS

Banker Has Just Returned from a Five Weeks' Visit.

GOMEZ HAS BUT ONE AIM

It Is to Develop the Country, and in That Direction He Is Doing Great Things.

Among the passengers who arrived here from Cuba by the Morro Castle yesterday was J. M. Ceballos, the New York banker, and his family. They have been in Cuba five weeks. Mr. Ceballos was in Havana during the reported revolutionary excitement. Regarding this he had this to say:

"Because a few irresponsibles—twenty-nine by actual count, consisting of twenty-five negroes and four white men—made a raid upon the Rural Guard at Guanabacoa, it has been magnified into a revolutionary movement. There are a few hotheads in Cuba, but there is no revolutionary movement or organization that aims at a change of the present Government.

"I am in a position to speak with some authority on this subject from the fact that Gen. José Miguel Gomez, the late candidate of the Liberal Party for the Presidency, is now in the employ of the Silviera Sugar Company, of which I happen to be President. Gomez is the natural leader of the people. He is the only man in Cuba who could by any possibility get a following as against the present Government, and he is too fully occupied with the executive work of clearing a vast tract of land for planting in cane and for the erection of a great sugar mill, to be a party to any intrigue.

Gomez Busy in a Great Work.

"On hearing the rumors of an attempted disturbance in which his name had been mentioned, I at once sent for Gen. Gomez, who came immediately to Havana, and there gave me the most positive and satisfactory proof that his one desire was to carry out the great work in which he is engaged of making the land productive. He had previously pledged himself to withdraw entirely from politics, and I am perfectly satisfied that he has done so and that the efforts to implicate him in any disturbance have failed utterly.

"Reports have been circulated that the resignation of Gen. Gomez as administrator of the Silviera Sugar Company had been demanded. The contrary is true. Gen. Gomez of his own accord offered his resignation if his presence there embarrassed the company or implicated it in the eyes of the Government. We declined to accept this, primarily on the ground that his remarkable executive work in our interests deserved a better reward, and partly to show our confidence in his pledge that he would concern himself in no way in politics. Moreover, we felt, and it was the feeling of others in authority, that the example of their leader, Gen. Gomez, devoting himself singly to the cultivation of the soil would be one of the strongest factors for continued peace and industry.

Cuba's People Are Prosperous.

"More particularly there is no foundation upon which to base any revolutionary movement. The people of Cuba today are wonderfully prosperous; they are busy, and busy men have no time for mischief. Not only are all of the people at work, but they are getting good wages, for the industrial development of Cuba is so great, through the native enterprises and the American investment of capital, that every man who wants work can get it.

"Though there has been a very large immigration of laborers from Spain the only difficulty that is being met at the present time is one of a sufficient amount of labor to perform the work. Gen. Gomez, however, has at Silviera a working force of 1,500 men, and with them he has performed wonders in the past six weeks, having cleared over 5,000 acres of land, erected one large main building, and planted over 1,000 acres in cane. None of these men has time or inclination for anything but this work.

"The prosperity of the country is reflected in the Government, which has accumulated in the years since intervention a Treasury surplus of over $29,000,000. The balance of trade in favor of the island is over $20 per capita, her trade shows a heavy increase even in the last year, and the reciprocity treaty has shown that her exports to the United States have increased heavily, while Cubans have bought much more largely in our markets than ever before.

"The feeling toward Americans is most friendly. Even in the interior, in humble homes, you will find the picture of President Roosevelt alongside that of President Palma and that of Gen. Maximo Gomez. There was no question as to the genuineness of the cordiality of the reception to Mrs. Longworth, as the daughter of the President, and if he should ever go to Cuba the whole island would go crazy with enthusiasm.

"The work of the Americans, both during the intervention and since then, in the investment of capital to stimulate the great industries, is thoroughly appreciated by the Cubans, and in the carnival parades an American only had to appear to be good-naturedly showered with confetti and serpentinas. This does not indicate by any means that the Cubans have any idea of changing their present status, for they fought long for their independence, and are entitled to it, and they are proving that they know how to use it.

"The reports about the damage to the tobacco and sugar crops are true only in part. There will probably be a shrinkage in both, greater in tobacco than in sugar, the latter perhaps showing almost no shrinkage with favorable weather for the next two months. There is no argument in the crop conditions that can be used in any way politically regarding Cuba."

CAN CONVICT INSURANCE GRAFTERS SAYS PARKER

Declares No Jury in New York State Would Acquit Certain Men.

TARIFF CAUSES DISHONESTY

Cleveland Urged Publicity Twenty-five Years Ago, He Tells Mississippians—D. B. Hill's Remedy.

JACKSON, Miss., March 13.—Alton B. Parker of New York delivered a speech on "Democracy" before a joint session of the Mississippi Legislature and an audience of about 1,000 at the Century Theatre to-day. He was introduced by Chief Justice Whitfield of the Supreme Court. Ex-Judge Parker said in part:

"Every serious evil with which our society is either afflicted or threatened has grown out of the abuse of the taxing power of the Government. It is nearly half a century since we finally consented to levy Federal taxes for a purpose other than that of meeting the real needs of Government.

"All at once, with a growth like Jonah's gourd, there came to our people the knowledge of a new kind of wealth. Individual fortunes, amounting to hundreds of millions of dollars, were seen to be the product of a few years' devotion to a single industry, in which, by its laws, the Government had doubled or trebled the value of the wares before they reached the consumer. Without doubt, great organizing genius, with the gift of sweating both human brains and human bodies, had been applied to the work of making these gains, but, in spite of this, there emerged from the American steel and iron industry no Bessemer or Siemens, no great original master process, which, bringing its due and proper reward to the inventor or the discoverer, makes the whole world better as well as richer.

"It is one of the natural, but interesting and often overlooked, facts of political history that, with all the development of 'bosses' throughout the country in the last generation, there is no instance where, in any State, a Democrat has come to the front with the will and the opportunity to use public power or revenues to enrich himself, or his henchmen, or his followers. It is also true that in no more than three or four cities has this rank and foul excrescence been able to gain a hold, to grow and to flourish for any considerable time in the Democratic Party. No claim need be made that this is an illustration of party virtue; but it is true that never in its history has the party been so allied with monopoly as to attract its agents.

"During the last year the country has been listening, with open, eager ear, to revelations of the most astounding character. The ordinary moral obliquities, so common to mankind, have almost been lost sight of, while, day after day and week after week, this disheartening and seemingly unending story has been told, until at each new recital the public has been reduced to ask, 'What next?'

"It lies entirely beyond my province to instruct or advise individual executive officers, or public prosecutors, but there is no easy, royal road in the punishment of criminals. The way to convict is to convict. There are to-day within the State of New York a few men who, involved in insurance frauds, have furnished evidence, fairly corroborative on the witness stand, of their own venality.

"After a long judicial experience and some study of this question I say to you, here and now, that I do not believe it would be possible, in that great metropolitan city, to draw a Grand Jury which would not indict for at least two, and perhaps three, of the most serious crimes known to the law. Still further, it would not be possible, by any change of venue, for any one of the men so indicted, if fairly proved guilty, to escape conviction before a trial jury in any one of the other sixty counties of the great State of New York.

"No extravagant demands should be made upon responsible officials within reasonable limits of time, no account should be taken of hysteria, or purely popular cries, and, above all things, unreasonable or offensive methods of publicity should be avoided, but the outraged majesty of the law should be vindicated.

"When this has been done, and individuals have thus paid some part of their debt to society, attention ought to be turned to all movements which can insure proper publicity in business, as recommended nearly twenty-five years ago by Gov. Cleveland. Especially should the libel laws be strengthened, by amendment, if necessary, so that publicity shall become a real and not a sham thing. David B. Hill, when Governor of New York, in 1886, insisted in his annual message to the Legislature that the securities of corporations should represent and reflect real values; investment, not prospects; the actual condition of properties, rather than remote possibilities. It was ignored then, but it is not too late, even now, to take his advice.

"At the same time nothing is more incumbent upon our people than recognition of the fact that few new enactments are needed. What has been lacking of late is the disposition to enforce the criminal law against corporate law violators. And the underlying reason has been corporate political contributions or other service.

"About and beyond all things, we must avoid the demagogue like the pestilence which walketh in darkness. For the first time in our history we see reflected upon the screen of the future the shadow of this baleful, sinister figure. While conservatism is attached to that which has justified its existence by its usefulness, it must also be credited with a strong, unwavering enmity to old things that are dangerous. It insists upon the preservation of the honest results of human labor, whether they are moral or material, and it has some reverence for the Ten Commandments. It condemns Anarchism, Socialism, and Communism, that trinity of evils and heresies almost as old as the world itself. All changes come gradually, and not by violence of revolution."

REINSTATES 59 POLICEMEN.

Verdict in Sergt. Metcalf's Test Case Upheld by Appeals Court.

Alfred E. Sonder, attorney for Police Sergeant Alfred E. Metcalf, one of fifty-nine policemen who were retired from the force on May 9, 1905, on the ground of physical disability, received word from Albany yesterday that the Court of Appeals had unanimously affirmed the decision of the Appellate Division in reinstating Metcalf on the force. The decision affirmed was by Justice Gaynor, who held that the examining board which passed upon the physical condition of the policemen was without legal authority.

Metcalf and the other 58 policemen expect to return to the force in consequence.

CONCESSIONS AT ALGECIRAS.

France and Germany Appear Sincerely Desirous of Agreeing.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES
Special Cable. Copyright, 1906.

ALGECIRAS, March 13.—I have repeatedly remarked in discussing the conference that the danger of a rupture lay chiefly in the habit of draping simple facts in the majesty of general principles and imagining that some microscopic concession might perhaps affect injuriously the political future of a great nation.

This tendency was in the ascendant yesterday. To-day the tide is running in the opposite direction. The thorny, unsolved questions which loomed so large on the horizon are now being examined calmly, in the light of practical interests and plain common sense, with the result that their proportions are marvelously reduced and the hopes of a general amicable arrangement are reviving.

As far as we can judge, both France and Germany are sincerely desirous of coming to some practicable working arrangement, and both seem to recognize that this can be attained only by mutual concessions regarding matters of detail. What is required for the moment, to use a hackneyed diplomatic phrase, is une atmosphère de conciliation, and the most experienced negotiators here say that such an atmosphere is at least in course of formation, if it does not already exist.

The postponement to-day of the sitting is regarded as a favorable omen. It is known that the time is being usefully employed in a conciliatory sense. The fact that the date of the next meeting is not yet definitely fixed is also considered as auguring well for the future, because it indicates that genuine preparatory work in being done.

Barring unforeseen accidents, it may be said that, though we are not yet out of the woods, the broad road leading to a general settlement may already be clearly perceived in the distance.

In these circumstances it is to be hoped that the new French Cabinet will not undo the work of its predecessor.

BERLIN, March 13.—The Foreign Office says the outlook at Algeciras is so favorable that it is now considered impossible to break off the negotiations.

ROUVIER'S POLICY TO STAND.

Previous Instructions to Envoys at Algeciras to be Reiterated.

PARIS, March 13.—President Fallières to-day signed decrees nominating the new Ministers, which will appear in the Official Journal to-morrow morning.

A general statement of the Ministerial policy will be made in the Chamber of Deputies in the afternoon. The Cabinet will express its determination to continue M. Rouvier's line of action relative to foreign affairs, which has been repeatedly approved by Parliament.

It is understood that one of Mr. Bourgeois's first acts after taking over the Foreign Office will be to reiterate the instructions previously sent to M. Revoil, the senior delegate to the conference at Algeciras. These instructions provide for the acceptance of the plan for an Inspector of Moroccan police, but categorically reject the proposal that the Inspector shall hold command at any port.

The Ministerial statement will allude to the maintenance of the Franco-Russian alliance and to the highly valued friendly agreements with other powers. Internal policy also will be treated of in detail. The Ministers will take the view that the Church and State separation law clearly establishes the mode of procedure concerning inventories, and will announce that measures will be taken against the organizers of resistance.

SEES NO HOPE IN FRANCE.

Vatican Regards New Cabinet as Completing Disaster to Church.

ROME, March 13.—The Vatican has been following the French Cabinet crisis with the keenest interest, but its solution is considered to complete the disaster to the Catholic Church in France. A prominent prelate exclaimed to-day:

"We have fallen from the frying pan into the fire!"

The Vatican authorities received a dispatch to-day giving the names of the members of the new Cabinet, with the additional statement that its composition would not be officially announced until to-morrow, because to-day, being the thirteenth day of the month, is considered to be unlucky. The Pope smiled sadly when this information was conveyed to him, saying:

"Evidently being a freethinker does not exclude superstition. Bad days are preparing for the dear, dear Catholics in France."

HAVOC BY VOLCANO IN SAMOA.

Villages Destroyed—Lava Stream Three-quarters of a Mile Wide.

HONOLULU, March 13.—The officers of the steamer Sierra, which has arrived here from Sydney, N. S. W., via Samoa, report that the violent eruption of the volcano on the Island of Savaii of the Samoan group continues.

Three villages have been completely destroyed, including Malaeola, where was situated the finest cocoa plantation on the island. The residences of A. King and G. Barleley have been reduced to ruins.

The lava from the volcano is flowing into the ocean in a stream three-quarters of a mile wide and twenty feet deep at the rate of twenty feet an hour. At night a solid wall of molten lava five miles long can be seen reaching far out into the sea.

CAR AFIRE ON BRIDGE.

Passengers Locked In or They'd Have Jumped Into the River.

About fifty passengers on a Ralph Avenue car detected the odor of burning rubber while they were coasting down the hill leading to the Manhattan approach of the Williamsburg Bridge yesterday morning. When the car reached the Manhattan tower smoke came through the floor.

"We're on fire," yelled a man, making a break to alight. The conductor heard him give the alarm and locked the rear door.

"Don't jump," he shouted, "you'll all go into the river."

The motorman locked the front door also. Half a dozen men on the rear platform were about to jump, but saw there was no flooring on the bridge, and held back. The motorman put on increased power, and reaching the beginning of the descent to the Clinton Street terminal, coasted again.

Men and women in the car were banging on the door to be released. The car raced on to Manhattan with its under structure ablaze and leaving a trail of smoke. When a point within 200 feet of the end of the bridge was reached the car was stopped. Some of the passengers jumped then and were slightly hurt. The motorman was burned, but declined medical attention. The fire was due to defective insulation.

DEATH ENDS ADVENTURES OF SAMUEL MESSMORE

A Career Crowded with Ups and Downs of Fortune.

WAS A FRIEND OF ROYALTY

Won His Wife at Pistol's Point and Was Always Venturing by Land or Sea—Was 88 Years Old.

With the death of Samuel Messmore, whose funeral took place yesterday afternoon at the chapel of an Eighth Avenue undertaker, came the end of a life which was one long story of romance and adventure, of fortunes won and fortunes lost.

When a boy Mr. Messmore, the son of pioneer parents, started out to blaze his own way in the world. While still in his teens he crossed the ocean, and before he was twenty years old he was the friend of royalty. Returning to America, he won a wife practically at the pistol's point, and from that time until old age put a stop to further venturings he dared fate, not once but a dozen times, in risks so bold that those who knew him wondered at his escape.

It was not, however, until he grew old that the tide set against him. In his youth and strength to wake up penniless was but incentive for further striving, and success was so constant that the term "Messmore luck" was proverbial among his friends.

Mr. Messmore had lived 88 years and 7 months when he died in an apartment in West Twenty-fourth Street, where he lived with a single attendant. He was born of Huguenot stock in 1818. His forefathers came to America in 1690, settling on land where later was fought the battle of Gettysburg, and which was then theirs by royal grant. His father, John Messmore, moved to Canada with his family shortly before Daniel's birth, and while he was still a lad recrossed the line and settled in Illinois, which was then little more than a wilderness.

At the age of 15 the boy determined to cut loose from home ties, and, buying a lot of apples with his savings, invaded the Far West. There he sold his apples to the Indians at a large profit, and with the proceeds came to New York.

Once in New York he turned his eyes to England. Somebody told him that the American deer were unknown there, and this gave him an idea. He went back to Illinois and succeeded in capturing four Wapiti fawns. These he brought to New York and reared to maturity. In the meantime his friends had learned what he meant to do with them and had written to England that he might be expected there.

He was just 18 years old when he sailed, with his deer, for Liverpool. At the docks he was met by a man who introduced himself as the Earl of Derby, Equerry to the King, and expressed a desire to see the deer. Young Messmore was delighted, and when he had exhibited his pets was invited to bring them to the Earl's estate. This he did, and while there met King William IV. He presented the deer to the King, who had them placed in the Zoological Gardens.

The American was made much of. He was invited from one castle to another, and was still in England at the King's death. He had delivered lectures before the Boards of Trade of Liverpool and London on American grain, and a special invitation was extended him to attend the coronation of Queen Victoria. After she ascended the throne he had several audiences with her. After leaving England he went to Russia, where he met the Czar.

Returning to America, he went to North Carolina, where he opened a store. In Edenton he fell in love with the daughter of a prominent family. Her brothers warned him to cease his suit, and when he failed to heed them attacked him on the street. He wounded both of them, being himself slightly wounded, and eloped with the girl. After their marriage he came to New York, where he made up his mind to spend the rest of his life.

About the time of his arrival there came the news that a heavily laden ship consigned to a New York firm had been caught in a storm off the Atlantic Coast and had been abandoned. The vessel was waterlogged when the crew forsook her, but Messmore determined that the chance for speculation was too good to be lost, and offered the owners $1,000 for the vessel. The offer was accepted, and he chartered another ship and started out to find the wreck. He did find it, towed it to this port, and cleared $75,000 on the venture.

With this money he invested in other ships, and it was not long before he was one of the largest shipping masters in the country, reckoning his wealth in seven figures. At the outbreak of the Crimean War he signed a contract with England to carry supplies to the front for the army, and this venture, too, paid him handsomely.

He never let his funds lie idle, but was constantly investing in some new scheme and closing out when a profit was made. At one time he was the owner of Meridian Hill, now one of the fashionable sections of Washington. He owned, too, thirty-six lots on Fifth Avenue, facing Central Park, and was the proprietor of the old Harlem Iron Works, which covered 100 acres of land north of Ninety-ninth Street and west of Columbus Avenue.

His fortunes turned when he became interested in the Cape Cod Canal. In this project he sunk half a million dollars and the remainder of his wealth, or the better part of it went in unfortunate railroad speculations in Oregon. At the time of his death he was part owner of Cabin Point, back of the Statue of Liberty. This property was all that was left him.

Mr. Messmore was the father of nine children. Of these but one child, Mrs. Jessie Dakin of Cherry Valley, N. Y., survives. Mr. Messmore is also survived by four grandchildren—Carman H. Messmore, Mrs. Amos Schaffer, Howard Campbell, and Mrs. Asa Bird Gardiner, Jr., all of this city, and one nephew, Messmore Kendall of 29 East Seventeenth Street. Mrs. Messmore died many years ago.

Paris Millinery and Loeser's Formal Opening : : : : The Spring Fashion Event.
THE NEW EASTER MILLINERY IS HERE. To-day cordial welcome for everybody to the Spring's most important fashion event—the Millinery Opening at Loeser's.
The Hats are very beautiful this Spring; more beautiful than they have been in seasons past. And there is infinite variety—so great, indeed, that it seems almost a bewilderment of beauty, making it difficult to choose.
Yet there are striking characteristics, of course. Almost every Hat is high at side and back. Very many of the Hats show plumes and aigrettes—aigrettes of every sort—worn dashingly up and back from the crown of the Hat. The shapes are pressed shapes almost without exception and made of the lightest material—leghorn straw so fine that it can almost be drawn through a finger ring; horsehair braid, tagal (hemp) and a few rough straws.
The Hats range from very small to very large. Trimmings are of flowers—the most exquisite flowers that ever were. Roses, big and little; moss roses; real moss and maidenhair and asparagus ferns and ribbon almost without end.
In colors, Empire green is the new favorite that Paris is talking about. Then the leghorn shades; gray, and of course black and white. But all colors are used in the new Hats and all colors will be good.
These new Hats represent the very best that the most famous French milliners have produced for the Spring. They seem the prettiest that we have ever imported. There are models from Georgette,
Caroline Reboux,
Virot,
Esther Meyer,
Paulette et Berthe,
Lewis,
Alphonsine,
Charlotte,
Vimont,
Camille Roger,
Louison,
Mangin Maurice.
Of the superb showing of Mourning Millinery, which is a feature of the showing, some of the most beautiful Hats come from Vimont, who this season divides with Mangin Maurice the honors in charming mourning Hats.
Not a bit less attractive than the Paris Hats are those that our own designers have produced. Indeed, not a few of those who have had an early glimpse at the Hats say the Loeser Millinery this season is even more beautiful than the French.
Children's Hats also make up a larger display than we ever before made. Very wonderful are the children's lingerie Hats that we imported and can sell for exceedingly little prices—some of them, indeed, for as little as five dollars. They are simple, girlish, yet exquisite in style, and it seems that Lingerie Hats are to be in quite as high favor during the coming season as they were last.
No announcement about new Millinery such as this can really give an adequate idea of the Hats. You must see them to appreciate what they are. You must see them to know how each one is individual and marked by the style and originality for which Loeser Millinery has during many years been famous.
You must see them to realize that exquisite as these Hats are, they are also without exception
Very Remarkable Values.
For it has been our policy during a long time to sell not only the finest Millinery, but at the fairest prices.
These things must be seen to be appreciated. And we give cordial invitation to all Brooklyn now to come and see.

SOME HOME COOKING FOR PRINCE TSAI TSE

A Little Matter of 22 Courses Eaten in Chinatown.

AND 10 HE HAD TO LEAVE

He Gives a Mild Temperance Lesson to One of Our Detectives—At the Hippodrome Later.

When his Highness Prince Tsai Tse of the Royal High Commission II., who keeps tabs for the Chinese Government on the graves of all the Chinese Emperors, left for Washington last week to see the President, he had a heart-to-heart talk with Shah Kai-fu, the Chinese Consul at New York.

"I've enjoyed all the New York I've seen," he said, "but before I sail for Europe I'd like to have a taste of home."

"It shall be done," said Shah Kai-fu. "Your Highness, before he makes his departure, shall have two or even three tastes of home."

The taste of home to Prince Tsai Tse came yesterday on the return of his Highness and his suite from Washington, when they had dinner at the Savoy Chinese restaurant, at 16 Pell Street. To be exact, the Prince and his retinue had twenty-two tastes of home, for there were that many courses consumed at the feast. There were precisely thirty-two courses to be disposed of, but when the Prince had battled with twenty-two he gave up eating for a little while and retired to the Hippodrome.

The dinner was given to the Prince by the Chinese merchants of Chinatown, forty of whom, with Central Office Detectives Fogarty and Funston in the van, acted as hosts. The Chinese party, including Chentung Liang-Cheng, the Chinese Minister at Washington, drove from the Fifth Avenue Hotel to Pell Street in closed carriages. It had been their intention to take a drive about town, but the state of the weather forbade it, and they remained indoors. They busied themselves in the morning superintending the dispatch of 346 pieces of baggage, which are to go aboard the Baltic at 8 o'clock this morning, when the suite will sail for Liverpool.

Chinatown knew pretty generally that the Prince was going to dine at the Savoy restaurant, but the reception he received was mainly from Caucasians who drifted into the narrow street from the Bowery and other adjacent highways. As the Prince and his associates stepped from their carriages Funston and Fogarty kept watch, and pushed back a crowd of men and women who wanted to get into the restaurant. There were only half a dozen Chinese in the crowd.

While the feast was going on nobody uninvited was allowed within, although several tried to get in. Cross-Eyed Mulligan of the Bowery insisted upon seeing the Prince eat.

Chentung Liang-Cheng occupied the seat of honor at a table with the Consul General of New York and his assistant, Luk Wing. The Prince sat at an adjoining table with his immediate suite, including the two Commissioners. The merchants were gathered around him. When the rice wine—the Chinese substitute for the preliminary American cocktail—was brought in the Prince forgot all about America, and lived in China for an hour and a half. He sat down to dinner at 5:30 o'clock, and didn't get up from the table until 7. The rice wine was served in tiny glasses about as big as an ordinary thimble. According to the Chinese way of drinking, the Prince moistened his lips with the beverage several times, consuming all of it in a little while.

"It's a very light drink," said Funston, who sat close by, "quite different as to size from the American 'schooner' of beer."

"It is the secret of the Chinaman's habits of sobriety," answered the Prince. "He drinks out of a ridiculously small vessel like this and never becomes intoxicated. The Caucasian drinker isn't satisfied and takes his wine in greater quantities."

When the birds' nest soup had been disposed of everybody broke off his chop sticks and waded into big dishes of sam see chee, which, interpreted, means sharks' fins with sliced chicken, ham, and bamboo shoots. Then they had some si wo ap, or boneless duck, prepared with various condiments and trimmed with Chinese parsley. Then came some fooney wong yin, several dishes within a dish, and then some poon loong yin, a similar culinary arrangement. Following came several dishes pretentiously prepared and embellished with greens. The Prince had some of each until he reached the twenty-second course, and then he appeared a bit tired.

"There are ten more courses, your Highness," suggested Joe Singleton, the head of the Chinese Reform Association, who saw the Prince was getting enough.

"Delightful, I'm sure," replied the Prince, "but I'm quite unequal to the situation. I believe," he added with a smile, "that in American jargon I have what is termed a-plenty."

When the Prince called for desert, however, they brought him some mut kim ghet, the golden lime of China, dressed in artistic fashion, and then some bor lor, or pineapple. He wound up the dinner with know mine li chee gon, the imperial Chinese nut.

With ten select dishes left untouched Joe Singleton arose and in the dialect of the Cantonese proposed the Prince's health. The Prince understood the toast and bowed in approval, but when he replied in a couple of sentences of thanks the Consul General was obliged to interpret his remarks to the merchants who didn't understand his High Manchurian tongue.

Then the Prince signified that he was ready to witness the performance at the Hippodrome, and with his suite drove there. When he had disappeared the Boweryites, who were on the alert, ran up the steps of the restaurant and made short of the mass of untouched food on the tables. In ten minutes they had cleaned the restaurant and were outdoors again.

In the evening the Prince, accompanied by the Minister at Washington, the New York Consul General, the two Commissioners, and several others occupied boxes at the Hippodrome. They enjoyed every bit of the performance and laughed to their hearts' content.

LAUGH ON KENTUCKY.

Mr. Bennet Compares New York and Hopkins's Home County.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Just before the adjournment of the House to-day young Mr. Bennet, who is getting his first Congressional experience as the Representative of the Seventeenth New York City District, took the floor to reply to some remarks which Representative Hopkins of Kentucky made some time ago about the benighted state of the citizens of New York when he was discussing the necessity of restricting immigration.

"The gentleman from Floyd County rather pitied us in New York," said Mr. Bennet, "because of the illiteracy of our population, so I took the trouble to look up the county in which he lives. I found that in Floyd County, Ky., among the native white adults 30.06 per cent. are illiterate—cannot read and write. So I looked up the same thing in my own county, and I found that in New York the percentage was less than 1, only six-tenths of 1 per cent., to be exact, just about one-sixtieth of what it is in Floyd County.

"I have found that, as a rule, when you get more than 400 miles from New York all the newspapers print is the record of crimes of violence and the alleged funny sayings of the Police Magistrates. But that the comparison may not be entirely lost, I want to have read a small part of the record of Breathitt County, a part of the gentleman's district."

Mr. Bennet sent to the desk and had read a newspaper clipping telling of the killing of a Judge on the street, and the shooting of other persons, by a lawyer.

SUSPICIOUS OF BANK INQUIRY.

Senate Committee's Commission Bill Criticised by Stevens.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 13.—Senator Stevens's resolution calling for an investigation of the Banking Department of the State by a joint committee of five Assemblymen and three Senators was introduced in the Senate to-day and referred to the Committee on Finance, where it will probably slumber through the rest of the session.

That Mr. Stevens was doubtful of his resolution ever being reported out of the Finance Committee was evidenced later in the session when the committee's bill naming Judges Andrews and Parker as a commission to make the same investigation came up in Committee of the Whole and was advanced to third reading.

"On the day this bill was introduced," he said, "Judge Andrews sailed for Europe, and last Thursday Judge Parker went South for a protracted visit. In the face of these facts it looks like a subterfuge for the bill to name these men as investigators, and I hope the bill will be changed so as to read that the Governor will have power to name an investigating commission and leave off the names already mentioned."

PUPILS MAY GET FARES CUT.

Attorney General Says the Hartman Bill Is Constitutional.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 13.—In an opinion to the Assembly Committee on Railroads, Attorney General Mayer to-day said that the Hartman bill, providing for half fares for school children and students on street railways in New York City during school hours, was constitutional. It is probable that the bill will now come out of committee, the only objection raised against it by the committeemen being as to possible unconstitutionality. Among other things the Attorney General says in his opinion:

"In the Hartman bill it is sought to enable children more readily to obtain the advantages of education to the end that the State itself may be benefited. It is fundamental that the State has always regarded children as its wards, and that legislation having for its sole object the development of education has been uniformly sustained as an appropriate exercise of the police power."

NEW CAR TRANSFER BILL.

Deprives Plaintiffs of Damages Obtained Against Companies.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 13.—What is called here "An act to discourage the bringing of suits for failure on the part of the traction companies to issue transfers to patrons," was introduced to-day by Senator Wilcox, Chairman of the Railroads Committee.

The law now provides that for every refusal to grant a transfer the aggrieved party may begin an action for forfeiture by the company of $50. By the proposed measure it is provided that the penalty shall go to the State with a third thereof to be divided among the cities and villages in which the violation of the statute shall occur. There would be no compensation whatever to the aggrieved person for time incurred in prosecuting the case against the company.

NO NON-RESIDENT TAX.

The Governor, Saying It Might Work Injustice, Vetoes the Saxe Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 13.—The Saxe Non-resident Tax bill was vetoed by the Governor to-day. The objections of Mr. Higgins were not directed so much against what the bill sought to accomplish as to the means with which it was sought to accomplish the end.

The Governor said that the bill was loosely drawn, and that it could easily be construed so as to work grave harm to persons who should clearly not be included in its provisions.

STOPS STREET-OPENING FEES.

Bill Enables Property Owners to Accept Offer Without Expense.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 13.—As a result of the agitation which has been going on for some time in regard to the exorbitant fees charged by Commissioners of street opening and the slipshod methods in vogue in the various boards, there will be introduced in the Assembly and Senate to-morrow by Senator McCarren and Assemblyman Dowling a bill providing, among other things, for only one Commissioner of Assessment instead of three, as is the case under the present street opening law.

To Report Campaign Expense Bills.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 13.—It was stated to-day that two of the so-called corrupt practices bills will soon be reported from the Judiciary Committee of the Assembly. One of the series which it is understood will come out is the Perry Belmont bill which compels the publication of the disposition of campaign moneys. The other bill provides for what purposes money may be expended in campaigns.

NOCQUET STATUE STAYS OUT.

But the Society of American Artists Makes the Sculptor Shudder.

Paul Nocquet's statue, "The Presidential Vacation," showing President Roosevelt wearing a broad smile as he returns from the chase, a bear cub in one hand and its mother in the other, has been rejected by the Society of American Artists, and its sculptor made some remarks last night in his studio, 55 East Fifty-ninth Street.

"I do not call it a piece of high art," he said, "but I know why they refused it. They think it will attract too much attention. It was not disrespectful to the President. I sent him a copy last June and he wrote me to say he was delighted and it amused his family as much as it did himself."

"Well, you had two pieces accepted, did you not?" he was asked.

"Why should I not? I am an Associate of the Paris Salon. Why, if nine-tenths of the jury sent their pictures to the Salon they would not get in. What do you see at their exhibitions? A lot of portraits that look as animated as pieces of wood and old, old subjects treated in the dullest way. There are only two or three pictures in every hundred with any art in them.

"I went the other day to the exhibition of the Academy of Design. Ah, it gave me the shivers. What did I see! Nothing but a few old, old men. It was terrible."

"Will you send the statue to the Salon?"

"Yes, I will send it this year. I am an Associate and have the right to have things exhibited each year. There are only three, four, of us American sculptors Associates. I, an associate of the Salon, have had a statue rejected by the Society of American Artists!"

At the office of the society it was explained that out of 1,500 works sent in the jury could select only 486, and the only reason for rejection was lack of artistic merit.

A DUPRE BROUGHT $3,750

The second evening of the sale of the Edward Brandus collection of pictures brought out a better lot of paintings with better names among the artists, and prices correspondingly improved. The total returns of the evening's sale were $46,675, something more than $16,000 better than on Monday evening. The grand ballroom of the Waldorf, where the sale was held, was half filled with people.

A Troyon brought the highest price of the evening, $3,800, given by E. Sandmeyer for "The Poultry Farm." A Jules Dupré, "Sunset," ran only $50 below it, going to J. H. Thompson for $3,750. Horse Drawing Candy Wagon Crashes Into Trolley Car.

TWO MEN BADLY INJURED

Automobile Horn Frightened Horse—Street Car Passengers Thrown About, but Not Hurt.

Two men were badly injured and a surface car and two delivery wagons wrecked in a runaway accident in Broadway, near Manhattan Street, late yesterday afternoon.

The injured men, Hugo Dickelman, 19 years old, of 122 Bradhurst Avenue, and Morris Abrahams, 20 years old, of 19 Essex Street, were both taken to the J. Hood Wright Hospital in a critical condition, and the 125th Street crosstown line was blocked for twenty minutes while the wreck was being cleared up.

Abrahams, who drives for a wholesale candy house in the lower part of the city, was on his way uptown with a heavy load of sweets, when at 121st Street and Broadway the toot of an automobile horn caused the horse to rear and break the harness. The animal bolted and began a wild dash down the steep incline at this point. The driver made frantic efforts to check him, but the horse crashed into a wagon driven by Dickelman, wrecking it and throwing him out so that he struck his head on the curbstone, inflicting a deep scalp wound and causing a possible fracture of the skull. He was picked up unconscious.

The force of the collision had torn the reins from Abrahams's hands, and as his horse continued down the hill he clung to the dashboard of the swaying wagon that was sprinkling the street with candy of every description.

Several attempts were made to stop the animal, but he dodged them all and at Manhattan Street crashed into a 125th Street car in charge of Motorman Michael Barry. The side of the car was stove in, the windows were shattered, and the three passengers were thrown to the floor. Abrahams was thrown headlong and dragged for twenty feet in the wreck before the car was stopped. He narrowly escaped going under the wheels and was dragged out from the débris badly cut and bruised, but still conscious.

His first thought was of his horse, and when told that it was unhurt except for a few scratches, he resigned himself to the care of Dr. Darling, who had been called from the J. Hood Wright Hospital. Dickelman's condition was more serious, and both men were removed to the hospital in the same ambulance.

Long before the wreck had been cleared away the candy wagon was surrounded by hundreds of children, who had a feast.

NEW OUTBREAKS IN RUSSIA.

Moscow Railway Strike—Mujiks Seize Land—Guard Officers Resign.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 13.—It is rumored that the officers of a Guard Regiment upon receiving orders to go to the Baltic Provinces to participate in the "pacification" of the country met and resigned in a body. The name of the regiment is not given.

Reports of another general railroad strike in Moscow are current. The Government is taking exceptional measures. The Nicholas Station was occupied by troops to-night.

There are symptoms of a reappearance of agrarian troubles. In a number of places in Stavropol Province the peasants are refusing to plow the land for the proprietors, and reports from other provinces show that the peasants are seizing and sowing the estates of the landowners.

Emperor Nicholas in receiving a deputation of Tula peasants to-day made the following significant remarks: "Do not allow yourselves to be influenced by the enemies of public order who are going through the villages exciting the peasants. Do not take the law into your own hands, but deliver the agitators to the authorities, by whom they will be judged with all severity."

BROWNSON IS CENSURED BY HAZING COMMITTEE

Middies Thought Anti-Hazing Pledge Personal to Him.

EXPULSION SYSTEM OPPOSED

Graduated Punishment Favored—Congressional Interference Called Injurious to the Academy.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The sub-committee named by the House Committee on Naval Affairs to investigate hazing at Annapolis, reported this morning through Representative Vreeland of New York.

Rear Admiral Brownson is censured in the report for exacting a pledge from midshipmen not to engage in hazing and for allowing the boys to think the pledge was personal to him and did not hold after Rear Admiral Sands became Superintendent at Annapolis. Lieut. C. P. Snyder is also censured mildly for having countenanced hazing.

Graduated punishment for hazing is recommended by the sub-committee, which is firmly of the opinion that the present system of expelling all midshipmen found guilty of hazing is vicious. Rear Admiral Sands and other officers now at the academy are praised for the discipline they are maintaining and the report shows that cadet officers have been chiefly responsible for hazing.

The investigation of the committee showed there are three forms of hazing at Annapolis—physical hazing, running, and fagging. The physical hazing consists of fighting, compelling midshipmen to stand on their heads, and other much discussed means of punishment. Fagging is the forcing of under class men to do menial service for upper class men, such as blacking shoes and serving meals. Running is the forcing of under class men to do ridiculous feats.

One of the most popular performances under the latter classification was giving an exact imitation of sunrise on the farm, which consisted of imitating roosters and other domestic fowl. Under the forms of physical hazing sitting on infinity was one of the most commonly practiced. It was generally practiced at meal time and was the forcing of a midshipman to maintain a sitting posture after his chair was withdrawn from under him.

Assembly Again Says "No."

ALBANY, March 13.—The Assembly to-day, by a vote of 52 to 37, "laid aside" the bill of Senator Stevens authorizing the investment of savings banks and trust funds in bonds of merged railroads. This is regarded as practically a defeat for the bill, which is said to refer especially to the Chicago & Alton merger, and which was favored by the State Savings Banks Association. The identical bill of Assemblyman Wainwright also failed of passage in the Assembly a few days ago.

ROOSEVELT RESTORED SPRIGGS'S CITIZENSHIP

The Negro Divekeeper Had Then Served Three Years.

MAY GET 32 YEARS NOW

Jerome Hears of a Woman Who Disappeared Just Before a Tenderloin Raid in July.

The District Attorney learned yesterday that Robert H. Spriggs, the negro divekeeper indicted for three serious offenses and suspected of still graver ones, was restored to citizenship by Gov. Roosevelt in 1899 after he had lost his civic rights by being convicted of felonious assault and had served three years in prison. This information came from Pardon Clerk J. G. Joyce of Albany, who telegraphed back in reply to an inquiry from Mr. Jerome:

> Restoration to citizenship granted Robert H. Spriggs on Oct. 30, 1899, by Gov. Roosevelt. No pardon beside that, or commutation.
> J. G. JOYCE.

Spriggs was convicted before Recorder Smythe of having stabbed and seriously wounded a man in 1889. On the reverse of the order for his commitment the District Attorney discovered yesterday this indorsement made in the handwriting of the Recorder:

> The defendant and his father keep a most disreputable place, which should be broken up by the police.

The inquiry sent to Albany yesterday was prompted by the knowledge on the part of the District Attorney that Spriggs has been voting regularly for years in the Fifth Assembly District, giving as his residence the house at 14 Cornelia Street, where he was arrested. He has been the recognized boss of the Democratic negro vote in that district.

Looking Up a July Raid.

A police raid on the Cornelia Street house made last July came to the attention of the District Attorney yesterday. In that raid Spriggs and five women were taken. One of the women was Julia Warren, whose discovery on the sidewalk in an unconscious condition last November by Hattie Ross, a colored missionary, started the investigation of Spriggs and his business. Julia Warren and her sister Hattie are now among the most important witnesses at the disposal of the District Attorney.

When the prisoners were arraigned before Magistrate Wahle in the Jefferson Market Court, one of the women, Maggie O'Brien, told the court that she had been taken to the Cornelia Street house while drugged and had been kept a prisoner afterward. Little attention seems to have been paid to her story. She was committed to the House of the Good Shepherd. Another woman was sent to Blackwell's Island for six months. Three were discharged.

Spriggs was sent to Special Sessions for trial. He was found guilty, but there seems to have been a wide divergence of opinion among the Justices as to the punishment which should be meted out to him. Justice McKean insisted that the man should be sent away for a whole year.

Justices Deuel and McAvoy, it was said yesterday, were in favor of a much lighter punishment. It took the three Justices nearly thirty minutes to come to a decision. Justice McKean was finally outvoted, and Spriggs was let off with thirty days' imprisonment or a fine of $100. He paid the fine on the spot, of course, and last November he voted as usual from the Cornelia Street house.

The raid in July was made by men belonging to Inspector Hogan's staff. What their testimony was in the courts then could not be learned yesterday, but they were quoted yesterday by one of Mr. Jerome's assistants as saying that they discovered in the Spriggs resort all the conditions described by the investigators sent out later by the District Attorney. The five women taken into custody by them were almost without clothes. The clothes were discovered in the custody of Spriggs, who carried the keys to the house and the wardrobes.

These policemen said yesterday that the raid was caused by the appeal of a man in Newark, N. J., who told them that he had received a letter from his wife saying that she was being kept a prisoner in the Cornelia Street house. She had then been missing several months.

The peculiar thing is that, according to the story told yesterday by the policemen, this woman was not in the house when they raided it. A picture sent by the husband for identification was shown to some of the inmates and recognized by them as that of a woman who had been in the house until the day before the raid, when she disappeared. They had been told that she had made her escape. It could not be learned yesterday that the police had followed up her story beyond that point. The District Attorney has the name of the Newark couple, however, and will undoubtedly make an effort to obtain their testimony.

Missed One Woman.

Five prisoners taken in a raid on a house in Broadway, near Forty-ninth Street, on Monday night were arraigned in the Tombs Police Court yesterday. The disposition of Tessie Austen, a white woman, who was arrested, was the object of an hour's conference between Magistrate Wahle and Mr. Jerome. At last she and Maxine Allen, a young colored woman, were committed to the Tombs, although they are only wanted as witnesses. Mr. Jerome's assistants want to keep track of the two women. The real object of the raid was to catch a woman who was not there Monday night, and who is still wanted. The Austen woman will go before the Grand Jury to-day.

Marie Smith, the alleged proprietor of the house, was held in $1,500. Her husband and the other negro taken there were discharged.

Detectives Burbenich and Meyers of Inspector Hogan's staff arrested yesterday two negroes, Joseph Boggs and George H. Johnson, and took them before Magistrate Barlow in the Jefferson Market Police Court. The detectives said that Boggs, who is generally known as "Lucky Joe," has been the porter of the Spriggs house on Cornelia Street, and that both he and Johnson were wanted by the District Attorney. The Magistrate remanded the prisoners to the District Attorney's office. Their arrival made Assistant District Attorneys Garvan and Murphy, who are in charge of the investigation, express a good deal of surprise. They had had both men before them and learned all that was wanted from them. Boggs and Johnson were set free at once and the detectives were questioned in their place. Burbenich and Meyers were among the men who raided the Cornelia Street house last July.

Indictments Expected.

The Grand Jury is expected to reindict Spriggs to-day in order to have him tried under the section doubling the punishment when a defendant is convicted of a second offense. This will make him liable to a maximum total punishment of thirty-two years in prison should he be found guilty of the charges of abduction, assault, and maintenance of a disorderly place now pending against him.

Sally Bennett, whose place in West Thirtieth Street, within a few doors of the Tenderloin Station, was raided last week, and who is accused of being the partner of Spriggs, will probably also be indicted to-day. In August, 1888, she was sent to prison for four years for stabbing and almost killing Mathilda A. Hamilton.

The investigation of the mysterious death and disappearance of two white women in the house which the Bennett woman kept in West Thirty-first Street two years ago was continued by the District Attorney yesterday. The colored physician who issued the death certificates for both women, and the negro undertaker who buried them, appeared in Mr. Murphy's office and were carefully examined. The bodies of the women may be exhumed for examination.

According to the Tenderloin police, the bad negroes of the district are leaving the district from fear of the present disclosures. Hattie Ross, the colored missionary, whose information to the District Attorney started the investigation, believes she will be killed for what she has done.

TO CONTROL STATE "SOCCER."

New Body Organized Will Govern Association Football Clubs.

The New York State Football Association was organized last night at the Boys' Club, Tenth Street and Avenue A. The object of the new association is to govern Association football in New York State. Nine clubs were represented at the meeting, and pledges from a number of others were received. The clubs present were: Crescent Athletic Club, Freebooters, Camerons, Boys' Club, Staten Island Football Club, Burns, Critchley Football Club, Carlyles, and Brooklyn Football Club. A representative from Columbia University was present to report to the college authorities, but took no part in the proceedings.

It is intended to control Association football in the same manner that the Amateur Athletic Union controls all athletics. Clubs in the association will be sanctioned, and will not be permitted to play against outside clubs. An invitation was extended to the clubs in the Metropolitan Association Football League, but the latter organization is planning an opposition governing league and did not send any representative.

Rules to govern clubs, associations, and leagues were adopted, and a uniform set of playing rules will be formulated at a later meeting. The following officers were elected: President—Harry Manley, Staten Island Football Club; Vice President—F. H. Tabor, Boys' Club; Treasurer—A. H. Dale, Camerons; Secretary—A. W. Smith, Staten Island Football Club; Executive Board—R. Morrison, Burns Club; E. O. Challenger, Brooklyn Football Club; N. Agar, Critchley Football Club; W. D. Andrews, Crescent Athletic Club; J. Patty, Freebooters.

WORKOUTS AT GRAVESEND.

A Busy Day with the Racing Thoroughbreds Despite the Snow.

Plenty was doing about training quarters at the Gravesend track yesterday morning. The track was in excellent condition, and the little snow flurries in no manner interfered with the exercises of the thoroughbreds. Jim McLaughlin was on hand particularly early, and was one of the most energetic of those that brought their horses to the track. He is preparing a big string for the meeting at Benning, and there is every indication that his horses will be trained to the hour for the opening of the season. The two-year-olds Solly M. and Sun Up were permitted to go along for three furlongs in 0:41, while Sunburst and The Galloper were indulged for a half in 0:51¾. Mode and Moccasin worked a very smart three furlongs in 0:36¾. Of the older horses The Poet has been showing wonderful improvement in his recent moves. He was set down for a nice five furlongs, and had no trouble in reeling off the route in 1:05. He is ready to go to the post at any time, and should be a very useful horse when the Benning meeting opens. Kuro, Jack McKeon, and High Brush were worked in company and the result was a very clever six furlongs in 1:18½. Palora breezed a half in 0:50¾, and Oxford had only galloping exercise. The stable will be shipped to Benning to-morrow.

Fred Burlew had his lot out, but galloping was the only task asked, with the exception of the two-year-old Marius Caius, which was sent along smartly for a three-furlong spin in 0:39½.

W. Timmons sent Black Prince, Greeting, and a two-year-old by Orlando a smart half in 0:53½.

Frank Weir had out a large set, and much useful work was accomplished. King Pepper, Arklirta, Mintia, and the sprinter Roseben were in the lot. There were also four handsome two-year-olds. After a long gallop they were all permitted to speed along for three furlongs in 0:41½. Roseben and the older horses went on to the three-quarters in 1:21¾.

Tom Welsh sent Bull's Eye three furlongs in 0:43 and Red Friar and the other in the stable were sent out on a long, useful gallop.

DEUEL'S VOTE ACQUITS SON MOTHER ACCUSES

Injured Woman, 82 Years Old, Says Thorburn Beat Her.

TESTIFIES FROM STRETCHER

Prisoner Declares His Mother Fell and Hurt Herself When Intoxicated—Other Witnesses Confused.

When David Thorburn walked out of Special Sessions yesterday, a free man, more than one person was heard to remark that a jury would have brought the trial to a different conclusion. He was charged with beating his old mother, Mrs. Jane Thorburn of 231 East 109th Street, so badly that after having her in their care for nearly a month the surgeons of St. Vincent's Hospital are unable to tell whether she can live or not.

Justice Deuel cast the deciding vote that led to the acquittal of Thorburn. On one side of him Justice McKean urged that the prisoner should be sent to prison for a long period. On his other side Justice Olmsted declared with hardly less emphasis that Thorburn was innocent.

As far as could be learned from the utterances of the three Justices the disinclination of two of them to adjudge Thorburn guilty was based on two facts; that the principal witness who appeared for the prosecution next to Mrs. Thorburn herself had become mixed as to the date when the defendant was arrested, and that the old mother was said by several witnesses to be addicted to drink.

Her accused son asserted that his mother had received her injuries by a fall from a sofa while in a drunken stupor. Those injuries consisted, according to the testimony given by Dr. Allen of St. Vincent's Hospital, in a dislocated shoulder, three fractured ribs, two broken fingers, and bruises all over the body.

After listening to the testimony of Mrs. Thorburn, who has been in the hospital since Feb. 24, and who was brought to court on a stretcher, the statement of Dr. Allen, of Mrs. Margaret Mulvey, janitress of the house in which the Thorburns live, and to the arguments for and against conviction made by his two colleagues, Justice Deuel rendered this decision:

"The court is divided as to the man's guilt or innocence. There seems to be a reasonable doubt in the minds of two. The defendant is acquitted, Justice McKean dissenting."

A strange scene preceded the acquittal. Dr. Allen and three white-clad hospital attendants brought Mrs. Thorburn to court in an ambulance. The stretcher on which she lay was carried into the chambers of the Justices adjoining the courtroom. There it was placed on two chairs alongside the big table in the centre of the room.

The woman is 82 years old. But whether she be white-haired or only gray, wrinkled or smooth-faced, beautiful or ugly in her old age, no one who was in the room at that time can tell. Her head was one mass of white bandages, with a narrow slit for her eyes and a small clear space for the nose and the mouth. The physician said that her whole body was similarly swathed in bandages.

The three black-robed Justices entered with soft steps and solemn bearing and took their places at the head of the table. The woman's face was turned away from them and toward the opposite end of the table, where stood her son, a man of 32 years. Assistant District Attorney Krotel took his place as Prosecuting Attorney across the table from the woman.

Two of the attendants lifted Mrs. Thorburn a little. Mr. Krotel asked her if she knew the man facing her.

"I cannot see," she whispered. She was raised a little more and the prisoner was told to approach the cot. He did so, without showing emotion.

"Yes," said the mother, "that is my unfortunate son."

"Is he the man who beat you?" asked Mr. Krotel.

"He is," came the answer in barely audible voice. The Justices leaned close to the witness. Everybody in the room listened intently.

"He did it," she continued, "but he did not know what he was doing. The drink was in him—he was not"—

The rest died away in a sigh. Little by little Mr. Krotel drew out her full story. She owns the house where she has been living with her son. On the morning of Feb. 24 he came home and beat her, she said. He kept on, according to the mother's story, until he grew tired. As he struck her again and again, the mother told the Justices, he said:

"Get up and go to work, you—!"

When she had finished, Lawyer Goodhart said he would not cross-examine her. She was then carried out again and taken back to the hospital, which, as Dr. Allen said on the stand later, she may never again leave alive.

Mrs. Margaret Mulvey, janitor of the East 109th Street house, told about going into the rooms of the Thorburns on the morning of Feb. 24, while the man, she swore, was still beating his mother. Mrs. Thorburn was asking him to send for a physician. To this he replied, according to the witness:

"Oh, you need no doctor, you old—!"

Mrs. Mulvey called a physician herself. Thorburn stayed in the room while his mother's injuries were attended to, but when he was asked to lend a hand, she swore, he refused with an oath.

The defendant went on the stand in his own behalf and testified that his mother "was drunk day and night." He said that on Feb. 24 she sent him out every fifteen minutes from morning till noon to buy whisky. He said that he had been taught to drink whisky by his mother while still a boy, and that as far back as he could remember he had bought two pints of whisky every day, he drinking one himself and she the other.

Several witnesses were called to prove the habits of Mrs. Thorburn. Then Mrs. Mulvey was recalled and sharply cross-questioned, with the result that she became much confused and was unable to tell whether Thorburn was arrested on a Wednesday or a Friday.

Justice McKean declared openly that he believed the mother's story, nevertheless, but Justice Olmsted thought the son told the truth. And with him sided Justice Deuel at last.

NEW YORK Y. C. ADOPTS RULES

Makes Two Slight Changes in Racing Code Proposed by Conference.

Two changes were made by the New York Yacht Club last night in the racing rules adopted by the Atlantic Coast Conference of American Yacht Clubs and submitted to the various component organizations for approval. Otherwise the code was adopted in toto.

One change referred to the entering of boats in a class in which there were no other competitors. The new code provided that in event of a boat being alone in a class she should receive a sail-over prize if she covered the course, but made no provision for advancing to the class above, as was previously the case. The New York Yacht Club abrogated this change by the conference and gave the boat the option of advancing a class if she desired or taking a sail over, simply requiring notice of such intention to the Regatta Committee and the display of the racing number indicating in which class she intended to sail.

The other change was unimportant. Instead of allowing racing instructions to be delivered to any one on board, it compels them to be received by either the owner or his representative.

Doubtless the other clubs will accept the New York Yacht Club dictum and make the same alterations in the code when it come up before them for adoption.

STRENGTHEN OLYMPIC TEAM.

Lightbody, Sullivan, Connolly, and Edgren Will Compete at Athens.

Four men have been added to the American team to compete in the Olympian games at Athens. The most important addition is J. D. Lightbody of Chicago University, who was one of the first athletes to be selected. It was feared that his studies would interfere with his leaving with the team. This difficulty has been overcome, and he will prove a valuable addition to the distance men. Lightbody has a record of 1:57 for the half mile and 4:25 for the mile, both of which were made in 1903. Last year he won both the half mile and mile events at the Amateur Athletic Union championships. H. V. Valentine was the only man picked for the half mile event at Athens, and Lightbody is regarded as a faster runner than Valentine.

The other three men added to the team are D. O'Sullivan of Anaconda, Mont.; James B. Connolly, Boston, and Robert Edgren, New York. O'Sullivan will take part in the wrestling matches and weight events. Last year he competed in the all-around individual championships and finished fourth. He won the 56-pound weight event in the junior championships at the Lewis and Clark Exposition, Portland, Ore. James B. Connolly has been entered for the hop, step, and jump with Myer Prinstein. Robert Edgren will compete in the weight events and discus throw.

Drawings for "Soccer" Tournament.

Twelve clubs are entered in the competition, and all games will be played at Equitable Park, Sixty-seventh Street and Eleventh Avenue. The tournament will start on Sunday, when two games will be played. The drawings follow: West End Rangers versus Clarendon Football Club, Fifeshire Football Club versus Cameron Football Club, B team; Critchley Football Club versus Rob Roy Football Club, New York Hearts versus Jersey Athletic Club. FOOD.

SUGAR AND STARCH

Please the Palate, but Sometimes Play Hob with Digestion.

Sugar and starch, as found in ordinary food, are intended to supply energy and strength, keep up steam to drive the human machine, and this they do if properly digested.

But when the digestive apparatus has had too much work crowded upon it, or when it becomes weakened from any cause, the food decays (there is no other word so expressive) in the stomach and intestines, and not only produces gas to distend the stomach and crowd and weaken the heart, but promotes other disease conditions which develop into serious liver, stomach, and sometimes heart trouble.

It is important that the food present the sugar and starch to the stomach in such form that they may be readily digested and pass to the nerves and blood to energize the machine without overtaxing the organs.

Grape-Nuts food does this perfectly. It is prepared by mechanical (not chemical) processes, similar to those through which food passes in the healthy human digestive machinery, and is, when taken into the system, pre-digested, soluble, and easily assimilated. It is made of wheat and barley, and as it comes from the package is adapted and grateful to even the weakest stomach of adult or babe.

A lady writes from Woonsocket, R. I. "Grape-Nuts," she says, "is truly a wonderful food. I have been practically living upon it for the last 4 months, and I am stronger to-day, both physically and mentally, than I have been before for years.

"For some 12 or 15 years I had lived on sweet and starchy foods until my digestive organs were almost worn out, and I had been troubled for a long time with nervous dyspepsia or indigestion in its worst form. Everything I ate fermented, and I belched gas from my stomach most of the time.

"My doctor advised me to try Grape-Nuts, and so I began using it 3 times a day, and it has done wonders for me. It has strengthened my muscles, toned up my nerves, and rested my brain. The headaches that used to punish me have disappeared.

"I have gained strength to work and power to think. Grape-Nuts is worth more to me than all the medicine in the world.

"When my baby was cutting his teeth this Summer I cured him of his bowel trouble by feeding him Grape-Nuts soaked in milk." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

AUTO CLUB WITHDRAWS FROM A.A.A. MEMBERSHIP

Pennsylvania Motorists Form Independent State Federation.

CAUSES OF THE FRICTION

Action Deplored as Unfortunate—Resignation of Philadelphia and Pittsburg Directors Expected.

New York automobilists were much surprised yesterday to learn that the Automobile Club of Philadelphia had withdrawn from membership in the A. A. A. The latter has been increasing constantly in clubs and individual members during the last two years, having nearly seventy clubs enrolled in its list and representing a membership of nearly 15,000. This action of the Quaker autoists is the first serious defection that has occurred in the A. A. A. ranks. News of the withdrawal of the Pittsburg Automobile Club may be expected at almost any time, as the Pittsburg and Philadelphia clubs have consolidated in forming the Pennsylvania Motor Federation. The objects of this federation are practically the same as are fostered by the A. A. A., President Isaac Starr, who is also President of the Philadelphia Club, stating that special attention will be devoted to the improvement of roads and in securing reasonable legislation.

Automobilists who are interested in the success of the national body stated yesterday that it was unfortunate that the difficulty had occurred, but those who understood the conditions said the withdrawal of the Pennsylvania clubs was really due to a failure of those organizations to understand and appreciate the work being done by the A. A. A. In the words of one of the two or three A. A. A. Directors now in the city, it was the result of a deplorable lack of interest.

"The Philadelphia and the Pittsburg clubs each have a Director on the A. A. A. Board," he continued, "but for over a year I doubt if either has attended a single meeting. Last year the association had difficulty with the Philadelphia Club after granting a sanction for the Point Breeze track meet. It was a long time before a date was set for the meet and this delayed the committee in preparing its list of track contests. In many other cases there had been vexatious delays.

"The American Automobile Association has made repeated efforts to arouse more general interest in matters throughout Pennsylvania, and it had been hoped that a State association would be formed there. Now they have become independent and organized their own association. Well, I am glad to see that the autoists of Pennsylvania are waking up. It will be a benefit to motoring, and I would not be surprised if, after a year or two of running it alone, they would be glad to come back in the national fold."

One complaint made by President Starr to remaining in the American Automobile Association was that the Philadelphia Club was tired of paying the $1 dues for each member. He believed in keeping the money at home for good roads. By the American Automobile Association rule each club pays into the national treasury $1 for as many members as are in the club. If there is a State association one-half the amount is turned over to the State body for good roads. In this way the American Automobile Association encourages State automobile associations. Ohio formed an association a month ago, and Secretary Gorham is now in the West endeavoring to organize two or three more in other States. The new Pennsylvania Federation imposes a fee of $1 on each member.

MATHEWSON ON SICK LIST.

Giants' Pitcher Has Been Laid Up Three Days with Cold.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 13.—The first real clash of the baseball season, which was scheduled to-day between squads of Giants, was abandoned on account of wet grounds and illness of the star pitcher, Christopher Mathewson. He was to have appeared in the box for the "Cordovas," who were to have played the men stopping at the Clarendon. Manager McGraw refused to allow his men to play at the last moment, and states that the game will hardly take place now until Mathewson recovers from a severe cold, which has caused him to spend three successive days in idleness.

Players have taken much interest in the approaching contest. Wagers of much larger proportions than one would expect between members of a world's champion baseball aggregation have been made, showing that there is considerable weight placed on the merits of "young blood" which will embrace the line-up of the "Clarendons." Opinion based on the supposition that the so-called "young blood" will exert more energy in Spring games than the staid veterans is responsible for even money being rapidly accepted by admirers of the "Clarendons."

What Manager McGraw regards as unnecessary alarm has been spread concerning the condition of Mathewson. The pitcher has been under the care of specialists for three days. He has been asked to remain in his room. What at first seemed to be an attack of erysipelas, with which Mathewson has suffered on former occasions, has developed into a plain case of cold. He expects to resume training at an early date.

GOOD SCORES IN RIFLE MATCH

High Averages Maintained in Zettler Club Shooting Tournament.

The annual shooting tournament of the Zettler Rifle Club was continued last night at the club range, 159 West Twenty-third Street, when the high averages of the early rounds were maintained. The events contested last night were the ring target, 100-shot championship, and the Zimmerman competition for the President's bronze plaque.

In the opening ring target match L. Ittel and L. Buss made perfect scores of 75. The other scores were: M. Boal and O. Smith, 74; E. Van Zandt, F. C. Ross, L. Reall, and A. Hubalck, 73, and G. Schlecht, 72.

M. Boal scored 2,448 points out of a possible 2,500 in the 100-shot championship, and H. D. Mueller was second with 2,387. Boal now leads for the trophy, supplanting E. H. Van Zandt, whose score is 2,412.

R. Gute and L. Ittel tied with 88 points for the Zimmerman trophy. F. H. Keller finished third with 35.

Gallagher Beats Hoppe in Billiards.

"Willie" Hoppe, the champion billiardist, was beaten last night by Tom Gallagher by 400 points to 378. Hoppe played 18.1 balk line and Gallagher 18.2. The match was well contested and was watched with interest by a large number of spectators in Hoppe's billiard rooms, 50 West Thirtieth Street. Gallagher's average was 13 1-3 and his high run 85, while Hoppe averaged 12 18-30 and his best run was 93. In the afternoon "Willie" beat his brother Frank by 250 points to 167. "Willie" Hoppe averaged 10 and his high run was 46, while Frank Hoppe averaged 6 22-24 and his high run was 65.

PREPARING FOR POLO.

Tournaments Will Be Arranged at Annual Meeting Next Month.

The annual meeting of the Polo Association will be held on Tuesday, April 17, probably at the Metropolitan Club, as has been the case in former years. Besides the election of officers, the tournament list for the coming year will be arranged. The plan recently proposed to the Executive Committee to hold many of the big events this season as sectional tournaments, thus reducing the number of club contests, will be discussed. It has met with considerable favor, in view of the increasing number of club events. One strong reason in favor of the new scheme is the hope that it will bring out the full quota of club teams in special localities, thus making the tournament a greater success than is always the case with club events.

Little, if any, change is looked for in the election of officers. Chairman H. L. Herbert will be continued in that position, and William A. Hazard of the Rockaway Club will be re-elected Secretary.

The Polo Association has just issued the programme for the first big Southern polo tournament this year. It will be held between March 21 and 31 at the Camden Country Club, South Carolina. The cups to be played for are the Camden Country Club Cups, open to teams not exceeding an aggregate of sixteen goals. Individual cups will go to the members of the winning team. A number of New Yorkers have been playing polo at Camden for the past three or four weeks, and Secretary T. Edmund Krumbholz expects a good entry list. Following this event, an open tournament will probably be arranged at Aiken.

NEW SYSTEM AT COLUMBIA.

Students Will Be Subjected to Changed Methods in Physical Culture.

Dr. George L. Meylan, physical director at Columbia University, has announced that hereafter a new system will go into effect in the methods of physical culture at the institution. Students will be required to pass examinations, not only as to their general physical condition, as is evidenced by strength tests, but will also be required to pass satisfactory examinations as to their knowledge of the work gone through during the year, and on the subject matter of courses in hygiene.

Students will be graded in their work under the physical director in the same manner as students in the classical or scientific courses. Hitherto the men who put in a specified amount of time were passed, and those not fulfilling the time requirement could not obtain their degrees until this work was completed.

The new plan provides for a course in personal hygiene and tests in writing; second, a test calculated to determine the student's subject control in free exercises; third, his objective control, to be tested by his ability to perform on apparatus; fourth, an examination in swimming, including the breast and side strokes and swimming on the back; fifth, a strength test.

Dr. Meylan, in commenting upon the new system, said that it had been instituted because he believed that it would be a far greater test of a man's general efficiency than the attendance system previously in force at Columbia.

MOTOR BOAT CLUB PLANS.

New Clubhouse Will Be Finished for Carnival Races on Hudson.

Plans are now being prepared by an architect for the proposed Hudson River home of the Motor Boat Club of America. The house will be located at the foot of West 112th Street and the Hudson River. A frontage of 125 feet has been obtained from the city, but the clubhouse will be built on made land beyond the present shore line of the river. The Ways and Means Committee has ordered the architect to draw plans for a house 75 feet by 65 feet, and it will be equipped with all necessary conveniences for a first-class clubhouse. Just as soon as the plans are finished they will be laid before the Board of Governors for final adoption, and when that is done work will begin on the building.

For the motor boat racing on the Hudson this Summer temporary quarters will probably be secured by the club near its permanent site. It is now hoped that the new home will be completed early in the Fall, so that it may be opened during the annual motor boat carnival on the Hudson. In addition to the usual number of races for various classes of boats plans are now under way to close the carnival with an illuminated motor boat parade on the river. It is expected that one or more foreign boats will be sent to America for the international races that will be a feature of the carnival contests.

WOMEN ON PINEHURST LINKS.

Mrs. Paterson of Englewood Wins Her Match for First Cup.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 13.—The first match play round in the women's golf tournament resulted in easy victories for all of the scratch players. Mrs. Paterson beat Miss Gilbert handily by 8 up and 7 to play. The closest match was between Miss F. Condon of Philadelphia and Miss Ethel Check of East Orange, N. J., Miss Condon winning by 1 hole.

NEW WAY TO CATCH FISH.

Bushels of Perch Are Caught by "Tickling" Process at Eastport.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTPORT, L. I., March 13.—Visitors to this place during the past few days have been much interested in a peculiar mode of fishing in vogue among juvenile anglers, and familiarly known as "tickling." It consists in the boy practicing it lying on his side on the bank of the pond and shaking his hand beneath the surface of the water. The yellow perch, which are now engaged in spawning, are attracted by the agitation and crowd into his hand. Then, by closing his fingers quickly, he clutches the fish, which are thrown dextrously on the bank, and the operation is repeated.

This method must be practiced on moonless nights, the least light exposing the fisherman and being inimical to success. Sometimes a dozen boys may be seen at one time lying along the village dam, and many bushels of the perch are caught on a single fishing excursion.

Bowler Smith Defeats Voorheis.

John Voorheis, accounted by many expert bowlers to be the best player in the East, was signally defeated by James Smith at the Superba Alleys, Fulton Street and Franklin Avenue, Brooklyn, last night, by six games to three. The match was the best six out of eleven games, for a side wager of $250 and half of the gate receipts, of which 60 per cent. went to the winner and 40 per cent. to the loser. Neither man rolled in his best form, but the playing throughout was keen, and was watched by a big crowd. The scores:

	Smith.	Voorheis.
First game	179	167
Second game	156	172
Third game	222	178
Fourth game	187	183
Fifth game	160	197
Sixth game	190	184
Seventh game	192	207
Eighth game	189	162

Broke Collarbone at Hockey.

Rough work marked the interscholastic hockey championship match last night between the Cutler School and Columbia Grammar School at the St. Nicholas Rink. There was a deal of tripping and rough checking. Max Steinhardt, one of the Columbia School players, was thrown heavily. He was removed to the dressing room, where it was found his collarbone was broken. Several of the other players were badly bruised in the contest. Cutler School excelled in team work and won by the score of 5 goals to 0. Line-up:

Cutler School, 5.	Position.	Columbia G. S., 0
Morgan	Goal	Wolf
Rutherford	Point	Kinney
Fox	Cover point	Gerber
Reid	Forward	Bernhard
Norris	Forward	Steinhardt
Perry	Forward	Keator
Le Duc	Forward	Ely

Goals—Perry, (3,) Fox, Le Duc. Referee—Bert White, New York Athletic Club. Goal umpires—F. Richards, Cutler School, and I. Bach, Horace Mann School. Time of game—Twenty-minute halves.

Lewine Defeated Hirsh at Pool.

I. Lewine (90) defeated R. Hirsh (100) in the pool tournament at the Broadway Billiard Academy last night by the one-sided score of 90 to 39. Lewine was in splendid form, while Hirsh frequently missed easy shots. The winner's high run was 18, with 2 scratches. Hirsh's best single effort was 9, with 4 scratches. Dr. Arnold (85) and E. Hayes (100) will meet to-night.

Brooklyn Club Releases Malay.

Charles Malay, one of the Brooklyn Club's utility men of last year, has been released to the Columbus Club of the American Association. Malay's batting average for 101 games in 1905 was .252. He played seventy-five games at second base, and had an average of .932, and for twenty-five games in the field he had a percentage of .925.

BOOKMAKING ILLEGAL IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Will Affect New Track Owned by New York Turfmen.

SUPREME COURT'S DECISION

Betting on a Horse Race Is Gambling and Punishable by Criminal and Civil Action.

CONCORD, N. H., March 13.—That the making of books and pool selling at the new race course of the New England Breeders' Club at Salem, N. H., would be a violation of the law and punishable by criminal as well as civil action, is the decision of the Supreme Judicial Court returned to-day in reply to inquiries submitted to it by Gov. John McLane and counsel in reference to possible gambling at horse races.

It was the general opinion here to-night that races will be held without pool selling or bookmaking. The decision of the New Hampshire Supreme Court on two sections of the act incorporating the club, which were copied from the New York race track law, is opposed to the opinion of the New York Supreme Court, which passed upon these sections some years ago.

The President and manager of the club is Andrew Miller of New York. The track is said to have cost upward of $1,000,000, which was furnished largely by New York men.

The question of Gov. McLane, which was submitted to the court at the request of a large number of citizens, including many religious bodies, was:

> Whether the New England Breeders' Club is authorized by its charter to maintain a common gambling place, or permit the use of its premises is such if the promoting and permitting of betting, bookmaking, or pool selling upon horse races constitutes that offense?

The Supreme Court answered the second query first and said:

> We are of the opinion that betting upon a horse race is illegal gaming or gambling, and the second question is answered in the affirmative. * * * We are unable to discover in Chapter 232 of the laws of 1905, "an act incorporating the New England Breeders' Club," evidence of an intention to authorize the grantees or other persons to do upon the grounds of the corporation acts which are forbidden elsewhere.

Sections 7 and 8 of the charter of the club provide means by civil suit for the recovery of money lost in wagers upon races. In reference to this section the court says:

> If they (Sections 7 and 8) are intended to exempt persons offending upon the grounds of the corporation from criminal punishment the legislation is not a general law applicable to particular places, but is an attempt to confer special privileges upon particular persons. Only the clearest and most unmistakable language could justify a New Hampshire court in interpreting such an intention to the Legislature.

These sections were copied from the laws of New York relative to race tracks, and the decision of the New Hampshire court is contrary to that made in New York. The court reviews at length the decision of the New York court upon bookmaking and pool selling. The answer of the New Hampshire court concludes as follows:

> Upon the assumption therefore that book making and pool selling are merely forms of betting, we are of the opinion that Chapter 232 of the Laws of 1905 does not empower the New England Breeders' Club to promote or permit upon their grounds betting of such character upon the races and contests of supposed skill and endurance which they are authorized to conduct, and that to promote or permit such acts is forbidden by the law of the State.

POGGENBURG PLAYS WELL.

Wins from Norris in National Billiard Tourney—Conklin Defeated.

CHICAGO, March 13.—Calvin Demarest, Chicago, and J. Ferdinand Poggenburg, New York, won the second and third games in the National amateur billiard championship tourney here to-day. They defeated National champion C. F. Conklin of Chicago and Charles S. Norris, New York, respectively, the victors displaying masterful billiards, especially Demarest, whose youth and inexperience in tournament play were expected to count against him.

Except for occasional touches of nervousness, however, he stuck to his work like a veteran, and won the applause of the audience with a brilliant run of 65. Poggenburg's game was marked by the steadiness for which he has become noted, and his victory fulfilled expectations.

Clever "out and in" play enabled Demarest to defeat Conklin in the evening. The styles of the two players were diametrically opposite, and the match resulted in a close and interesting contest. Demarest, who is the youngest recruit to the Class A ranks, showed a brilliancy of execution that was scarcely equaled by the gritty play of the title holder. Demarest drew ahead early in the contest with runs of 40 and 31 in the first five innings.

By the steadiest kind of play Conklin cut this down until at the halfway point he passed his opponent. Open table work, much of it startling, accomplished this, Demarest showing the effects of the strain under which he was laboring by missing a number of draw and three-cushion shots, each of which left Conklin in position for runs of from 18 to 24.

When Demarest recovered his nerve, however, he retrieved himself with a run of 65 in the twenty-third inning. Conklin came back with 20 in his twenty-fourth effort, missed in the next, and then Demarest ran out with a carefully nursed bunch of 31. His high run score was 245, his best run was 29, and his average 9 20-25.

J. Ferdinand Poggenburg of New York won the afternoon game, defeating Norris by a score of 300 to 231. Poggenburg played a steady game throughout, showing splendid form. Although Norris made 50, the high run of the game, he was somewhat erratic and could not hold the balls together. In the nineteenth inning Norris made a series of long round-the-table shots and took the lead, but several blanks in the next few innings and three runs of over forty by Poggenburg put the latter in the lead, which he retained until the end of the game.

It took Poggenburg thirty-one innings to run out the game, his average being 9 21-31. Norris's average was 7 21-30.

SHOW HORSES SELL WELL.

Dr. Woodend's Old-Time Winners Under New Names Bring $2,525.

Good prices were obtained yesterday for a number of high-class show horses which were sold at Van Tassell & Kearney's, 126 East Thirteenth Street. The bay geldings Watch Me and See-Me-Go brought the highest price, $2,525. They evoked peculiar interest because the same horses were formerly owned by Dr. Woodend and were successfully shown by him as Paul and Virginia. Under their new names they have been owned by David Dunlop of Virginia and won a number of blue ribbons last year at Baltimore and Virginia shows. Derby, a bay gelding that won the reserve championship in the Norfolk show last season, brought $1,000.

The well-known Sports of the Times, which won blue ribbons at Long Branch, Atlantic City, and Newport last year, occasioned spirited bidding and was knocked down for $475. Several horses consigned by James T. Twitty of Warrenton, N. C., brought good prices, the highest being $1,100 for the brown gelding Majestic.

In all 24 horses were disposed of for $11,250, an average of $468.75 per head.

GOLF AT PALM BEACH.

Good Play Shown for Royal Poinciana and Consolation Cups.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 13.—Match play was begun to-day here in the last golf tournament of the season. For the Royal Poinciana Cup Norman Towne defeated A. J. McClure by 1 up; C. B. Corry defeated L. A. Hamilton, 3 up, 2 to play; A. F. Huston defeated A. W. Black, 3 up, 1 to play, and Walter Fairbanks defeated Robert F. Phifer, 7 up and 5 to play. For the Consolation Cup W. A. Beckler defeated H. C. Haskins, 5 up, 4 to play; Sidney Maddock defeated A. F. Snare, 2 up; R. J. Allyn defeated A. F. Morris by default, and J. Shepard, Jr., defeated L. E. Martin, 2 up.

Triple Screw for Power Cruiser.

Norman L. Skene has designed a novel craft for the long distance race of the Knickerbocker Yacht Club from Marblehead to College Point. She is a triple-screw power cruiser, and will mark the first attempt to use a triple screw on a power boat. The three engines are to be of different horse power, the central one driving the craft and the others being used as auxiliaries. The larger power will only be a seven-horse Jaeger and the side engines two and one-half-horse Jaegers. The idea is to obviate the greatest difficulty that a power boat finds—the loss of a rudder. In case of difficulty with the steering gear it will be easy to steer with the low-powered engines.

The boat is being built for R. H. Curry, and will be 32 feet over all, 30 feet water line, 7 feet 7 inches beam, and 2.5 feet draught.

N. Y. A. C. ANNUAL MEET PRODUCES GOOD SPORT

Irish-American Team Leads in the Open Relay.

M. SHEPPARD IS PROTESTED

Young Athletes from the Public Schools Compete in the Madison Square Garden Games.

Intercollegiate athletic champions, members of the American Olympic team, and others of lesser note competed in the New York Athletic Club's annual indoor meet last night in the Madison Square Garden. To the big crowd that watched the events the relay races proved the most exciting on the programme. The remarkable performance of Sheppard in the two-mile relay, won by the Irish-American Athletic Club, caused them to cheer loudly. Cornell's victory over Yale and Harvard in the intercollegiate one-mile relay also aroused no end of partisan spirit for the university up the State. Amherst's splendid work against the team of the New York University also was enthusiastically applauded. Throughout the programme it was a series of closely contested competitions of the liveliest character.

Sheppard made a runaway finish to the two-mile relay race, which he won for the Irish-American Athletic Club. The great runner proved himself a marvel. He easily distanced Howard Valentine, the last man out for the New York Athletic Club, getting to the tape fully twenty-five yards in advance of the fleet Mercury Foot competitor. The last half mile which Sheppard ran for his club, was timed at 1:57, while the time for the race was 7:58.

In this race the New York Athletic Club, the Pastime Athletic Club, and a team of the Central Young Men's Christian Association, Brooklyn, competed. Nebrick led for the New Yorks for the first relay. Then Bacon of the Irish-Americans forged ahead, while Pilgrim, by a great spurt, got to the mark on even terms with Sullivan. At this mark the Pastime and Brooklyn runners were distanced. Valentine got a lead on Sheppard as the men started away, but Sheppard overhauled him on the first lap around the track, winning without the slightest sign of distress. Sheppard competed in the race under a protest of the Registration Committee of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union. It is claimed that letters were received yesterday which prove that the great runner has contested under professional conditions.

Cornell's team caused a sensation. They displayed speed of no uncertain quantity, and after the first relay of their race with Yale and Harvard they held to the lead. Doyle of Harvard led for the first quarter mile, while Yale was third. Yale braced up with Parsons on the last relay and won second place. Against the Irish-Americans at one mile the New York Athletic Club team defeated them by fully fifty yards. Sheppard did not run in this race, and the Mercury Foot men led all the way.

Two accidents resulted from the big fields. Curiously enough, the unfortunates were brothers. Robert Eller broke the small bones of his left ankle in the 300 yards run by stepping on the strip of wood edging the track. He was taken to Bellevue Hospital. John Eller sprained his ankle in the hurdle race. Both are members of the Irish-American team. The summary:

CHESBRO'S PITCHING SOLVED.

Greater New York Regulars Defeat Youngsters by Five to One.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 13.—In spite of the fact that "Happy Jack" Chesbro and Manager Clark Griffith worked for the youngsters this afternoon the regulars won easily, the score being 5 to 1. Had Chase not been dreaming when Kleinow attempted to catch Keeler forty miles from Broadway off the initial bag, the "Colts" would have been shut out. As it was Chesbro was hammered from the box, and Griffith was touched up lively. Leroy succeeded them and worked finely, not a hit being made off him. Hogg, pitching for the regulars, was in splendid form.

To-morrow the game with Birmingham occurs. Orth, the smiling favorite, and Chesbro will pitch against Clark and Wilhelm, the pride and hope of the Birmingham camp. The game promises to be a red-hot one, the Southern stars declaring that Chesbro will have no terrors for them. Orth has placed a wager that he will escape unscathed, while Molesworth, the hard-hitting centre fielder of the local camp, who led the Southern League last season with the bat, avers that he will make an average of .300 against the New Yorker.

There is a very lively discussion here as to whether "Rube" Waddell was really sandbagged and robbed last evening in Montgomery, as reported, or whether he is spreading abroad another false alarm.

CORPORATION SECRETS.

The corporations are presently going to be in a position where they can say, "Honesty is the best policy—we have tried them both." The decision of the Supreme Court in the Tobacco Trust and Paper Trust cases has made the way of transgressing corporations hard and dangerous. It is now declared to be the law of the land that the witness's constitutional privilege of refusing to give testimony tending to incriminate himself does not cover the refusal to produce books and papers that would incriminate his corporation. It is a purely personal immunity, and may not be asserted in behalf of a third person—certainly not in behalf of a corporation. The reasoning of Justice Brown is so clear and convincing that one has a natural feeling of surprise that the contrary doctrine has ever been set up by corporation lawyers:

> On the other hand, the corporation is a creature of the State. It is presumed to be incorporated for the benefit of the public. It receives certain special privileges and franchises and holds them subject to the laws of the State and the limitations of its charter. Its rights to act as a corporation are only preserved to it so long as it obeys the laws of its creation. There is a reserved right in the Legislature to investigate its contract and find out whether it has exceeded its powers. It would be a strange anomaly to hold that a State, having chartered a corporation to make use of certain franchises, could not in the exercise of its sovereignty inquire how those franchises had been employed and whether they had been abused, and demand the production of the corporate books and papers for that purpose.
> The defense amounts to this: That an officer of a corporation which is charged with a criminal violation of the statute may plead the criminality of such corporation as a refusal to produce its books. To state this proposition is to answer it. While an individual may lawfully refuse to answer incriminating questions, unless protected by an immunity statute, it does not follow that a corporation vested with special privileges and franchises may refuse to show its hand when charged with an abuse of such privileges.

In the case of the corporation officer upon the witness stand who should plead the Fifth Amendment in support of his refusal to produce books and records that would show his corporation to be a violator of the law, Justice Brown said that the immunity being altogether personal, the witness could not be permitted to plead that some third person would be incriminated by his testimony. "A privilege so extensive might be used to put a stop to the examination of any witness who was ever called upon to testify before the Grand Jury with regard to the doings or the business of his principal, whether such principal were an individual or a corporation." Mr. James M. Beck, who appeared as special Government counsel in the Paper Trust case, said in his argument that "to constitute such a city of refuge for lawbreakers at this day when great corporations are dominating factors in our social life and the conviction for violations of law can often only be obtained by recourse to their books and documents, or to the evidence of their employés, would be an extraordinary step backward."

The decision has a good deal of significance for the managers of corporations. It means that they must carry on their business not as if their transactions were concealed by midnight darkness, but in the broad light of day. Otherwise there is no safety. The books of account, kept under lock and key, that show the secret rebate will have to be produced in court. The unlawful contract that gives one customer an unfair advantage over other customers will be spread before the jury. Every kind of agreement, understanding, custom, or practice that carries with it a record that would be evidence of the violation of the Inter-State Commerce act or of the Anti-Trust act will henceforth be dangerous. There will be but one safe and comfortable rule—to live honestly in the fear of the law.

The decision will be annoying for many corporations. It will be a cause of inconvenience, of loss, and of consequent railing and denunciation. But who is to blame? Certainly not the court. It has merely declared the law as it stood. How can any one dissent from Judge Brown's opinion that the privilege of concealment sought to be enforced would constitute a bulwark behind which corporations might without fear perpetrate iniquities harmful to the State that created them? If there is anybody to blame it must be the corporations themselves, that have more or less knowingly been violating the law.

Blackmailers, "strikers," and demagogues will take advantage of the decision to harass corporations supposed to be vulnerable. As is intimated by Judge Brown, the courts will protect them against merely vexatious inquests undertaken for no good or public purpose. But here, again, honest living in the fear of the law is the sovereign defense. A corporation that has no secrets from the court can with impunity kick the blackmailer down its steps.

This power to compel the production of books, papers, and records belongs not only to the Federal Government in dealing with inter-State corporations, but to the State Governments dealing with corporations of their own creation doing business within their boundaries. There are going to be a great many pure food bills passed by State Legislatures in the near future. The American people have got tired of being poisoned, tired of being cheated. The manufacturer's books and contracts will convict him if he continues his career of vile adulteration. Some time we shall get after the shoddy mills whose proprietors, enthusiastic protectionists to a man, take advantage of the exorbitant Dingley rate to palm off upon their customers at high prices "American woolens" made of rags. Their crimes, too, will be revealed by their books. For all the corporations there will be safety only in righteousness.

MUNICIPAL OPERATION.

The belated publication of the report of Mr. Dalrymple upon municipal operation sufficiently explains its belating. It explains, if it does not justify, the action of Mayor Dunne in pocketing it, upon the ground that the author was his personal guest, and the author's report therefore his personal property. That was a queer ground for a Mayor to take about the testimony of an expert witness, summoned by himself to bear testimony about a matter of public concern. A candid man in Mayor Dunne's place would have published the report, even though adverse to his own contention, and would have taken his revenge by subsequently impeaching his own witness. To pocket the report and leave it to be finally given out by the "Deputy Town Clerk of Glasgow" was a piece of shifty politics not to be expected of the devotee of a cause in which he entirely believes. Dunne might, in fact, have said to Dalrymple, as Balak to Balaam, "I took thee to curse mine enemies, and, behold, thou hast blessed them altogether."

Not that Mr. Dalrymple's report is altogether unimpeachable. Far from it. His condemnation of the underground trolley, as opposed to the overhead trolley, shows a want of knowledge of "the present state of the art." It is exactly the same line of argument which used to be employed in favor of the disfigurement of the highways of this city by posts and wires, until experience demonstrated its unsoundness. The insistence of this municipality against the disfigurement, even before a practicable underground trolley had been produced, is about the most creditable municipal achievement we have performed, excepting the insistence, which the Board of Health seems now to be compromising, that soft coal should not be permitted to belch forth filthy fumes within the municipal limits. In each case necessity was the mother of invention. The prohibition of overhead trolleys led to the introduction of underground trolleys. The prohibition of sooty smoke led to the introduction of apparatus whereby soft coal could be consumed without creating a public nuisance.

But it is not this vulnerable part of the Scottish expert's report which instigated the Mayor of Chicago to bury its secrets, so far as he could, within his private bosom. It is the invulnerable part, the part which sets forth that, whatever may be the abstract merits of municipal ownership and operation, Chicago is not fit to embark upon it, and that the last state of Chicago, if Chicago did embark upon it, would be much worse than the first. His remark to the effect that the facilities for urban transportation are less in Chicago than in any other American city ought to sting to some kind of action the civic pride of a community which has, or at least had, as large a share of that admirable and valuable commodity "per capita" as any other community in the United States.

MISS ANTHONY.

To those who had the privilege of knowing Miss Anthony at all well it was not easy, even in the earlier days of her active career, to explain, and it was still less easy to excuse, the bitterness and derision with which she was almost universally treated. She was at heart one of the kindest and most considerate of women, she was constantly rendering services of the most generous sort without the least display, and she bore the rudeness and violence of her opponents not, certainly, as suffering fools patiently, but with womanly dignity and high-mindedness.

One can hardly realize now what she had to encounter sixty years ago both on account of the causes she publicly advocated and on account of the simple and then singular fact that she, a woman, chose to advocate them publicly. Slavery, intemperance, and unfairness to women were not in the late forties and in the fifties looked upon at all as they are at present. They were accepted as the institutions and customs of the best society of the time, and any severe comment on them was irritating to the great mass of respectable men and women. But that this comment should be made in public, in speech, and in print, by a woman, and especially by one who for a time wore unconventional and unbecoming clothes, shocked the general sense of propriety to a degree we can hardly even understand and with which we cannot at all sympathize. In regard to all these things there has been change amounting to revolution. Slavery is abolished and almost forgotten, intemperance is greatly lessened, and the inequalities of woman's status before the law are practically done away with except in the matter of suffrage, and as to that, there has been such serious modification that women could probably have the vote at any time that they really demanded it.

Miss Anthony's part in the education of public opinion regarding these changes was considerable. It may not have been as great as she and her immediate associates thought it to have been, but at least it was pursued by her with the utmost courage, patience, fidelity, and unselfishness. And it is a mistake to suppose that Miss Anthony did not feel acutely the treatment to which for so many years she subjected herself, for her nature was essentially refined and sensitive. What she did was inspired by a clear and strong sense of duty, fanatical possibly, as often happens with such temperaments, but sincere and noble. It is a comfort to know that the later years of her long and strenuous life were peaceful and that her admirable qualities were widely recognized.

ASKING TOO MUCH.

The Election Laws Improvement Association seems to us to be asking too much in its Elections bill. It is quite right in trying to make it easy for any voter wishing to vote a split ticket or an independent ticket of any sort, but when it refuses to the voter who wishes it the right to vote a straight party ticket with ease and certainty, we think the Legislature will not grant the demand. We think also that the Legislature should not grant it.

The right of convenient selection of candidates is an important one. It does not exclude, it really includes, the right to select all the names of candidates of one party and to vote them conveniently. There is no sense in trying to make a voter avoid a straight ticket by multiplying the difficulties for him. Nor is there any justice in it. We are confident that the majority of the members of the Legislature would fear, and with reason, the judgment of their constituents if they went back with such a measure charged up against them. It is not expedient to mix up the useful features of the reform bill with this, which is neither useful nor popular.

ANOTHER TARIFF QUESTION.

What is the nature of the communications regarding the tariff which are passing between England and the United States? More than once the London telegrams have politely remarked that the United States has not answered the representations of England, but nothing comes from Washington upon the subject. Of course England can go no further than to drop us this polite hint that there is something doing between the two countries. England could not very well publish what our State Department keeps so private, but there is no harm in putting us up to asking upon our own accounts.

The telegrams say England is not hopeful of being allowed to "share in the privileges of the Dingley tariff." We should say not, since the result of the English elections, and since the Dingley "privileges" are intended strictly for the United States, and not for any other country, especially not for free trade countries. The way to share in the Dingley privileges is to threaten the infliction of similar privileges, as Germany did. Then something may be done, not by Congress, of course, but by "administrative reform." It is just now being discovered that the reform granted upon German initiative cannot be restricted to Germans, but must be extended to all foreigners, and even to Americans. By whatever fraction the administrative reforms promote German trade they cheapen all foreign goods to American exporters, and make easier foreign access to American markets. It is because administrative reform by Executive order has such unsuspected results that it would be interesting to learn what is the nature of England's request, and what reply will be made.

PROHIBITION AND PERJURY.

Miss Phoebe Couzins, we are pained to learn, is in a condition of physical infirmity. There seems to be no doubt, however, that she is in full possession of her mental faculties, which appear to be of a rather high order. When she was wheeled the other day to the tribune of the Assembly Chamber in Albany, she told her hearers some truths of the possession of which they appeared to stand particularly in need.

We need not discuss Miss Couzins's other specialty, her specialty as an agitatrix against female suffrage. In her capacity as an agitatrix against prohibition, Miss Couzins occupies common ground with the "honorable women not a few" who compose the Army and Navy League, and whom the absurdity of their sisters has driven out of their personal preference for privacy. The fact relieves "mere man" from engaging in a controversy with woman, "as such," when women are clearly divided.

Miss Couzins had things to tell the New York Legislature which were much to the purpose about the failure of prohibition to prohibit. Not that the legislators did not in effect know it already, but that it makes for the prevention of what may be called "henpecked legislation," like the prohibition of the army canteen, that women should say it. When Miss Couzins set forth, as of her own knowledge, that a thirsty soul in Kansas gave, under oath, "perjury" as the name of the complaint for which he required alcoholic relief, she sufficiently showed that prohibition is not only ineffectual, but that it produces a derangement of moral values far more pernicious to the community than the alcoholic excesses which it fails to restrain. Her address to the Legislature ought to have some effect in calling that body back from theories to facts as the basis of useful legislation.

LABELS.

We can see absolutely no objection to the bill that comes before the Public Health Committee to-day, providing for the full and accurate labeling of medicines and foods containing potent drugs.

The purpose is one with which all decent and intelligent citizens should have the utmost sympathy, namely, to protect the public health against secret injury, and we should say that all honest manufacturers of wholesome or innocent articles of medicine or food would be the most strenuous in the advocacy of proper measures to secure this purpose. The method proposed is simple. The law requires that the ingredients of such preparations shall be printed plainly on a label for each package; that the State Board of Health shall be authorized on its own motion, or on complaint, to analyze the contents of the packages, and every failure to comply with the law shall be punished by a fine or imprisonment as a misdemeanor or by damages collected to the amount of $50 for each offense, for the benefit of the public health service of the State or of localities.

There is an active and influential organization, of which Mr. William A. Jenner is Chairman, for promoting the passage of this legislation, and it has enlisted the hearty co-operation of the best members of the medical profession in all parts of the State. We trust that their labors may be crowned with success.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Good Advice from an Enemy.

One whom we suspect of antagonism to any change whatever in the spelling of English words slyly suggests that we, in turn, innocently suggest to Mr. Carnegie that he begin his reform with his own name and that of the board he has organized. We clearly see the malice of this, but we also see its humor, and therefore we are quite ready to make solemn announcement that both A-n-d-r-e-w and C-a-r-n-e-g-i-e are words that might be much better spelled than they are and that the simplification of s-i-m-p-l-i-f-i-e-d ought to be at once undertaken by the simplifiers. We remain convinced, however, that the Simplified Spelling Board is a fine institution, and it has the heartiest of our wishes for an active and efficient career. The plan it outlines is entirely practicable, though perhaps unnecessarily cautious. The number of people who are vehemently in love with the difficulties, absurdities, inconsistencies—and crystallized ignorances—of our present spelling is very small, and neither their denunciation nor their ridicule will weigh at all heavily upon the great majority, who look upon spelling as a means to an end, and to an end quite different from the preservation of etymological history in the most clumsy, expensive, and deceptive of forms. One might imagine, from the way in which the enemies of this reform run on, that any changes made now would be the first to which English spelling had ever been subjected—would be the establishment of an evil precedent instead of merely a slight hastening, in the interest of convenience and economy, of a process that has been going on steadily ever since the day when English became a written language. One of our correspondents said yesterday that, in his opinion, "before we try to monkey further with so good an instrument as the English language we ought to try to use it properly." Well, not necessarily. With a little, or even with a lot, of "monkeying" an amount of time almost incalculably large, now devoted to the learning of such utterly useless and imbecile things as the arrangement of the vowels in "siege" and "seize," could be used on the task which our correspondent wisely intimated is so important. The personality of the Simplified Spelling Board is guarantee that the demand for an improved orthography is not an outgrowth of ignorance or irreverence. These men have more than a little affection for the history of words, and they are not at all likely to do anything that will hide or distort it. They will, however, put and keep that history in its proper place.

Two Views of Immigration.

Prof. E. A. Ross of the Nebraska University has been exploiting the pleasant theory that Americans are a special and superior race, since they are selected specimens from all Europe, the easygoing and unenterprising types remaining at home and the active and adventurous one coming over here. This, he says, has always been the case and therefore it is no wonder that we are so much brighter and better than other peoples. American Medicine notes this theory only to attack it. "The successful people of a country," it says, "are those who stay at home, and it is only the unsuccessful or comparative failures who are discontented and migrate to better their fortunes. Instead of receiving the best we get the worst, and perhaps—and here's the rub—we always have received the worst. A small minority may indicate abnormality of some kind—they differ in opinion from the great mass of the normal or average. Hence, those who came for the purpose of practicing peculiar religious views may have been far from normal. The very boastfulness of the American eagle is itself an evidence of mental exaltation. So let us be humble and remember that for murders, crimes, civic unvirtue, and various other trifles we lead the civilized world. We hold life cheaper than the Chinese, we glorify certain murderers and hang very few, and our methods of high finance should please the devil himself. Have we acquired all this wickedness or are we naturally wicked—selected types?" Here, truly, is a lesson in humility, but the picture seems to us to be unnecessarily black. Still, Stevenson found himself surrounded by weaklings and degenerates, weaklings all, when he came over in the steerage, and at Ellis Island the visitor does not always get unalloyed encouragement as regards the National future. There are, however, many reasons besides failure for emigration. Perhaps Prof. Ross is only half wrong and American Medicine only half right.

Heroism That Is Disquieting.

On reading about the railway signalman over in New Jersey who, after a fall that seriously injured him, yet struggled up the stairs of his tower and set the lights against all trains before he sought the ministrations he desperately needed, the first thought is of the man's heroic devotion to his duty. James Scales is evidently an admirable type of the railway employé, and it is to be hoped that his courage will be adequately appreciated and rewarded by his company. But is there not cause for some disquietude in the revelation that if his injury had been just a little more severe than it was the disaster he prevented would have occurred? The necessity, or the possibility, of asking this question implies that more responsibility was placed on a single man than he could safely bear, and that it would have been well—except for the company's expense account—if he had been provided with a companion in a place where so much depended upon continuous service. There is a general impression, too, that what a tower signalman does is to let trains pass, and that when he does nothing the lines are closed. The story from Denville indicates that there is something wrong with that impression, and that the automatic protection of the traveling public is not quite what it has been supposed to be. The episode seems to be one that needs a little investigation, and exclamations over the heroism of James Scales are not enough to close it satisfactorily.

SMALL TALK OF WASHINGTON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Senator Blackburn was pictured as being very downcast in a Kentucky town the other day over the loss of his baggage. When he was asked what the baggage consisted of, the Senator, according to the story, responded that "the cork came out."

"Joe, what about that story?" asked a constituent of the Senator to-day.

"Not a word of truth in it. You know I would be more careful of the cork."

Quentin, the eleven-year-old son of the President, is a pupil at one of the public schools of the city.

"Who can bring me some old gloves for cleaning off the blackboards?" the teacher asked the other day.

"I can," promptly said Quentin. "Nick gave me two pairs."

Senator Teller lost his voice to-day trying to address the Senate. He has been in delicate health for a year past and has been obliged to be careful of his strength. He has served in public life continuously now ever since Colorado was admitted in 1876 and of late years the strain upon him has taxed his strength to the utmost. The political complications in his State of late years also have had much to do with his physical condition. The difficulty seems to be one of nervous exhaustion, and his physician expresses the hope that a few days' rest will restore his usual health. Mr. Teller when he found that he could not speak above a whisper sat down and a few minutes later retired from the chamber to his committee room and went home for the day.

Ex-Senator William E. Chandler was an interested attendant at the hearing by the House Committee on Election of the President, Vice President, and Members of Congress yesterday afternoon, and just before the adjournment made a speech in support of the McCall bill, which was under consideration.

"I was a great advocate of the power of the Federal Government away back in the future," he began, and then gazed helplessly around the room trying to discover why everybody laughed. With the secret still undisclosed he went on to read the President's message recommending such a bill.

"This bill ought to have been passed last December," he said. "That lecture was to you."

"There are several features of the President's message not yet enacted into law," commented Chairman Gaines.

MR. CONRIED'S $500.

Another Story of Discrimination in Selling Low-Priced Seats.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have been very much interested in the letters that have been appearing in The Times regarding the Metropolitan Opera House box office. It seems to me that Mr. Conried's letter of March 8 does not get at the heart of things. It would be almost impossible for one to "produce evidence that the management of the Metropolitan Opera House, or any employe, official, or agent connected with that theatre, is in collusion with the speculators." The following experience, however, makes me feel that the public does not receive the consideration at the Metropolitan Opera House that it does at many of the theatres: Having been told by an employe of the opera company that a certain opera would be sung on a certain evening, I went to the box office ten days before the opera was to be sung and three days before it was advertised, (in The Times,) and when I asked for two dollar seats I was told that there were none left—not that they had not yet been placed on sale. To whom had they been sold?

I have wondered why placards are not put up in the lobby announcing the fact just as soon as the $1 and $1.50 seats have all been sold. I have stood from one to two hours in line, only to be told finally that there were no more tickets at those prices. I am heartily in sympathy with the suggestion, made through your paper, that there should be a separate window for the sale of these tickets.

Finally, is it too much to ask that a lover of music who cannot afford to pay more than $1 or $1.50 to hear an opera should receive the same courtesy at the box office as a purchaser who can pay the higher prices? A SUBSCRIBER.

New York, March 12, 1906.

Woodrow Wilson for President.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The nomination of Woodrow Wilson of Princeton for President in 1908 on the Democratic ticket, as proposed by one of our most influential weeklies, is an excellent idea and wise policy.

Here is a man, and pre-eminently the one man, in this country, who, by his capacity and experience, his mastery of constitutional law, and his executive ability, is fitted to be the National representative of the "safe and sane Democracy."

This action should receive the enthusiastic support of all who have at heart the welfare of the Democracy and of the country.

New York, March 12, 1906.

REPLY TO DR. MAXWELL.

Supt. Shearer Gives Superintendent's Report as His Authority.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In his letter in to-day's Times Dr. Maxwell waves me from his kingly presence with the suggestion that I base my statements upon more exact knowledge of the conditions in New York. I wish I might, but I had little else than his report of 1904 on which to base most of the statements in my first paper. It is hardly fair to blame me for the inaccuracy of his own statements.

Page 30 gives net enrollment as 622,201. Page 32 gives average register as 544,293. Page 33 gives number on register as 540,351. Page 34 gives average attendance as 466,571. Page 39 gives two numbers for the average on register, 544,293 and 543,535. Yet this is not the total of the average register in the high schools, elementary schools, and kindergartens as given on same page. Page 47 gives number of pupils as 491,674.

On Page 47 he gives the normal age of children for several grades, but takes their age from June 30, 1904, when nearly all are supposed to be ready to step into an advanced grade. According to Page 63, in his 1905 report, it is made to appear that 7 per cent. less lost time last year than the year before. This is not surprising in view of the fact that teachers have been urged to promote on age that a better showing may be made. It also may be worth while to consider that 40,000 children are missing from the report of pupils in the first year. For it is made to appear that with 58,330 in the first year, 83,881 reach the second year. This might be continued indefinitely, but it is surely enough to prove that Dr. Maxwell is right in advising me not to base my opinions on statements in his report. I assure him I did not do so where I could help it, and in accordance with his suggestion, in my next article I will deal with conditions not as shown by his report, but by visits to schools in different parts of New York City.

My articles are written at the solicitation of The Times, and not at my suggestion. My only motive is to call attention to actual conditions. For the sake of the 655,503 children, I sincerely hope that Dr. Maxwell will be able to refute each of my statements and prove that I have been mistaken in my deductions.

Though he says he does not know that he will answer my articles, work already apportioned to Associate Superintendents proves he intends to do so, if there is any answer to make.

WILLIAM J. SHEARER.

Elizabeth, N. J., March 13, 1906.

HOT AFTER DR. SHEARER.

With Some Reflections Upon Elizabeth, N. J., as a Source of Wisdom.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The gist of the alarming pedagogical news that comes from that famous educational centre, Elizabeth, N. J., is that out of some immense number of pupils in all our public schools, which includes children of all ages down to those in the kindergartens, only 4 per cent. have reached the highest grammar grade. This and other important discoveries that are presented to us so gravely will strike any one connected with the schools about as forcibly as the classical announcement that the Dutch have taken Holland, or that the top, in schools as in other spheres of life, is not overcrowded.

We are assured that the slow ones keep back the bright ones! Why, the poor we have always with us, and in all occupations the bright and overly bright wait for the more plodding steps of the rest. And there has always been in our schools provision for the more rapid advancement of some than others. I have seen many instances of boys "skipping a class," say, from the eighth to the sixth, at a promotion time, or during a term from the sixth to the fifth. This could be more widely practiced, and with great profit to all, but it is by no means unknown.

One special announcement is that probably 150,000 children were not promoted in February, and that thereby no less than 150,000 years were lost in one year. How like some geological sharp this sounds, when he wants to prove that there is no basis for religion! He simply says man is on the earth X years, the said X being a figure or two with any number of ciphers, a few more or less making no difference. And I wonder where the figures in this matter came from. The common complaint is that few if any are left back, no matter how much their negligence has earned that honor. But several new Superintendents are soon to be chosen here, and Elizabeth has a candidate. There's the rub. We have 'em from all over, and the less they know of New York the more they have to say. I hereby announce to all concerned my own candidacy. I at least know the city.

ROBERT P. GREEN.

New York, March 12, 1906.

London and New York.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is with regret that I must agree with the "Real Englishwoman" in her criticism of American good breeding as seen in Greater New York.

Let us hope she may have an opportunity of judging America's "best," for had I only known the English people from those I saw in the underground railways, on Piccadilly, Bond, Regent, and Oxford Streets, and also in the shops, I certainly would have thought them a crude, boorish, badly bred, and badly "turned-out" lot.

But having known the English in their charming country life, I found them just the same as America's "best." Well-bred people are the same all the world over.

The Ethics of Advertising.

From The Louisville Courier-Journal.

That Tennessee physician who sued a newspaper for libel because it complimented a surgical operation he performed, thus giving the public the impression that he advertised his work and so committed a terribly unprofessional crime, may have overlooked the fact that his freak suit would advertise him all over the world. But did he?

THE TIMES'S ENGLISHWOMAN.

A Little Resentment Aroused by Her Strictures on Things American.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As one of the "set" that have come to have weekly discussions over the interesting, though somewhat exasperating, comments of the alliterative Mary Mortimer Maxwell in The Sunday Times, I object as a wife and a mother, and withal an American woman, to much of what the Englishwoman says with regard to our treatment of our children, as contrasted with the way in which we treat "himself." To begin with, from the few cases that can come under the observation of a visitor, it isn't well to generalize to any great extent. One reason why American children differ from their English cousins is that the American child, from an early age, is treated as a rational, intelligent being, whereas the British child at a corresponding age is tagging at his mother's apron strings. As to lovers—well, I guess the American girl gets all that is coming to her in flowers as well in billet doux.

But it is interesting to note in "our set," that the men—the married men, including "himself"—side mainly with Miss or Mrs. Maxwell, although "himself" cynically remarks that it takes a young woman to know all about raising a family, and he adds something about giving the experienced mother "cards and spades," whatever that may mean.

But the women of "our set" are inclined to be somewhat resentful over some of the raps from this English observer. The young men vow that she is "dead right," but, of course, their opinion doesn't count for much. However, we hope the lady will continue to furnish us with material for very interesting discussions. City Salaries and the Cost of Living.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have been watching the controversy in the newspapers lately about the question of raising the salaries of city employes. I notice with some surprise that the Board of Aldermen, also the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, seems to think that salaries should never be raised, or at least very moderately, no matter how long or faithful the service. It seems to me that the City of New York can well afford to pay fair salaries, and thereby set a good example. I will be frank and say that in many instances men are paid higher salaries than they should be, considering the work they do; but these are favorites who have a pull and should not be classed with the average city employe who has to do his bit or get out. There are also a great many in the employ of the city who are not paid in proportion to the work they do. There are cashiers in the employ of the city (Department of Finance) who handle more than $20,000,000 of the city's money, both in cash and checks, every year, who only receive $1,200 per annum, and even from this amount they have to pay a premium on a very large bond, which has the effect of making their salaries less than $1,200. There are hundreds of cases worse than the above. It must be borne in mind that living expenses are almost double what they were fifteen or twenty years ago, but salaries have remained the same.

Can It Be That Men Are Vain?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

After reading in this morning's Times the dissertation of "M." on the subject of woman's vanity, I am tempted to ask the writer (taking it for granted that he is a man) if he is ever guilty of the gross vanity of going out in the open air in low shoes himself. I may be mistaken, but it is my impression that a large percentage of the men one sees about wear low shoes all the year round. I don't know why they do it unless it is because they find it more comfortable. I never thought of attributing it to their vanity.

Did it ever occur to "M.," I wonder, or to any of his kind who delight in calling women vain, that men might sometimes, in charity, accord to the other sex some of the privileges in which they indulge themselves?

Spelling and Pronunciation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There are more objections to phonetic spelling than the limitations of the alphabet. There is not uniformity of pronunciation even among educated people, while local or sectional divergence of pronunciation will always persist. You mention Spanish, which, except for the retention of the silent "h," is a strictly phonetic language. Yet among the half educated in the Spanish-American republics there is more habitual and grotesque misspelling than in the United States.

Variations in spelling also tend to variations in pronunciation. For instance, among persons who write "program" there is a manifest tendency to say "progr'm." E. S. H.

Shakespeare as a Prophet.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The communication of your correspondent "Bard" in to-day's Times is very interesting as proving the possession by Shakespeare of the gift of prophecy. Corroborative proof on the subject is supplied by the Stratford poet himself in the sonnet beginning:

> "Not marble, nor the gilded monuments of Princes, > Shall outlive this powerful rhyme."

Whether Shakespeare actually foresaw the prevalence of appendicitis or suspected the coming of the automobile, he certainly had a correct notion as to his own merit as a poet.

Isn't It Stirring Even Now?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is with profound regret, Sir, that in this morning's issue I see it intimated by Walter Beverley Crane that he is preparing to go into action once more. He says, in the words of Pistol, that "all hell shall stir." Are we to draw the conclusion that Gen. Wood's crater campaign and the punching of Anthony Comstock in open court have failed to move the ladle, and that only Walter Beverley is able to start things going? R. WILFER.

MAKE-BELIEVE.

Let's dream, like the child in its playing;
Let's make us a sky and a sea;
Let's change the things 'round us by saying
They're things that we wish them to be;
And if there is sadness or sorrow,
Let's dream till we charm it away;
Let's learn from the children and borrow
A saying from Childhood—"Let's play."

Let's play that the world's full of beauty;
Let's play there are roses in bloom;
Let's play there is pleasure in duty
And light where we thought there was gloom;
Let's play that this heart with its sorrow
Is bidden be joyous and glad;
Let's play that we'll find on to-morrow
The joys that we never have had.

Let's play that regret with its rueing
Is banished forever and aye;
Let's play there's delight but in doing;
Let's play there are flowers by the way,
However the pathway seem dreary,
Wherever the footsteps may lead;
Let's play there's a song for the weary
If only the heart will give heed.

Let's play we have done with repining;
Let's play that our longings are still;
Let's play that the sunlight is shining
To gild the green slope of the hill;
Let's play there are birds blithely flinging
Their songs of delight to the air;
Let's play that the world's full of singing,
Let's play there is love everywhere.

THE DOVE OF PEACE AT CLUB'S LUNCHEON

Political Study Society Expected Trouble, but Had None.

A CAPSULE MENU IS READ

And a Birthday Cake with Twelve Prophetic Rings Is Cut—A New Alphabet.

The Society for Political Study celebrated its twentieth birthday yesterday with a luncheon at the Hotel Astor. As it is within a year of voting age, the club made a gala occasion of it. There were many big features. There was a birthday cake with twelve rings, which will send as many Political Study members on wedding tours this year; there was a menu in pillules and globules which the club listened to but did not eat; there was a club rhyme which accused the clubwoman of race suicide; there was one lone man present as guest and speaker, and what promised to be a big club row was healed—all at one luncheon.

The restoration of harmony was important. It had threatened an eruption at the luncheon, which would have spoiled everything. Mrs. E. Falls Brown was one of the interested parties in the club troubles. Mrs. Brown was until the recent election the club Treasurer. In some way after that she was not, and some said she resigned, and others that she wasn't elected, and every one felt unhappy about it. Then when Mrs. Winifred Judge, the President, created a precedent, so that only the two Vice Presidents of the club could sit at the honor table at the luncheon with all the club Presidents and invited guests, the little bird who tells stories about club affairs said that Mrs. Brown didn't like it one bit. It said that she said that she would go to the luncheon, that she would sit at the honor table, and that she would use force to do it if she had to.

But she didn't. That was where the club wound was healed. Mrs. Brown attended the luncheon, she sat at a small table, at a place which had been prepared for her, ate club birthday cake, beamed happily at the lighted birthday candle at her place, and harmony with a big H ruled.

The candles were the first of several surprises. They were yellow and blue, the club colors, and in pretty little souvenir candlesticks at each place. By their dim, religious light the guests entered the dining room. Pretty postcards with designs of yellow and blue and a fair maiden on each bore the names of the guests. The birthday cake, frosted in yellow and blue, came later on the bill of fare.

The cake concealed twelve beautiful rings, each set with a jewel. No one would say whether they were real stones or not, but the club Treasurer confessed that they cost $2 a dozen. That did not alter their prophetic value, and there are twelve maids, widows, or divorcées in the club now who are sure to go on a honeymoon this year.

There was a substantial bill of fare printed on the day's programme, but Mrs. Philip Carpenter gave an improved one which she suggested as a feature of the club's seventieth birthday. This meal, she said, would probably be served on the one hundredth floor of the Hotel Skyscraper, the guests arriving in airships. Here is the card:

Bouillon Capsules.
Filet of Jupiter Beef in Pillules.
Lobster Tablets.
Essence of Roman Punch,
(served in tiny perfume bottles.)
Tropical Birds,
(the size of chestnuts.)
Pellets of Compressed Salad.
Condensed North Pole Ices,
(served in thimbles.)
Compressed Coffee,
(two drops to a person.)
One minute allowed for a course.

Mrs. Belle De Rivera read a club alphabet in rhyme that covered a wide variety of subjects. In regard to the assertion that clubwomen, when averaged up, do not own a whole baby apiece, she said:

"B stands for Baby, some babblers have cried, but three-fifths of a child is the clubwoman's pride, and this is the reason for race suicide."

A hit at man was probably intended when she said:

"E stands for Eden, where Eve made a mistake; she should have left Adam hungry and divided with the snake."

Women are not so uncertain as they are painted, for:

"W stands for Woman; if more fickle than men, why is a weather vane never a hen?"

Superintendent of Schools Maxwell was the one man guest, and spoke of his effort to emancipate the coming woman.

"Every girl in the public schools today who is over 12 years old can sew," he said, "and I hope they will go further than that and learn to run a sewing machine and cut their own dresses, and thus free themselves from the most dreadful of all modern tyrants, the modern dressmaker."

WHO DISCOVERED JEROME?

Halpin Says He Didn't, but Wishes He Had.

A dozen politicians, representing almost every party and faction in this city, were in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court yesterday when James Moore, a saloon keeper of 354 Eighth Avenue, was tried before Justice Dowling on a charge of receiving stolen goods. Tammany Leader Patrick Keahon of the Seventh District was the complainant. Rugs stolen from one of his trucks had been found in the house occupied by the defendant.

William S. Devery, whose famous pump stands outside of Moore's saloon, was there as bondsman for the defendant and a witness to his good character. He was not called, however. Other politicians present and interested either in the prosecution or the defense were John J. Murphy, brother of Charles F. Murphy; former Court Clerk Thomas F. Hamilton, and William F. Halpin, former Chairman of the Republican County Committee.

Mr. Halpin was on the stand telling the court and the jury what a fine fellow Moore is when District Attorney Jerome dropped in and took a seat inside the rail. As he listened to the eulogy pronounced by the witness a broad smile spread over Mr. Jerome's features. Mr. Halpin saw it and smiled, too. At last Mr. Halpin had nothing more to say. Then Mr. Jerome chipped in:

"Moore is not a Republican, is he?"

"N-no," said Mr. Halpin. "But he's a very good fellow just the same."

"Are you not the man who discovered William M. Ivins in the last campaign?" asked Lawyer O'Hare for the defense.

"I object," cried Mr. Jerome. "I think that ground is both too old and too dangerous to dig into now."

"But you discovered Mr. Jerome in that campaign?" insisted Mr. O'Hare.

"I wish I had," rejoined Mr. Halpin. "I would have been very glad to discover such a diamond."

Mr. Jerome fled. The case will go on to-day.

$45,000 TO HELP JAPANESE.

M. Sato Thanks America and Says Famine Is Relieved.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The American National Red Cross yesterday sent to the Japanese Red Cross an additional contribution of $5,000. This makes $45,000 contributed by the American public for famine relief.

CHICAGO, March 13.—N. Sato, First Secretary of the Japanese Legation at St. Petersburg, stopped at Chicago yesterday on his way to Russia. He said that the famine was being rapidly relieved.

"We wish to express to the American people our gratitude for generous contributions," said Mr. Sato. "The cause of the famine was the enormous quantity of rain which fell last season. Floods ruined the rice crop."

CHARLES W. CLARK'S RECITAL.

The Chicago Baritone Sings in Mendelssohn Hall.

Charles W. Clark, baritone, from Chicago, and more recently from Europe, who has been heard once in New York lately, at the performance of the Oratorio Society, gave a song recital yesterday afternoon in Mendelssohn Hall that was attended by a numerous audience. His performance there gave a better understanding of the success he has had in his recent European experiences than was possible from his singing of the music that fell to his lot in "Judas Maccabaeus."

His programme contained songs of varied and contrasted styles, in which the older French operatic style of Grétry was represented by two interesting specimens, "Songe Enchanteur" and "Laisse en Paix," and the contemporary French song by Saint-Saëns, "La Cloche," Reynaldo Hahn's "L'Heure Exquise," and Bernberg's "Aime Moi." There was a group of six songs by Brahms, and a miscellaneous selection by composers more or less well known, in which the more familiar names were those of Victor Harris and Cornelius.

Mr. Clark's voice, as was observed at the oratorio performance, is not in itself of great beauty or richness, nor of homogeneous quality throughout its range; and its range is such as to raise some questions as to its classification as a baritone. The more important matter is that Mr. Clark has a genuine artistic feeling for singing of the kind demanded of him by this programme, a feeling for characterization, for the differentiation of style and sentiment.

There is, indeed, at times a certain excess of sentiment in his conception, which he exaggerates by his frequent use of a thin head tone. This quality of tone was much in evidence in Hahn's song and in Brahms's exquisite little "Sandmännchen," which latter he took in that way throughout, and in a number of others to a lesser degree. His phrasing is skillful and artistic and his enunciation excellent.

The two songs by Grétry were beautifully sung, with taste and an appreciation of the significance behind their somewhat archaic utterance. Such expressiveness as he put into Saint-Saens's "La Cloche" makes that composition interesting. The songs by Brahms he sang very well indeed. Most notable was the powerful "Verrath," with its fiercely tragic middle section; but quite as remarkable was his singing of "O Liebliche Wangen," in which he caught the note of ecstasy and exaltation, and of "Die Mainacht," in which he sustained and phrased the melody with a fine skill. Mr. Clark's recital was one of the enjoyable episodes of the crowded musical season.

THE "RING" CYCLE ENDED.

"Goetterdaemmerung" Given at the Metropolitan Opera House Last Evening.

The last week of the season also saw the completion of the second cycle of "Der Ring des Nibelungen." There was a large audience last evening to witness the performance of "Götterdämmerung." It was a creditable performance, a worthy close to a "Ring" cycle that has been carried through with some much-needed improvement in the ensemble and in the general spirit of what goes on upon the stage.

The cast was the same as that which has appeared before this season in the nightly drama. Mme. Nordica was the Brünnhilde, which is one of her finest parts, one in which she rises to her highest artistic stature, potently eloquent in song, elaborately developed on the dramatic side, and if not wholly convincing, of unfailing nobility and grandeur of style. Mr. Knote's Siegfried is also an admirable impersonation; last evening he sang in his best voice, with more freedom and sonority than at some of his previous performances.

The other parts were in familiar hands. Mme. Homer was the Waltraute, Miss Weed the Gutrune, and Messrs. Blass and Mühlmann took the parts, respectively, of Hagen and Gunther. The Rhine Daughters had made progress in the charm and tunefulness of their singing since they lamented the loss of the treasure in "Das Rheingold"; last night they were represented by Miss Alten, Miss Ralph, and Mme. Homer.

Mr. Hertz conducted a fine performance of the score, in which there was dramatic life as well as abundant romance, and something less of the overpowering volume of tone than he is prone to demand of his forces. The effects of the stage were smoothly carried out.

ACTORS SEE HITCHCOCK.

A Big Audience of Stage Folk at His Professional Matinee.

The professional matinée of "The Galloper" drew a big audience of stage people to the Garden Theatre yesterday afternoon to see Raymond Hitchcock in Richard Harding Davis's comedy of war correspondents.

Mr. Hitchcock had his performance begin at 12:30. It was all over at 3. The actor did this partly to be "original" and partly to give Ethel Barrymore, who came over from Philadelphia to see the play, time to get back for her own evening performance of "Alice Sit by the Fire," in the Quaker city.

Miss Barrymore watched "The Galloper" from the wings. Among other theatrical folks present were Maude Adams, Blanche Bates, Fritzi Scheff, Ethel Levy, Blanche Walsh, Amelia Bingham, Alice Fisher, Frank Keenan, Francis Wilson, and most of the "College Widow" "Prince of Pilsen" companies.

At the end of the second act the audience clamored for a speech. Mr. Hitchcock, in returning thanks, said that although this was his first professional matinée, he should take care in future to give them as often as he could get anybody to come.

T. Daniel Frawley, who plays Capt. O'Malley, was called to Washington before the matinée by the illness of his mother. George Marion, who is general stage director for Henry W. Savage, stepped into the breach and played the part at short notice.

Medicos to See a Show.

Students from the New York University and Bellevue Medical College have engaged the entire orchestra and two boxes at the Princess Theatre, where "Brown at Harvard" is playing, for Friday night. Several members of the Faculty will attend also. A promenade along Broadway will follow.

To Star Orrin Johnson.

Orrin Johnson signed a five years' contract yesterday with Edward A. Braden, Harry E. Converse, and Mason Peters, by which these managers agreed to star Mr. Johnson in several plays. The first production, which will be made within a few weeks, will be a drama by Thomas W. Broadhurst, called "The Plainsman."

Lien on Schwab's House Satisfied.

The mechanic's lien in the sum of $30,000, filed on Feb. 2 by Maurice Herbert against the residence of Charles M. Schwab at Riverside Drive and Seventy-third Street, was satisfied yesterday. Mr. Herbert was the architect of the Schwab mansion.

Miss Morgenthau Engaged.

The engagement is announced of Miss Adele Morgenthau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maximilian Morgenthau of 248 West 103d Street, to James Frank. They will be at home to their friends next Sunday, March 18.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Elsie Janis was still out of the cast of "The Vanderbilt Cup" at the Broadway Theatre last evening. The management announced, however, that she would appear at this afternoon's performance.

Margaret Wycherly will soon be seen in vaudeville under the management of F. F. Proctor. She will appear at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre on April 16 in a one-act drama by Bayard Veiller, entitled "In Self-Defense." In the piece Miss Wycherly will play seven different characters.

NEW CASH RULE WORRIES WHITTIER HALL GIRLS

Management Discourages the Jam and Soda Orgies.

CURFEW FOR 'SPOONHOLDERS'

Why Girls in College Apartment House Are All Members of Very Large Families.

At Whittier Hall, the college girls' apartment house at 120th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, "Cash down; nothing hung up," is the rule nowadays. It is expected to have the effect of curtailing those genial little "feasts" that girls at boarding schools have delighted in ever since jam sandwiches were invented.

Not only must the rent be paid in advance, but those most necessary articles known as "sundries" can no longer be put on the monthly bills. One of the girls thus stated the situation yesterday:

"Now, of course, you'll think it silly of us, but then you don't know how much fun those feasts in our rooms used to be. Suppose two or three girls get together or some visitors drop in on a rainy day. Why, all we had to do was to send downstairs for some cakes, crackers, strawberry jam, or cheese, or something nice like that, and we could charge the whole business.

"Drinks? Oh, my, yes. I always took pineapple, but some of the girls used to mix theirs. My roommate, for instance, never ordered anything but lemon and chocolate. Oh! we'd have a perfectly lovely time!

"But look what this horrid rule has done! Just when we are thinking least about it we have to worry over money. We have to pay on the spot or go without it, and, of course, we never have any money with us, or know anything about it anyway. The result is, we call the feast off. I don't mind about the rent so much, but it is nice to charge these little things. However, no one is kicking. I suppose its our own fault for running up too large bills."

This is how the change at the hall came about, according to Mrs. C. H. Farnsworth, the head of the establishment:

"For years we have allowed the girls to charge things, eatables, and so on, and they were not obliged to pay their rent in advance. We have been carrying some pretty large accounts, but did not regard them as in any sense bad debts. When the new Board of Directors of the hall came in this year they decided to adopt stricter regulations.

"Accordingly rents must now be paid on the first of the month in advance, and no more charging of 'sundries' is permitted. The new rule has been in effect six weeks, and seems to work all right."

It may be remarked in passing that Whittier Hall is carefully conducted. In the first place, no young woman is able to get a room there until she has furnished a long list of satisfactory references.

And when she once gets inside, the Barnard or Teachers College student, whichever she may be, must live up to these references. "Mother" Daniels sees to that. It is her painful duty to see that the "spoonholders" are vacant at 10:30 sharp every night.

"Spoonholders" are those little nooks and corners constructed by the sentimental architect in which it is possible for a girl to discuss Browning with her "brother" or "cousin." For all male visitors must be relatives. All the girls are members of large families. "Mother" Daniels draws the line at ten brothers, but as many as a dozen cousins have been permitted.

MORE GRUBER WITTICISMS.

Also a Coler-Metz Truce at a Crowded Thirteen Dinner.

The Thirteen Club—200 of them—had a dinner last night in the Port Arthur restaurant in Chinatown. By some mistake a lot who subscribed for the dinner couldn't find room inside, and the disappointed went away, talking a lot about resigning. They said it wasn't a Thirteen but a Twenty-three dinner.

Bird S. Coler was the guest of honor. Other guests were Controller Metz, who had spent most of his day in a duel of words with Mr. Coler, and Abraham Gruber. Mr. Coler and Mr. Metz called a truce for the dinner. They both said 13 was a lucky number. Two of the things Mr. Gruber said are:

"When Confucius met Moses on the Mount of Ararat he advised him if he was going into politics to take a high moral ground and everything else that wasn't nailed down. The modern reformer is trying to follow out that advice.

"Life insurance has been to the Christian what fire insurance has been to my people. [Mr. Gruber is a Jew.] There is this difference: My people first fired and then took the money. But the Christians first took the money and then they were fired."

JEROME ALEXANDRE WED.

Princeton Freshman's Bride a Stenographer—He Will Inherit $1,000,000.

Friends of Jerome Alexandre, son of the late James Joseph Alexandre, who died several years ago, leaving an estate of more than $3,000,000, were surprised yesterday when announcement was made of his marriage last week to Miss Violet Adelaide Oakley, a stenographer in the employ of his stepfather.

The marriage was performed last Thursday afternoon by the Rev. Dr. Charles L. Goodell, pastor of the Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church, at 129th Street and Seventh Avenue. Mr. Alexandre, who is only 20 and a Princeton freshman, came to this city and met Miss Oakley, who is two years his senior, and the young couple, accompanied by two witnesses, went to the residence of Dr. Goodell in West 130th Street in an automobile.

Young Alexandre had not taken any of his friends into his confidence, and the first his mother and his stepfather Paul Bonner, who is the head of the firm of Bonner & Barnewall, in Cortlandt Street, knew of the marriage they learned from his own lips the day after he had been wed.

"It is perfectly true that Jerome is married," said Mrs. Bonner last evening at her country home, Nirvana, near Stamford, Conn. "Why he should not have told us first I don't know. There was no occasion for keeping it secret, but he is an impulsive boy, and perhaps he thought it would be more romantic.

"I'm taking a mother's interest in the young couple, of course, and I have invited them to come out and live with us. I have never met Miss Oakley, but I understand she is a very sweet girl, and I will be glad to receive her. My husband knows her, of course. He has no objection to the marriage, and I have none, except that I should have wished that Jerome had been married in a somewhat different way."

Mrs. Bonner said she hoped it would be possible for her son to continue his studies at the university and, after the four years' course, travel and then enter business, as his original plans had been. The bridegroom will be a wealthy man when he comes of age. Under his father's will he received one-third of the estate, while his mother and sister Leona each inherited a third.

The mother of young Alexandre married her present husband three years ago. He is the son of David Bonner, the well-known horseman.

MANY SEE AMATEUR PLAY.

"Six to One" and Other Pieces Given at the Berkeley Lyceum.

The benefit by amateurs that was held last night at the Berkeley Lyceum filled the house. First on the programme was "Six to One: or, the Scapegrace," for which the amateurs were coached by Warner Oland. Henry Bartol was the scapegrace nephew of Mrs. Pomeroy Dodge of Newport, played by Mrs. William Massena Benjamin. The parts of her five nieces from Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, and France were played by the Misses Margaret Gardiner, Evelyn King, G. Mabry Parks, Jessica Thompson, and Henrietta King. This was followed by a butterfly dance by Miss Angelica Schuyler Church. It was vigorously encored.

Then followed Austin Dobson's "Proverbs in Porcelain," a series of artistic settings and costumes for the pretty girls taking part. The Misses Virginia Duane and Alice Fellowes were Ninette and Ninon in "The Secrets of the Heart"; Miss Helena V. R. Clarkson and Robert C. Talmadge were the countess and the Baron, in "The Ballad a la Mode"; the Misses Dorothy and Elizabeth Van Dusen and Hinckley Arnold appeared in "The Cap That Fits," and Mrs. Thornton Chard and Mr. Burnham were Babette and Monsieur Vieuxbois in "Good Night, Babette."

Next came the Village Kermesse, including Breton peasant songs, by Mrs. Francis L. Pruyn, an eccentric dance by Henry Seymour Jewett, and a French-Canadian monologue by Mrs. Wilson Shannon Dunn. The last number was a tarantelle danced by the Misses Rosalie G. Jones, Alice Riggs Hunt, Angelica Schuyler Church, and the Messrs. Robert Hewlett, Charles Stout, and Southwaite. The village peasants were the Misses Cornelia Landon, Eleanor Townsend, Marion Bull, Martha Montgomery, Gertrude Slocum, Eleanor Duane, and Mary Ostrander.

After the performance Miss Laura J. Edwards gave a supper at her residence in Forty-sixth Street for those taking part in the performance.

THE GRATEFUL TICKET MAN.

Why He Was Pleased with the Passenger Who Wanted Pennies.

"Give me five pennies in change, please," said a man buying a ticket in the Times Square Subway.

The ticket seller gasped.

"Do you really want pennies?" he inquired.

"Yes; to buy newspapers and chewing gum," was the reply.

"I wish there were more like you," said the ticket seller. "If I give pennies in change to men they take it as a direct insult. It isn't so bad with women—all money looks alike to them—but with men, why, they glare at me and abuse me when I give them pennies. One of them got so mad because I gave him five red ones the other day that he left the station, went to the surface, got 25 cents in pennies and returned, pushing them at me and demanding five tickets.

"After all," sighed the ticket seller, "despite all this talk of women being aggravating to street car employes, the men are worse. They seem to want the earth for a nickel, and even when a block in the Subway shows them what a convenience this mode of travel is and how they would miss it, they seldom admit that they get anything at all worth their nickel."

TIMOTHY DONOVAN DEAD.

He Was Noted as a Realty Operator and Volunteer Fireman.

Timothy Donovan, a veteran real estate operator and one of the oldest and best known members of the Exempt Firemen's Association of this city, died on Monday at his residence, 895 West End Avenue, after three days' illness. Pneumonia was the cause of death. He was born in the old Fourth Ward seventy-two years ago, and after being graduated from the public schools embarked in the real estate business. His love for running to fires led him to assist in the organization of No. 16 Hose, and he was elected its Foreman at the age of eighteen. While acting in this capacity he made several brave rescues. Continuing in the real estate business he met with success and was especially proud of the fact that he had not missed a day at either the old or new Real Estate Exchange for fifty years.

After the Volunteer Fire Department went out of existence he became Treasurer of the Exempt Firemen's Association, a position which he held for many years. A widow and one son survive him. Funeral services will be held Thursday morning in the Church of the Ascension, 107th Street and Broadway. The body will be placed in the family mausoleum in Calvary Cemetery.

Mr. Donovan's death occasioned many expressions of regret in real estate circles. He was the last survivor of the group known as the "old-time operators," men who were active speculators in real estate between thirty and forty years ago, among whom were James F. Ruggles, William Lalor, William H. Raynor, and John D. Phillips, grandfather of Lewis Phillips of the present firm of L. J. Phillips & Co.

Mr. Donovan seldom figured in any very large single purchases, but was constantly engaged in "turning over" at a profit many small parcels. That he amassed a large fortune is generally admitted, but estimates as to its size, even among those who knew him best, vary all the way from $500,000 to $2,000,000 or $3,000,000.

JACOB A. JACOBS DEAD.

Frank, the Times Square Fruiterer, Mourns His Silent Partner.

Frank, in the fruit and candy shop in Times Square, East, whom nobody knows by any other name, lost his silent partner yesterday. The partner over whom Frank grieves was Jacob A. Jacobs, a nephew of the founder of the Lewisohn estate.

All of Mr. Jacobs's life had been spent in Broadway in the neighborhood of Forty-second Street and he was known to everybody in business in that section. A year ago he took an interest in Frank's business just to have something to occupy him. Yesterday morning he died of heart disease and when his friends dropped into Frank's he told them what had happened.

The body of Mr. Jocobs, who was unmarried, was turned over by the Coroner to his brother Arthur, a broker. Arrangements for the funeral will be made later.

MARCELLE THE MAD

By SETH COOK COMSTOCK

This is the story of a female Robin Hood in the time of Louis XI and Charles the Bold. The dainty heroine in breeches and doublet robs the rich and feeds the poor at the head of her rough band, defying the power of the Duke of Burgundy. She makes the hero one of her prisoners. The novel is full of exciting battles, and the climax is a tremendous siege. Two love stories run side by side throughout the book.

CONRIED DIDN'T BREAK SUNDAY THEATRE LAWS

Verdi's Requiem Mass All Right, Says Special Sessions.

COURT TELLS WHAT'S BARRED

Tragedy, Comedy, Opera, Ballet, Farce, Minstrelsy, Dancing, and Boxing Among the Forbidden Things.

Verdi's Requiem Mass, as sung at the Metropolitan Opera House, was declared yesterday by Judges Deuel, Olmsted, and McKean in the Court of Special Sessions to be no "interruption of the repose and religious liberty of the community." Neither can it be included in the performances forbidden on the first day of the week by the Penal Code and city charter. So the case was dismissed, and Herr Conried was released from the custody of his counsel, ex-Judge Dittenhoefer.

An opinion per curiam was handed down, which is of special importance, as it will be binding on the Magistrates in the Wallach's Theatre and Grand Opera House cases, now pending. It acquits Mr. Conried on the ground that the requiem mass cannot be considered one of the entertainments of the stage that are forbidden on the first day of the week. The forbidden things are "tragedy, comedy, opera, ballet, farce, negro minstrelsy, negro or other dancing, boxing with or without gloves, sparring contests, trials of strength, or any part or parts therein, or a circus, equestrian or dramatic performance or exercise, or exercise of jugglers, acrobats, club performance, or rope dancers."

It was a plain, straightforward concert that Mr. Conried gave, and as such was legal. But it is added that future performances, irrespective of the names given them by the managers, will be judged by what takes place.

As for the charge that Mr. Conried had broken the law against Sabbath toil, as far as the testimony went everybody worked but Conried, and there was not the slightest evidence before the court that the defendant did anything on Sunday but authorize the concert.

UNION COUNTY VETERAN DEAD.

He Was Historian, Weather Prophet, Blacksmith, and Constable.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., March 13.—Amos Moffett, for forty years court constable of Union County and its oldest citizen, died here to-day. He was 85 years old. Mr. Moffett was the first constable Union County had. He was born in Somerset County in 1820 and removed to Scotch Plains in 1835, where he learned the blacksmith's trade with his brother. Afterward he managed the business himself for many years.

He was the recognized historian of Union County, and took a prominent part in advocating its formation, some forty-five years ago. At that time Essex County embraced what is now the County of Union. He was also regarded as a weather oracle, prophesying from corn husks, bark on trees, and the like.

He attended regularly every session of the County Court since that tribunal was established. Only two weeks ago he went to Elizabeth to be sworn in as an officer for the April term of court. His death was due to a complication of diseases.

He leaves two brothers and one sister and several great great-grandchildren.

THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Rise; Call Money Rates, 4@4½ Per Cent.

Foreign Exchange Rises on Easier Money Conditions—Copper Metal Up.

In the fore part of yesterday's Stock Exchange session trading was on a very limited scale, and prices were inclined to sag, influenced by pressure from professional traders and by limited selling by those who were disposed to accept as of serious consequence upon the operations of large corporations the Supreme Court's decision in the Paper and Tobacco "Trust" cases. A sharp advance in demand sterling, rendering improbable at the moment a continuation of the gold import movement, was not without effect upon speculative sentiment. Although American securities were quoted higher there before the opening, there was no stimulus through purchases here for London account, the London market being somewhat depressed, like those of Paris and Berlin, upon unsubstantiated rumors of another hitch in the Moroccan negotiations. In this period of the trading Reading fell sharply, although its decline failed rather signally to breed weakness in other quarters of the market. Similarly prices were unaffected by the violent breaks in the Chicago Union Traction shares on a fuller understanding of the tenor of the unfavorable decision of the Supreme Court on Monday. From noon on to the close activity increased steadily, and as the volume of trading enlarged prices kept pace, closing at or near the top figures, with gains running from 1 to 2 points or more in all active sections of the list. Foremost in this movement were Reading, which replaced its earlier loss by a substantial gain, and the junior Vanderbilt stocks, including Nickel Plate, which rose 4½ points, and which naturally enough caused an advance of 1⅝ points in New York Central, the only explanation forthcoming consisting of a renewal of the various reports regarding a consolidation of these junior properties. In the railroad list St. Paul and Union Pacific were also conspicuous, while among the industrials Amalgamated Copper rose 1⅛ points, the advance coming in connection with the announcement of a small increase in the price of copper metal, while American Cotton Oil and Virginia-Carolina Chemical shares moved forward vigorously as a result of well-authenticated reports regarding the heavy sales of fertilizers now being made by these companies in the South.

There was no news up to the close of business from the miners' conference at Indianapolis, although so far as the bituminous situation is concerned Wall Street, not without reason, is disposed to scout reports of a strike. A matter of much importance, whose full significance was not completely understood before the close of yesterday's market, was the announcement from St. Louis that at the annual meeting in that city of the stockholders of the Missouri Pacific Railway two representatives of a powerful financial interest had resigned from the Board Directors. It is understood that this action follows a substantial diminution of the stockholdings of this interest in this Gould property, and knowledge of this fact cannot fail to be of interest to Wall Street, which has closely followed the growing isolation of the Gould properties owing to their Pacific Coast extension plans. The advance in foreign exchange rates yesterday was traceable in large measure to the easier conditions in the money market. The bulk of the day's loans on call was made at a lower rate than has obtained in some time, while for short periods of sixty to ninety days loans were made at 5 per cent., although in a majority of cases the rates secured were 5¼ per cent. Appreciation in these rates might naturally be reflected in renewed declines in foreign exchange, and gold imports would be again within the realm of possibilities. In their transactions with the Sub-Treasury since Friday the banks have lost $301,000, a sum nearly $1,600,000 less than the drain sustained in the same period a week ago.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 13.—La Salle Street to-day contemplated a fiasco in the speculation in local traction stocks. Almost every trader or investor who had anything to do with the securities of the several companies yesterday this morning found himself loaded up with stocks and bonds for which there was no practical market save at considerable sacrifices. The result was that in order to prevent a complete collapse of the price structure trading was held to a minimum with the exception of Chicago Union Traction issues.

In several instances local brokers had been informing their patrons that the best legal talent of the city staked its reputation on an outcome favorable to the corporations. These brokers had orders on the floor of the local Exchange the instant the erroneous messages came into the Street.

As a whole the amount of money involved in the commitments made on the court findings was not great, but from the flood of messages which came into La Salle Street there appeared to be a great many perplexed and very angry people muddled over the traction situation.

On the local Exchange business was not active, but prices were extremely flighty. Union Traction common broke to 7½, less than 300 shares going before noon. City Railway, for which the Field-Mitchell-Morgan syndicate paid 200 for control, sold down to 170 ex dividend. North Chicago, which closed yesterday at 85, sold in the amount of 100 shares before noon at 57. West Chicago, which ran up to 60 yesterday and closed at 55, sold at 38 and 40. Up to noon there were no sales in the bonds, for the fact that bid prices were extravagantly compared with recent sales. West Chicago Consolidated 5 per cents were 80 bid early, and West Chicago first mortgages, which sold yesterday at par, were 95 bid. Chicago Consolidated Traction 4½ per cents were at 45 bid and 60 asked.

New York exchange at par. Money, 5@6 per cent. The list:

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, March 13.—Money was in good demand in the market to-day, and supplies were scarce. Discounts were firm on the monetary outlook, chiefly in view of the purchase of bar gold for New York. But it is not anticipated that the demand will be serious, though the supplies are insufficient.

Trading on the Stock Exchange generally was dull. Consols were weak, owing to lack of support and the uncertainty regarding the situation at Algeciras.

Americans opened flat. The movements were slight and irregular. Some stocks were rather above parity, but business was inactive. The market eased later and closed dull.

Foreigners were weak, but recovered at the close. Boston copper securities were weak, owing to New York selling.

Kaffirs were heavy on the attitude of Paris.

Japanese Imperial 6s of 1904 were quoted at 104⅛.

Bar silver steady at 29 3-16d per ounce.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 15½; Lisbon, 4.50.

LIVERPOOL, March 13.—On and after Saturday, March 31, the Cotton Exchange here will close at 12:30 P. M. Saturday.

CONSOLIDATED GAS TO WAIT.

No Cut in Dividends Until 80-Cent Bill Is Law.

It was intimated yesterday that any steps which the Consolidated Gas Company may decide to take in connection with the reduction of the price of gas would be postponed until the reduction bill had been acted on by the Mayor and the Governor. The report that the reduction in the price of gas would result in a curtailment of the company's dividends was credited in Wall Street, owing to the fact that recent estimates of the effect of the eighty-cent gas rate on earnings indicated that all the company's surplus earnings above the 8 per cent. which is being paid on the stock would be wiped out.

Apart from the possibility of a greatly increased output at the lower price, which would serve to increase the company's earnings, it would be necessary to reduce dividends to add anything at all to reserve account.

CHICAGO TRACTION SLUMPS.

The Tumble Due to the United States Supreme Court's Decision.

Chicago Union Traction, preferred, broke 16 points yesterday and the common 4¼ points. There were about 23,000 shares of the common traded in, but less than 7,000 shares of the preferred were sold on the decline from 46 to 30.

The reason for these sharp declines was the adverse decision handed down by the Supreme Court on Monday. The first advices received in Wall Street from Washington on that day said that the decision was in favor of the company and immediately the stock rose. Later in the day it developed that the first accounts of the decision were erroneous, and that, as a matter of fact, the Supreme Court had sustained the contentions of the City of Chicago.

The realization of the effect of the decision was responsible for the weakness of the stock yesterday.

COPPER MARKET REPORTS.

Demands for copper metal, according to trade advices, are growing daily, and it is feared will put the price to still higher levels, despite the fact that producers are willing enough to keep it at present figures. European stocks are known to be down to the lowest ebb in years, and there is none to spare here, with the products of most of the American mines sold for months ahead. It has been estimated that 2,000 tons of the copper sold in the European markets last week were from China, Australia, and Japan, but these sources of supply can only serve as a stop-gap for present demands.

Spot copper closed in London yesterday at £79 17s 6d, a recession of 2s 6d from Monday's close; futures closed at £78 2s 6d, also 2s 6d below Monday's last.

The closing prices of copper and other metals on the New York Metal Exchange yesterday compare as follows with those of the preceding day:

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

Coal Strike Prospects Have Not Yet Increased Demand for Pig.

The prospect of a coal strike is regarded by pig-iron producers as a bullish factor in the market, but as yet no increase in the demand for pig iron has been noted. Sales continue small, and the inquiries are practically confined to small lots for immediate delivery.

In the Middle West the basic iron situation has been improved on reports that the Cambria Steel Company will soon take 25,000 tons, and the International Steam Pump Company is in the market for 1,000 tons, foundry grade. The Pennsylvania Railroad's experimental order of 3,000 tons of open hearth steel rails has given so much satisfaction that the road is said to be figuring on placing an order for 45,000 tons more.

The Green Bay, Oshkosh, Madison & Southwestern has booked orders for 6,000 tons of steel rails, for the Fort Dodge & Des Moines for 4,000 tons, and another order placed by a construction company for 2,000 tons, making 15,000 tons booked since last Wednesday.

BLAMES A CAR SHORTAGE.

President Says It Cut Short Sloss-Sheffield Profits.

In his annual report to the stockholders of the Sloss-Sheffield Iron and Steel Company President J. C. Maben complains of the shortage of cars in the Birmingham district, and to this attributes a considerable loss of profits which the large production and the high average price of iron would otherwise have brought. The year's surplus, after all charges, depreciation, &c., have been paid, is $1,205,070, against $483,637 for the year before. After the payment of all dividends, the net surplus was $361,079, compared with $14,367 in the previous year, when no dividend was paid on the common stock.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The market has been behaving this week in its best traditional manner. A violent recovery in prices on Thursday and Friday of last week, chiefly the result of an oversold condition, has been followed by dullness. Spasms of weakness have alternated with fits of strength as the weight of professional activity has shifted from one side to the other and back again. On Monday prices were disposed to sag slowly; yesterday the tendency was reversed. The market may be supposed to have found its equilibrium. There is no assurance that it will not be misplaced again to-day or to-morrow, but barring something now unforeseen which would start a fresh wave of liquidation, prices ought not to return of their own weight to the low prices of last Monday or Tuesday. Yesterday's market, on the whole, presented a somewhat more encouraging appearance. The aggressive buying at first was confined to a few special stocks, like Brooklyn Rapid Transit, American Smelting, "Nickel Plate," Sloss-Sheffield, and Virginia-Carolina Chemical, none of which has the quality of convincing leadership. Between 1 and 2 o'clock the general list became very strong on small transactions, lots of 100 to 500 shares predominating, and in the last hour, on an increased volume of trading, the general strength became more pronounced under the leadership of such stocks as Union Pacific, United States Steel common, and Amalgamated Copper. It would greatly stimulate the general market for Union Pacific and the United States Steel shares to be turned aggressively to the bull side.

⁂

The London Statist thinks money will become cheap again in New York after the 1st of April, and opines that "After a while, therefore, there is likely to be another upward movement in the American market, always assuming that there is not a [coal] strike."

⁂

If H. C. Frick does one-tenth the buying and selling attributed to him what a ubiquitous sort of person Mr. Frick must be in the stock market!

⁂

"You had a paragraph the other morning about the Venezuelan message in '95, and how Woodlock, Dow, and I disagreed as to its probable effect upon the stock market," said Ed. Jones yesterday. "The message was released at 1 o'clock, and, as Woodlock says, it was twenty minutes or more before the market paid it the slightest compliment. Prices declined rather sharply before the closing that day, but it was on the day following that we had the panic. I happened to be with Keene immediately after the message was published. He was long of a big line of stocks, which he promptly sold out, and still he did not entirely agree with me as to the calamitous possibilities of the matter. In the last hour of that day's session he said to me: 'There, you see, the market's down only about 2 per cent., and that is due to my own selling. Nobody else is scared.' I replied: 'Wait until the news is paraded in the headlines of the newspapers to-morrow morning, here and abroad, and then people will be scared enough.' The panic started in London. St. Paul, if I remember rightly, was quoted back at a decline of 17 points. Things went all apart here, and some who had bought stocks from Mr. Keene the day before begged to be let off on their contracts."

⁂

The United States Supreme Court's decision affecting the relations between the municipality of Chicago and the Chicago Union Traction Company, fragments of which were read in Wall Street on Monday afternoon, was at first misunderstood to favor the traction interests. The discovery over night of its opposite import caused a heavy selling movement in Union Traction shares immediately at the opening of the market yesterday. The common stock declined more than 4 points, to 7¼, and the preferred stock 16 points, to 30. The decision evidently took a good many people painfully by surprise. There had been rumors for several weeks that it would favor the traction interests. The selling yesterday came principally from Western sources. There has not been any large local speculation in Chicago Union Traction shares.

⁂

Commission houses having extensive outside connections have been cutting out some of their wires. Business has fallen off so in the last few weeks that the maintenance of connections which in January were very profitable has become burdensome, and there is now a disposition on the part of the houses to retrench. Retrenchment, by the way, is a word that has not been heard in Wall Street for about two years. This does not argue any great confidence on the part of brokers in the traditional "Spring rise." There may be a "Spring rise" for all that. It is unsafe to go on record with predictions of continued dullness in the stock market. The existing dullness is not confined to the stock market. Speculation is at a low ebb also in cotton and grain. It is the first time in several years that these three markets have all been flat and unprofitable at a time. The public has been unfortunate in its grain and cotton speculations, perhaps more so than in its stock speculations. It has been very bullish on both staples; both have been declining. Public interest has now gone out of them.

⁂

It is evident that the floating supply of Reading is no longer concentrated in a few highly speculative quarters. For that reason the stock is not the menace to the general market that it was between 150 and 160, supported at an artificial valuation with an obstinacy not often exceeded in manipulative tactics. There is now a free and unrestricted market for the stock, the floating supply having been increased by pool liquidation, and while people are revising their ideas of its value the stock itself is finding its natural level. There is evidence of a bear campaign, begun at higher prices and still in progress, but that is the logical and inevitable result of an opportunity. The stock was carried altogether too high by means which exposed it to general criticism, and the history of such things tends to show that once the bull crowd has lost control of the situation the stock, on its decline, will go too low. 'It is not easy to determine what Reading is worth. It is a 4 per cent. stock only. A year ago to-day it was selling under par. It has just been placed on a 3 per cent. basis, and an increase of the rate to 4 per cent. had been promised. Over and above its value as a 4 per cent. investment security Reading doubtless has an immense potential value, estimates of which, however, are bound to vary greatly. Because the stock has been vulnerable in a speculative sense it has had to bear more than its share of the selling influenced by fears of a coal strike. A speculator who wants to sell something on strike news looks over the coaler list and says: "There is Reading, a 4 per cent. stock, selling higher than anything else in its group. I'll sell that."

⁂

Persons who have been right on each of the principal swings in Amalgamated Copper from around 80 are as bullish on the stock now as they were bearish on it at 118 a few weeks ago. They bought it heavily below 105 on the break to par, and were anxious to follow it down further, but it stopped at par, and has since had a recovery of more than 8 points. It was very strong yesterday. While this buying below 105 was in progress the last of the large vulnerable bull accounts, it is said, were liquidated. The market position of the stock is believed by its friends to be stronger than at any previous time this year.

⁂

Wall Street evidently has become calloused to corporation baiting, as well as to investigations, threats to investigate, &c. Scant attention was paid yesterday to the United States Supreme Court's decision defining the rights of a corporation as distinct from those of an individual, in which decision it was held that, while the individual may stand upon his rights as a citizen, the corporation is a creature of the State. If the market were sensitive to shocks of this kind that decision might have aroused a host of misgivings. Last week a movement against the Sugar Trust, based apparently upon formidable evidence, was started with a great flourish, but Sugar stock was unmoved. If anybody had wanted to sell it short he would have been restrained by the narrowness of the trading. Resolutions in Congress and State Legislatures to investigate this or that property have ceased to be followed by bear selling of the stocks concerned, for the very simple reason that traders have found it doesn't pay to sell stocks short on news of that kind.

⁂

The Guggenheims' manipulation of American Smelting and National Lead, more especially of American Smelting, has been very shrewd and doubtless profitable. Since American Smelting was established above 150, it seems to have been submitted to a milking process. The inside coterie, controlling its movements, have evidently been moving it up and down at the expense of the trading element generally.

⁂

Some of the people who have been trying off and on for the last two years to bull Missouri Pacific may feel a little foolish when they realize that they were helping to make a market on which the Rockefeller contingent steadily unloaded. There is at the same time an explanation of the unwillingness of the Gould crowd to bull the stock while such liquidation was in progress.

⁂

In some very good quarters there is a more cheerful feeling respecting the immediate future of the stock market, but the opinion is that the improvement ought to be slow until money market conditions are more favorable to an active speculation. Several very prominent operators have turned tentatively to the bull side. Banking houses are a little more optimistic in their utterances. What every bull in Wall Street seems to be expecting is a better market in April. Premature activity on the bull side would doubtless be discouraged.

PENNSYLVANIA ROAD PLANS.

Stockholders Vote for Acquisition of Additional Lines.

PHILADELPHIA, March 13.—The principal business transacted to-day at the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Pennsylvania Railroad was the adoption of a resolution authorizing the acquisition of additional lines. For this purpose the Directors were authorized to issue from time to time their remaining capital stock not required by present outstanding convertible bonds. The issuable capital stock amounts to $18,000,000.

The roads to be acquired are the Southwest Pennsylvania Railway which extends through the coke region from Greensburg to Connellsville and Uniontown; the York Haven and Rowenna Railroad, a link in the freight line from York Haven to Glenloch, and the Allegheny Valley Railway, forming a connection between the main line at Pittsburg and the Erie Railroad at Driftwood.

A resolution was adopted appointing a committee of seven stockholders to nominate four Directors to be voted for at the annual election on March 27, to fill the vacancies on the board that will then occur.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 13.—There was a firmer tone to the local market, the only notable exception being Philadelphia Rapid Transit, which was under pressure more or less all day. Cambria Steel on the other hand, advanced sharply under New York buying. New York sold United States Steel Common in this market, but bought and advanced Reading. Lehigh Valley rose in sympathy with the latter. Philadelphia Electric was in better demand than for some time past.

The belief is growing here that its alleged rival, the Commonwealth Electric Company, will not be able to make satisfactory terms with Mayor Weaver.

STOCK EXCHANGE NOMINEES.

President Pomroy and Treasurer Gilley Named to Succeed Themselves.

President H. K. Pomroy of the Stock Exchange and Treasurer F. W. Gilley, whose terms expire this year, have been renominated. The annual election will be held May 14. Another of the retiring officials of the Exchange whose names appear on the Nominating Committee's list is William Alexander Smith, the oldest member of the Exchange, who has held for years the honorary position of Chairman of the Trustees of the Gratuity Fund. Mr. Smith is 86 years old, and has been on the roster since 1844. He has been President and Treasurer successively in his time.

The following are the nominees for the coming vacancies in the Governing Committee, to serve four years:

Bernard J. Harrison of Harrison & Smith, George I. Malcom of Malcom & Coombe, Warren B. Nash of H. I. Judson & Co., Samuel F. Streit of H. T. Carey & Co., F. K. Sturgis, George B. Post, Jr., H. G. S. Noble, R. T. H. Halsey, Stephen H. Brown, and Donald G. Geddes. The last six are renominated.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 13.—The local money market is easier. The usual table of rates, &c., follows:

Call loans, 5¼@5½ per cent. Time loans, collateral, 5¼@5½ per cent. Time loans, mercantile paper, 5¼@5½ per cent. Clearing House loans, 6 per cent. New York funds, 10c. discount. Clearings, $30,213,024. Balances, $1,908,840. Sub-Treasury debit, $209,716.

Opening prices in to-day's copper shares showed but comparatively small changes for Monday's close, but large selling orders soon came in on Boston Consolidated, and these in turn brought in stop orders, the stock declining about 3 points. Bingham also came in for a share of this realizing, declining to 39¼. United Copper and Nevada Consolidated were the features of strength, the former advancing nearly 3 points, a good portion of the buying orders apparently emanating from New York, and the latter gaining over a point.

Commission houses appeared as buyers in the last hour, and gains were made throughout, the list closing strong. Complete list of transactions follows:

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Coppers Chief Source of Curb's Activity.

United and Nevada Consolidated Continue Upward Movement—Industrials Sluggish and Neglected.

Coppers had another day of active trading on the Curb yesterday, and industrial and railroad shares were correspondingly neglected. United Copper made the best showing in weeks, selling over 20,000 shares between 69¼ and 72¼. The close was 72. Nevada Consolidated continued its upward movement, reaching a new high record at 19½. The close was 19¼, 1 point above the opening, after sales of 15,000 shares. Boston Copper sold down from 26¾ to 23⅞ on comparatively light trading. A reaction before the close lifted the price to 24½, a net loss of 2¼ points on a day of 5,100 sales.

International Salt, which had a heavy loss Monday, opened yesterday at 43, 2⅛ above Monday's close, but went down again to 42¼, closing at 42⅜, after sales of 1,200.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, March 13.—The bull movement of United Railways income bonds was revived to-day, and trading in these issues was the feature of the day. The free incomes sold up to 75, an advance of ¾, while the trust certificates were ¼ higher. The pooled stock declined ¼.

Money was reported to be easier, and there were rumors of loans having been made at 5 per cent., though the banks and trust companies are still asking from 5½ to 6 per cent.

The market closed strong and fairly active. Sales: Bonds, $116,500; stocks, 1,695 shares.

THE COMMERCIAL WORLD

WHEAT.—Bulls made a strong effort to continue Monday's late advance in the wheat market, but found weather conditions and English cables too much for them. The result was that after a brief period of firmness after the opening, the market settled down into a weak position, and sold under 84c for the May option.

The market opened weaker, had a full recovery on bull support, but reacted, and for the balance of the day was under bear control. The Paris markets were 10@20 points higher, Berlin 1@1½ marks higher, and Budapest 2 points higher. The unusually light interior movement was practically offset by small seaboard clearances. Cash wheat in New York closed rather weak, No. 2 red being quoted 83¾c, elevator, and 85½c, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 86¼c, free on board, afloat.

CORN.—The corn market kept within comparatively narrow lines all day as to prices, and was relatively steadier than wheat. In New York it closed net unchanged, but at Chicago was below the previous night. There was not much bull news in the market, and very little buying power, chiefly on account of the heaviness in wheat. Liverpool closed partly ⅛d lower, clearances were light, and Chicago receipts over the estimates and export trade limited to 6 loads. The most bullish influences were the light interior receipts, and the snow or rain in Western States. The cash market was about steady at New York, closing as follows: No. 2 corn, 50½c, elevator, and 47⅞c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 48⅞c, and No. 2 yellow, 48⅞c, free on board, afloat.

COTTON.—The cotton market was moderately active yesterday and ruled generally steadier after some early irregularity. The close was at a net advance of 7@12 points, and sales were estimated at 200,000 bales. The opening was steady at an advance of 5 points on near months, which were influenced by cables, while the later months ranged down to net unchanged, and the whole list sold off to about the finals of the previous day right after the call under stop-loss selling brought on by the late margin calls of Monday. At the decline it looked as if most of the selling for long account was over, and the market rallied during the middle session on covering of shorts and some fresh buying for long account, which was promoted by predictions for unsettled weather in the South and reports of an improved demand for low-grade cotton. Buying showed little snap during the middle of the day, and the market had frequent recessions, but acted firmer in the late trading, when demand was more active, and it looked as if some strong interest was supporting the market. The close was steady and at practically the top prices of the session.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

M. MORRIS & BROTHER.—Sheriff Hayes has received a writ of replevin against Moritz, Max, and David Morris, former partners in the firm of M. Morris & Brother, manufacturers of trousers at 11 and 13 Waverley Place, for $4,948, in favor of the American Woolen Company, and fifty-two pieces of cloth were recovered. The business was started in January, 1905, and a few months later Max and David withdrew, leaving Moritz to carry on the business. Last week Moritz made an offer to the creditors for a compromise at 30 cents on the dollar cash. The liabilities are about $7,000, and assets $2,100.

WILLIAM ELLIMAN.—William Elliman, residing in Queens Borough, formerly a Wall Street broker, confessed judgment yesterday for $18,905 in favor of Mary I. Nichols for balance due of money borrowed from her, which money was the proceeds of purchases and sales of stocks by him for her account in 1900 and 1901.

I. LEVY & SON.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Israel and Isaac Levy, composing the firm of I. Levy & Son, manufacturers of clothing and tailors at 79 Canal Street, and also manufacturers of cloaks and suits at 79 Canal Street, by Myers & Goldsmith for these creditors: H. B. Claflin Company, $825; Fred Butterfield & Co., $1,839, and H. A. Caesar & Co., $350. It was alleged that they are insolvent, made preferential payments of $5,000, and transferred merchandise and accounts of $5,000. Judge Holt of the United States District Court appointed Henry P. Butler receiver of the assets, fixing his bond at $10,000. Israel Levy has been in this line of business since 1884, and went through bankruptcy seven years ago. From 1894 to 1900 the business was carried on in his wife's name, and was succeeded by the present firm in March, 1900. On Jan. 1, 1905, they claimed a capital of $80,000. Myers & Goldsmith said that the liabilities are $75,000 and assets $20,000. Judge Holt authorized the receiver to continue the business.

MAX SILVERTHAU.—Max Silverthau, salesman, residing at 54 West Ninety-fourth Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, individually and as surviving partner of the firm of M. Silverthau & Co., cigar manufacturers, formerly at 336 East Ninety-eighth Street, with liabilities $82,950 and no assets. There was a petition in bankruptcy filed against the firm of M. Silverthau & Co. on Aug. 18, 1902, but it was afterward dismissed. Among the creditors are E. Rosenwald & Brother $18,562, Edwin Mayer $12,000, secured; P. Rindskopf $10,397, B. Blumenthal $6,125, M. Levy & Brother $3,522, A. Cohn & Co. $3,141, D. B. Toucey $3,000, and M. Berliner $2,500.

MAYER LOEB.—Mayer Loeb, a clerk at 80 William Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities $2,503 to four creditors, who have obtained judgments against him on old debts, and no assets.

LEVY & MALOWITZ.—Judge Holt of the United States District Court has appointed Edwin M. Cox receiver in bankruptcy for the assets of Levy & Malowitz, cloak manufacturers of 53 Greene Street, and fixed his bond at $2,000. The assets are $4,000, of which $2,000 is stock and $2,000 accounts.

B. RAAP TRADING COMPANY.—Judge Holt of the United States District Court has appointed William H. Smith receiver in bankruptcy for the assets of the B. Raap Trading Company, wholesale cigar dealer at 140 Pearl Street, and fixed his bond at $2,500. The assets are $5,500, consisting of stock $1,500 and accounts $4,000.

LIBERTY SILK COMPANY.—A meeting of creditors of the Liberty Silk Company of 535 and 537 West Fifty-sixth Street, and at Hornellsville, N. Y., was held yesterday at the office of Seaman Miller, referee in bankruptcy, at 346 Broadway, which lasted four hours. A large number of claims were filed. There were two nominations for trustee—Augustus H. Skillin, the receiver, and Frank Frost. Mr. Frost had the largest number of claims and Mr. Skillin had the largest in amount of claims, so there was no election. The referee appointed Mr. Skillin as trustee and his bond was fixed at $50,000. The schedules showed liabilities $310,682, and nominal assets $1,011,197.

GENNARO MAZZA.—A meeting of creditors of Gennaro Mazza, dealer in jewelry and steamship tickets, and broker at 141 West Houston Street, was held yesterday at the office of Nathaniel A. Prentiss, referee in bankruptcy. Mazza did not appear. His attorney said that Mazza feared for his personal safety, but he would be produced at any future time when there were not so many creditors present. His schedules showed liabilities $9,290 and nominal assets $4,315.

Out of Town.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Walter R. Fegan, a granite manufacturer of Quincy, filed a bankruptcy petition yesterday, with liabilities of $10,771.16 and assets of $1,550. The liabilities are borrowed money. Willoughby Ford, a carpenter of Worcester, has $13,000 liabilities and no assets.

OLVANY ONE OF THE THREE

He Is from McClellan's District—Inquiry May Begin Next Week—No Counsel Yet.

Tammany members of the Board of Aldermen joined with the Republican and Hearst members yesterday, and, by a vote of 60 to 3, adopted the resolution appropriating $25,000 for the investigation of the Department of Street Cleaning under Commissioner Woodbury. Alderman Olvany, who represents Mayor McClellan's home district, not only voted against the measure, but made the principal speech in opposition.

The resolution, which will come before the Board of Estimate Friday and then before the Mayor for approval next Monday, leads the Aldermanic committee to hope that it can begin its public hearings in the investigation next week. Bainbridge Colby has declined to act as counsel, but the committeemen expect to have another attorney before the close of the week.

When the board met and received the favorable report of the Finance Committee on the $25,000 appropriation, Alderman Wafer opposed the measure on the ground that only cleaners and sweepers had been caught in the dragnet, as some of them had been shown to have accepted 10 cents or a dollar for removing ashes from some yard. He said the investigation would hit some "poor devils," but not department heads.

The board adopted the resolution appropriating $5,640,000 for improvement of the water supply system, and the resolution appropriating $2,000 for furniture for the Richmond Borough Hall. A resolution appropriating $6,500 for two automobiles for the Department of Bridges was defeated, but the resolution will come up again next week as a special order. The Finance Committee failed to report on the $16,000 resolution for three machines for the Police Department. Chairman Davis said that the amount would be cut down to $12,000 later.

AGAINST THE PEDDLERS' BILL.

City Club a Lone Objector to Their Leaving Pushcarts for Bail.

Pushcart peddlers failed to appear at City Hall yesterday for the hearing before Mayor McClellan on the bill to allow the peddlers to leave their carts as bail at the police stations when arrested. Word had been sent to the Mayor that 2,000 peddlers would attend the hearing. Only the Secretary of the City Club was there, and he opposed the bill.

For the City Club he said that such bail would be inadequate, upon which the Mayor cited the fact that automobilists were permitted to leave their machines as bail when arrested for exceeding the speed limit. The Mayor said he thought the leaving of the cart as bail would act as an incentive to the peddlers to obey the law as much as would the imposing of a 5-cent fine, as had been done by one of the Magistrates recently.

TRANSFER ORDER RESCINDED.

Badly Worded, Trolley Manager Says—Not Meant to Cheat the Public.

The New York City Railway rescinded yesterday its order to conductors that they "must not ask passengers if they wish transfers." The order not to give a transfer after the fare has been paid still stands.

General Manager Root said yesterday that the order forbidding conductors to ask passengers if they want transfers had been unfortunately worded and that it was not an effort to cheat the public out of a few nickels, but rather an endeavor to educate the public up to their rights and to stop a form of swindling that was very annoying to the management.

James J. Hill Still at Aiken.

James J. Hill was expected back from the South yesterday to resume, it was thought, the negotiations for the lease of the Great Northern's ore lands to the United States Steel Corporation. Mr. Hill, however, did not return. His friends said that he was still at Aiken, S. C., and that he would, in all probability, not return to New York for some days. So far as is known, no steps have been taken to reopen negotiations for the lease.

GAS KILLS A VETERAN.

Capt. Burns Will Tell Gambetti No More Tales of the Wars.

In a hall bedroom on the top floor of a boarding house at 326 West Forty-fourth Street was found early yesterday morning the body of Capt. Charles Burns, a veteran of Gen. Phil Kearny's cavalry brigade. The gas jet was turned on full. But those who knew the Captain did not think of suicide, for they had often heard him say that "the man who kills his enemy in battle only does his duty, but the man who takes his own life is a coward." So when the official report reached Headquarters it read:

> Accidental death; Charles Burns, 65, 326 West Forty-fourth Street; gas; Coroner.

There were many sad hearts in the boarding house when the news got around yesterday. Mrs. Tompkins, the landlady, was the first to learn what had happened. When she knocked on the Captain's door at 7:30 and received no answer she smelled gas and opened the door. She was so frightened at what she saw that she ran out on the street and told Policeman Flackner. He entered the room and turned off the escaping gas.

The chief mourner at the funeral will be Pietro Gambetti, the cobbler, whose modest shop occupies the front part of the basement. The two men became great friends soon after Capt. Burns's arrival at the house. For Gambetti is also a veteran of the wars, and each found a sympathetic listener for his tales of the battle fields of bygone days.

Gambetti would sit on his stool at work while he heard the Captain tell of the famous charge at Churubusco in the Mexican War, when Phil Kearny lost his left arm. Burns was always proud that he had lost his arm in the same battle, and was never tired of talking of it.

Then he would add the story of Gen. Howard and Phil Kearny at the battle of Seven Pines fifteen years later. Gen. Howard had his right arm shot off, and as he was being carried from the field he noticed the stump at Kearny's left shoulder.

"Well, General," he cried, "I guess we'd better buy our gloves together after this."

"Now, I could have told the General the same thing, for it was my right arm that was gone, too," Burns would say.

Many a pleasant day the old Italian soldier and the American veteran passed together, and Gambetti hopes that he will be allowed to keep Capt. Burns's cavalry sabre as a reminder of their friendship.

FRANCHISE UP TO MAYOR.

Rapid Transit Board to Reject His Connecting Railroad Conditions.

Out of the conflict between the Rapid Transit Commission and Mayor McClellan over the terms to be fixed for the franchise of the New York Connecting Railroad has come a determination on the part of the commission to pass the franchise in its present form, rejecting the Mayor's amendments, and thus put it up to the Board of Estimate and the Mayor. If the Pennsylvania Railroad interests refuse to construct on the terms which the Mayor wants fixed, the Commissioners will put the blame on the Mayor's shoulders.

When word of this plan reached the Mayor he became indignant, especially when he learned that there would be no meeting of the board this week to pass upon the amendments which he has been preparing for consideration. The Mayor worked until 2 o'clock yesterday morning getting his amendments ready, but there will be no meeting of the board until a week from to-morrow.

Last week the board cut in two the terms first proposed by Mr. Nichols and supported by the Mayor. The board also cut out of the franchise the clause regulating the rates to be charged over the connecting road, and the Mayor took sides actively against the contention of the Pennsylvania interests.

President Orr of the Rapid Transit Board said that the board was satisfied that the Pennsylvania would not build on the terms which Mr. Nichols wanted. Mayor McClellan said that unless his amendments were put into the franchise he would veto the measure.

Before the matter can get to the Mayor in his executive capacity it has to be approved by the Board of Estimate in which he controls three votes. It may be killed there.

WANTS BROKERS SUPERVISED.

J. A. Keenan Has a Bill Providing for Control by the State.

J. A. Keenan, an insurance broker of 1,358 Broadway, sent to the newspapers yesterday copies of a bill which he said would be introduced in the Assembly on March 19, providing for a supervision of stock brokers by the State Controller. The bill defines stock brokers as any persons, firms, or corporations who receive, hold, or acquire for sale or investment bonds, stocks, securities, or money belonging to others, or in which others have an interest.

It provides that all stock brokers in cities of more than 50,000 and less than 500,000 population shall deposit with the Controller, Government, State, city, town, village, or school district bonds to the amount of $50,000, and that in cities of upward of 500,000 population $100,000 of public bonds shall be similarly deposited. The bill provides that all stock brokers shall be subject to examination at least once a year by examiners appointed by the State Controller, and shall make an annual report to the State Controller; failure to do this shall be punishable by a fine of $100 for every day that the report is delayed or withheld.

Mr. Keenan wants the act, if passed, to take effect on Sept. 1.

SISTERS DISPUTE OVER WILL.

Mrs. Collins Disinherited Daughter at Whose House She Died.

Mrs. Hessie Lord, to whom her mother, Mrs. Hester H. Collins, who died on Feb. 24 last, left her estate, cutting off another daughter and son, was appointed administratrix by Surrogate Thomas yesterday. Mrs. Alice Putraw, the other daughter, in whose home at 2,184 Anthony Avenue, the Bronx, Mrs. Collins died, through her attorney, applied to the Surrogate to be appointed administratrix. She and her brother, Luther H. Springer, are contesting the will.

Mrs. Collins left real estate valued at about $12,500, and the Collins Ink Eradicator business, which brings in an income approximating $5,000 a year. Mrs. Putraw asked to be appointed on the ground that Mrs. Lord was wasting the assets and allowing the ink eradicator business to fall away.

James A. Donnelly, a lawyer, representing Mrs. Lord, submitted an affidavit to the Surrogate, denying the assertions of Mrs. Putraw. She declared that Mrs. Putraw and her brother had done all in their power to prevent her from carrying on the business.

At the close of the argument, Surrogate Thomas appointed Mrs. Lord instead of Mrs. Putraw, pending the conclusion of the will contest.

SAY MRS. TODD LEFT A WILL THAT'S VANISHED

Relatives Want Mr. Lockwood Ousted as Executor.

WITNESSES CONTRADICT HIM

Say Mrs. Todd Didn't Declare the Will of 1902 to be Her Final Testament.

The contest of the will of Mrs. Margretta Todd, the aged woman who was found dead last Fall on the tracks of the Reading Railroad, near Philadelphia, was brought to trial before Surrogate Fitzgerald yesterday. The heirs, Mrs. Frank Tousey, a daughter, and Milton Berolsheim, a grandson, are the contestants.

Ingersoll Lockwood, an elderly lawyer, who was Mrs. Todd's confidential adviser, and who drew the will, in which he is named as executor, was the principal witness yesterday. The heirs contend that there was a later will, in which Lockwood was not named as executor. The contest was brought to oust Lockwood and to establish, if possible, the existence of the alleged later will.

The instrument offered for probate was drawn in 1902. It disposes of an estate estimated at $150,000, including the Von Hoffman apartment house, at 49 West Twenty-sixth Street. Here Mrs. Todd lived, and here she placed a room at Lockwood's disposal.

The contestants are represented by Lawyers Maurice Meyer, Daniel O'Reilly, Theron Davis, and George B. Hastings, while Lockwood has Mark Alter and Jones Cochrane for counsel.

The circumstances surrounding Mrs. Todd's death have never been cleared up. She started from this city for a suburb of Philadelphia one afternoon last October, ostensibly to visit a relative. She was observed on the train, as she was a conspicuous figure on account of the quantity of jewelry she habitually wore, as well as on account of her vivid gowns and her wig. She confessed to 74 years; Lockwood says she was about 80.

Mrs. Todd was found dead on the railroad tracks the night she left this city, and she had evidently been robbed, but there are no clues as to how she reached the place or whom she met.

Frank M. Lee, a trunk manufacturer of Newark, and Francis G. Hatfield, a real estate dealer of Yonkers, the two witnesses of the will of 1902, testified yesterday that they had witnessed the instrument at Mrs. Todd's request. They declared that they had not read it, and that Lockwood did not, in their presence, ask Mrs. Todd if it was her last will and testament, nor refer in any way to the paper they signed. Hatfield denied that he was seeking to benefit Mrs. Tousey, but added that he would like to see her get her rights.

"Don't you know that if the will is admitted to probate, Mrs. Tousey will only receive half the income of the estate for life, whereas if it is broken she will receive half of the estate at once and unconditionally?" the witness was asked.

"I do not," was the reply.

Lockwood was then called to the stand. He testified that he had been Mrs. Todd's adviser for many years, but that they had quarreled a few days before her death, and she had ordered him to leave the Von Hoffman apartment house. He said he had no knowledge of any other will executed by Mrs. Todd, but said that a later will had been partly drawn and never completed.

The witness flatly contradicted Lee and Hatfield, declaring that he had asked Mrs. Todd in their presence if she declared the instrument to be her last will and testament, and whether or not she desired Lee and Hatfield to witness it. After she had signified her assent to both questions, the witness went on, Lee and Hatfield signed.

The witness testified that he had drawn several legal papers for Mrs. Todd relating to the Von Hoffman. A bill of sale was admitted as evidence, showing that Mrs. Todd had transferred her jewelry, wearing apparel, and household effects to Mrs. Tousey for $1. A contract was also shown, dated 1903, indicating that Mrs. Todd had made a present of $1,000 to Jennie M. Paine.

"Did you ever pay this $1,000 to Miss Paine?" the witness was asked.

"Not yet," was the reply.

The lawyer further testified that he had not paid Mrs Tousey what was due her, but that so far he had invested about $80,000.

Lockwood was asked if he had ordered a duplicate key to be made to Mrs. Todd's apartments. He said he had not done so, but suggested to the manager of the apartment house that it would be as well if he were provided with a duplicate key, as it was unsafe for so old a woman to be left altogether alone.

Lawyer Hastings then introduced a letter which the witness admitted writing to Manager Amory of the Von Hoffman, one sentence of which read:

"Have a duplicate key made to her apartment."

Several other letters were identified by Lockwood as having been written to Mrs. Todd by him. They were variously addressed to "My lieber Gretchen," "My dear Margrette," and "My dear Muetterchen."

"How old was Mrs. Todd?" asked Mr. Hastings.

"About 80," was the reply.

"And you were a lovesick swain of how much?" continued the lawyer.

The Surrogate rapped for order and ruled the question out.

A reporter testified that Lockwood told him in an interview that there were two wills, one drawn in 1902 and another in 1903.

The trial will be continued to-day.

HAMILTON DOWNTOWN AGAIN.

The "Judge" Says That He Isn't Ready to Talk Yet.

Andrew Hamilton spent most of another day downtown visiting some of his old friends and attending to matters of personal business, according to his friends. The "Judge" sent out word from his old offices on the eleventh floor of the New York Life Building, where he was the greater part of the morning, that his time to talk hadn't arrived.

The insurance bills not discussed last Friday will be taken up to-morrow at a hearing of the Insurance Committee of the Legislature. It will be mostly a lawyers' affair, as Paul D. Cravath is going to talk for the Equitable Life and Thomas F. Ryan, Henry W. Taft for the Mutual, and Samuel Untermyer and John De Witt Warner for the two policy holders' organizations that are co-operating in what will be a campaign to oust the present managements of the Mutual and New York Life.

SEE DUNNE, SAYS METZ; SEE METZ, SAYS DUNNE

Ask Him, Says Metz, Why He Wants B. R. T. to Spend Money.

MENTION ASHES, SAYS DUNNE

Also Declares the Controller Is in a Company That Has B. R. T. Advertising—This Metz Denies.

Controller Metz stirred up a lively row yesterday by issuing a statement intimating that Desmond Dunne, Borough President Coler's Commissioner of Public Works, had ordered the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to pave the streets between car tracks because the company had not given the Desmond Dunne Advertising Company a contract to control advertising on its lines. The paving would cost $426,000.

Commissioner Dunne, in reply, admitted that his company had lost the advertising contract with the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, and said he understood that the contract had gone to a company in which the Controller himself was interested. This was emphatically denied later on by the Controller and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit. Officials also said that they had no knowledge of Mr. Metz's being interested in the Inter-City Advertising Company, which did get the contract.

"I notice that Commissioner Dunne's order applies only to the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company," said the Controller in the morning, when he started the ball rolling. "I wonder why he made no such order to the Brooklyn and Coney Island, the Franklin and De Kalb Avenue line? In fact, I am so much interested in the question that I think I shall ask him if the fact that the Desmond Dunne Advertising Company controls the advertising on those lines had anything to do with the matter."

Commissioner Dunne was much interested when he heard this. He issued this statement:

"Mr. Metz is quite right. Desmond Dunne no longer controls the advertising privileges of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, Desmond Dunne understands on what he considers reliable information that Herman A. Metz does control those privileges, and that he obtained control of them through the influence of his beneficent friend, Pat McCarren.

"Desmond Dunne understands, further, that Herman A. Metz is under deep obligation to the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company because of the contract. He understands that this is the reason that Herman A. Metz still continues to pay city money to the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company for carting ashes, when the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company is daily violating its contract with the city. He understands that this contract obligation is the reason Herman A. Metz pays no heed to the protests of the borough officials of Brooklyn, who have asked him repeatedly not to pay for carting ashes unless it is done by night, as the contract calls for.

"As regards the order to the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to pave its tracks, as it agreed to do, you may say that the borough administration does not wish to begin with babies when there are grown men doing wrong. The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, as compared with the Coney Island Railroad in the matter of keeping contracts with the city, are a lot of highbinders and Dick Turpins. They promise everything and do nothing.

"In regard to the allegation that Controller Metz has put up the money for the Inter-City Advertising Company you may say that Desmond Dunne is told on good authority that Mr. Metz said himself that he had put up the money for the new company."

Controller Metz was equally interested when he heard of Mr. Dunne's statement. He declared the entire charge to be false.

"I have no interest whatever in the company," he said, "and I never did have a penny's interest in it. About a year ago Mr. Studwell, who got the contract, came to me and asked me if I wanted to become interested. I looked it over and then notified him that I would take some stock in the concern, but I never heard from him again. I never had any stock and have no knowledge, except hearsay, that the company ever was organized. I have never held any interest in any railroad and have no Wall Street interests, and shall not have any such interests during my four years in office."

GIRLS IN BUSINESS RACES.

Fast Work in Sewing and Stenography in Honor of Mrs. Winthrop.

Mrs. Egerton L. Winthrop, Jr., wife of the President of the Board of Education, had a series of unique races given in her honor yesterday. It was at the Girls' Technical High School in Twelfth Street. Ten of the brighest senior class girls, who had invited Mrs. Winthrop to tea, were the racers. They showed what they could do in the art of becoming good housewives and business women. The first race was on the sewing machine.

To show that the up-to-date girl can do anything she tries, the sewing machines and chairs were carried by a regiment of girls in a militarylike procession into the basement gymnasium, where the exercises were held. At the head of the line was a girl wearing a big apron marked, "Furniture Movers." At a given signal the machines were put in place, the chairs in front of them, and the racers with their work in their hands stood in position. At the word "go" they sewed.

There was nothing to be seen for a time but the confused blur of wheels and rapidly moving hands; then there was a whizzing of machinery. In three minutes a pretty girl held up a little white cap which she had completed.

The business woman's race was on the typewriter. There were five of these, and as many girls took a dictated exercise in stenography, and in an incredibly short time had written it out on the typewriter. It was said that one of the men guests asked the girl who finished first to take a place in his office at the close of her school year.

The girls danced a Swedish dance in costumes which they had made themselves; then Winter—more girls dressed in white—arrived, scattering snow until driven out by Spring—school girls dressed in green—who pelted Mrs. Winthrop with white carnations. The guest of honor had previously been rewarded with a commendatory card for "regular attendance, extra attention, and perfect deportment," and a beautiful book done in pen and ink and gold by the girls of the art department, a programme of the day illustrated with full-page paintings and sketches, also the girls' work.

At a table decorated with roses two school girls served tea and cake of their own make to the guests. A game of basket ball finished the afternoon. With Mrs. Winthrop was Mrs. George B. McClellan, her sister. Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Mrs. Edward Hewitt, and Mrs. Victor Sorchan were other guests.

PURIM BALL TO-NIGHT.

Hippodrome Performers Will Aid in Entertaining the Guests.

The Purim ball will be held to-night in Madison Square Garden. Its proceeds go far toward the maintenance of the Beth-Israel Hospital, to which use they are dedicated. This year the receipts promise to be unusually large.

Mayor McClellan, District Attorney Jerome, Controller Metz, and other city officials will be present as invited guests. Thompson & Dundy of the Hippodrome have volunteered to supply novel features for the early hours, and a relay of automobiles has been arranged to transport the performers between the Hippodrome and the Garden.

The arena seats and the boxes have all been disposed of, the boxes at an average of $50. Few of the seats on the orchestra floor have been sold. Each ticket entitles the holder to two seats, as well as two admissions, and the seats will be reserved until the appearance of the holder.

80-Cent Gas Hearing on Friday.

Mayor McClellan has set Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock as the time for the hearing on the 80-cent gas bill which recently passed the Legislature. Representatives of the local gas companies will appear to renew the arguments they made before the Legislature, and practically all of the civic bodies of the city will urge the approval of the measure.

Lawyer Says Man She Accused Will Sue for False Imprisonment.

Despite the fact that the case against Arthur Ester, twenty-two years of age, of Woodmere, L. I., had been adjourned twice for the attendance of the complainant, Mrs. C. K. G. Billings of 673 Fifth Avenue, she was again absent when the charge of soliciting subscriptions for a fake charitable ball was taken up yesterday morning before Magistrate Crane in the Yorkville Court.

When the case was called Lawyer Spielberg, who appeared for Ester, denounced the action of Mrs. Billings and said he would bring an action against her for $50,000 for false imprisonment.

Magistrate Crane then said: "As there is no complainant against this prisoner, I am compelled to discharge him." Turning to Ester, he said: "I warn you to be careful, otherwise you will wind up in prison."

BANDMASTER A SUICIDE.

Threw Himself Before an Elevated Train and Was Instantly Killed.

A young man supposed to have been Henry Peterson, formerly bandmaster on a receiving ship at the Norfolk Navy Yard, jumped in front of a northbound Second Avenue elevated train at the Forty-second Street Station yesterday forenoon and was instantly killed. The car under which the body remained had to be jacked up in order to get it out, and the track was blocked for an hour.

The motorman, Earl C. Mason of 214 East 125th Street, was arrested at the end of his run and taken before Coroner Harburger, who held him in $1,000 bail for the inquest.

BISHOP DOANE OPPOSES BILL TO STOP BETTING

Rev. Dr. Slicer Also, Jockey Club Counsel Tells Committee.

WITHDRAW THEIR SUPPORT

"Auerbach Upset Slicer and Slicer Upset the Bishop—Both Bunkoed," Says the Rev. Mr. Crafts.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 14.—That the Rev. Dr. Thomas R. Slicer of New York and Bishop Doane of Albany are opposed to the bill introduced into the Senate by Senator Cassidy declaring poolselling and bookmaking on the race tracks in the State a felony was the startling proposition put forward at the hearing on the bill to-day before the Joint Committee on Codes by Joseph S. Auerbach, counsel for The Jockey Club.

Mr. Auerbach stated that he had visited Dr. Slicer in New York after he had come out in advocacy of the bill, and that as a result of that visit Dr. Slicer had changed his position, and that he had even gone so far as to write to Bishop Doane, advising him that after an investigation he (Dr. Slicer) had come to the conclusion that vicious interests were behind the Cassidy bill; in short, that poolroom men favored it. This, counsel said, caused Bishop Doane to withdraw from the Rev. Dr. Gregg a letter he had written to him advocating the passage of the bill.

This assertion brought out a warm retort from the Rev. Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts, who had the bill drawn and induced Senator Cassidy to present it as his own. The Rev. Dr. Crafts said that he was surprised that the avowed advocate of the professional gamblers would admit that he had won over Dr. Slicer. "Auerbach upset Slicer and Slicer upset the Bishop," he said. "I am sure that in time they will see that they have both been bunkoed, and will be sorry for their change of heart. When a man has no case he abuses the plaintiff's attorney.

"When there was some litigation before," said Dr. Crafts, "and the race-track people were as desperate as they are now, they hired Mr. Pinkerton to see if he could not find some connection between me and the half-mile race track men. I challenged him then to produce any proof he might have, and he could not do it. I challenge him again, or any of the other gamblers in view of the innuendoes that the poolroom men are behind this measure, to show any proof of that assertion."

Mr. Auerbach, speaking for the race track people, contended that the Percy-Gray law limited gambling and kept it within certain bounds, where it could be watched. He said that the courts had passed on the constitutionality of the law that betting at the race course was merely incidental to the industry and diversion of horse breeding and racing, that the stopping of the bookmaking would be wholly ineffectual to stop gambling, and that as the present racing laws of the State has stimulated large property interests to large investments the Legislature had no right to interfere with the vested rights it had fostered.

Mr. Auerbach quoted the litigation begun by De Lacy and the poolroom men, and dwelt on the alleged collusion in those actions. He left the inference that he considered the present agitation of the same kind, but when Senator Cassidy heatedly demanded that he make himself clear on that point Mr. Auerbach declared that he had meant nothing of the kind. Mr. Auerbach then quoted a number of prominent sociological writers on gambling, and was interrupted by Senator Cassidy, who asked: "If writers took one side and the Constitution of the State took the other, which would you agree with?"

"I'll think that over and perhaps answer it later," said Mr. Auterbach. "On the whole I don't think that I should be interrupted by any one not on the committee. Because Senator Cassidy was a member of the Constitutional Convention he need not think he knows it all. Elihu Root and De Lancey Nicoll were also members of that convention, and yet they have helped me in the preparation of cases favoring the Percy-Gray law."

Senator Cassidy, his face blazing, jumped to his feet. "This gentleman has seen fit to make invidious comparisons," he said, "and I want to say in reply that the position of Mr. Root as a paid advocate of the gamblers does not square with his opinions in the convention."

Mr. Auerbach then addressed his remarks to showing that large vested interests had grown up under the present law and said that a Legislature, if there were no change in conditions, had no right to interfere with those rights.

A number of representatives of agricultural societies which get about $200,000 a year from the race track receipts said the fairs would have to close unless they got money from some source, either the State or the tracks, and Senator Elsberg, Chairman of the committee, asked if it made any difference to them where the money came from. Most of them answered that if the money was tainted they would take it, but preferred to take it without taint if they could get it.

The Rev. Dr. Crafts then described the conditions at race tracks as he had seen them.

When Senator Cassidy rose to speak Senator McCarren asked him if he thought that putting a stop to betting at the tracks would make any difference in the attendance.

"If the race tracks are run for the gambler it would," was the reply; "but if they are run to improve the breed of horses and furnish honest sport and amusement, it would not. If the race track people were honest in their assertions that they were running their tracks to improve the breed of horses, then they would not oppose this bill, which simply hits at race track gambling and upholds the Constitution of the State. I do not think that this bill will stop gambling. That will go on so long as the human race survives, but I stand here to break the partnership of the great Empire State with the gamblers. If they do wrong I want them to do it as outlaws and not under the form of law of this State."

DE LACY'S BILL—SLICER.

He Says the Cassidy Bill Would Open Poolrooms the Wider.

The Rev. Dr. Thomas R. Slicer said last night that he was quoted correctly when he was declared by Mr. Auerbach to be against the bill prohibiting race-track betting.

"The bill," he said, "emanates from the De Lacy gang. It is intended to open wider the poolrooms of New York, which are already open and doing business. If sports are left in the hands of the Stewards of The Jockey Club, who are responsible men, then some one can be held responsible for violations of the law.

"I am not in favor of any form of gambling, of course, but I am in favor of putting the control of all sports in the hands of responsible men to the end that they may be kept clean. If the bill should become a law, it would mean more poolrooms for New York."

DEPEW VERY ILL, SAYS PLATT.

But Dr. Munn Believes His Indisposition Is Only Temporary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Heretofore Senator Platt has invariably denied the reports, which have been in circulation here for a fortnight, that Senator Depew is in a very serious condition. He has characterized the reports as "bosh" and "nonsense." Only three days ago he made such a reply when, for perhaps the tenth time in as many days, he was asked if he knew anything about Mr. Depew's condition.

To-night Mr. Platt was again asked about the junior New York Senator. This time he did not deny that Mr. Depew was ill, but at first he said he knew nothing about the mater.

"I have not seen Mr. Depew for a couple of weeks," he said, "not since he was last in the Senate, and I do not know anything about him." A moment later, however, Mr. Platt added:

"I believe that Mr. Depew is a very sick man."

Mr. Platt said he knew nothing about reports as to Mrs. Depew's reasons for absenting herself from the country, and added:

"I do not see why she should stay in Europe when her husband is reported to be on his deathbed."

Senator Platt then remarked that he thought the policy of secrecy maintained by Mr. Depew's relatives was a mistaken one.

Mr. Depew has not been here for two weeks. He has hardly been in his seat at all since the session began, and on the rare occasions when he attended he was carefully guarded from intrusion. Contrary to the invariable custom of himself and the other Senators, the doorkeepers were instructed to take no cards to him. When he was in the Senate his stay was always short, and he was noticeably agitated and nervous. At his home it was impossible to see him.

Senator Depew, despite widely published reports, is not in a sanitarium in New Jersey or elsewhere but at his home in this city.

Dr. John P. Munn is Senator Depew's physician. He told a TIMES reporter last night that the Senator was not "on his death bed," as had been reported to Senator Platt.

"Senator Depew's present indisposition is, I believe, only temporary," he added.

ELDRIDGE A JUROR'S CLIENT.

Henry Holt Published the Insurance Man's Novel—Has Told Jerome.

If George Dyre Eldridge, Vice President of the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Company, ever wrote a book other than the detective story entitled "The Milbank Case" nobody knows it, and if Henry Holt, his publisher, ever served on more than one Grand Jury no record has been found of the fact. Yet when five indictments were found, two weeks ago, charging Eldridge with larceny in the first degree and forgery in the third degree, Mr. Holt was one of the Grand Jurors which passed upon the validity of the charges.

"When the members of the Grand Jury were challenged," said Mr. Holt, "I did not recall the fact that I was the publisher of one of Eldridge's books. My son, a day or so later, recalled the fact that the Eldridge under investigation was an author of mine, and, as in duty bound, I called the attention of the District Attorney to the fact.

"Mr. Jerome communicated with Mr. Eldridge's lawyer, who said that he did not think the fact that I had published one of his client's books would prejudice me, and I was then informed by the District Attorney that I was competent to act."

"How did you vote?" Mr. Holt was asked.

"Ah," was the smiling reply, "that is another matter."

"The Milbank Case" was submitted to Henry Holt & Co., publishers, at 29 West Twenty-third Street, in the Fall of 1904. It was sent back to Eldridge for revision, and published in May, 1905. It is a detective story dealing with a murder, and winds up with the suicide of the guilty man. A scandal in high life has a place in the tale, which is interestingly told, but has not yet made its author a rich man.

HAINES TAKES HIS SALARY.

Goes on April 15 with Two Years' Pay at $6,000 a Year.

The Board of Managers of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals met yesterday in the building at Twenty-sixth Street and Madison Avenue. President John P. Haines, who retires on April 15, insisted on two years' pay at $6,000 a year, and got it.

The Committee on Charges, composed of Henry Bergh, John H. Iselin, and Richard Welling, who were appointed to investigate accusations of graft against certain employes of the society, presented a report recommending the dismissal of only one agent of the society. His name could not be learned. The report was adopted, and it was the general opinion that this would end the matter, temporarily at least.

Some other developments had not been anticipated. President Haines's resignation will take effect on April 15 instead of May 1. His salary of $6,000 a year for two years will be paid at his request.

A Committee on Finance was appointed to investigate alleged extravagances in the management of the society, the committee being composed of Henry Bergh, Richard Welling, and H. W. Jessup. A committee was also named to select a successor to Mr. Haines. This committee is composed of Gen. Charles F. Roe, Frederic Coudert, and Harry Bergh.

Gordon Knox Bell, Chairman of the Committee on Auditing, received a report from Haskins & Sells, the accountants, in reply to President Haines's charge that they forced a balance with an error of $10,000. It said:

"Such a statement if made by the President or any one else is false, and such representation must have been for the purpose of deceiving."

President Haines was in the chair and Gen. James Grant Wilson acted as Secretary.

NO WANTON SLAUGHTER OF MOROS, WOOD CABLES

Secretary Taft Sends to Him for a Reply to Criticisms.

THE PRESIDENT SATISFIED

Men Who Fought in Jolo Entitled to Heartiest Admiration—Senate Asks About the Battle.

WASHINGTON, March 14. — A cablegram from Gen. Wood in reply to criticisms of the slaughter in the recent battle of Mount Dajo, on the Island of Jolo, together with correspondence between the President and Secretary Taft on the subject, were made public to-day.

Gen. Wood's cablegram was in answer to one sent to him at the direction of Secretary Taft, who called his attention to the criticisms of "wanton slaughter of Moros," and asked him to send all the particulars. Gen. Wood's reply denies that there was any wanton killing. The President says Gen. Wood's answer "is, of course, entirely satisfactory."

Secretary Taft's letter reads as follows:

"War Department, Washington, D. C.
"March 13, 1906.

"Mr. Dear Mr. President: The account of the engagement on Mount Dajo, on the Island of Jolo, in battle of our forces and a large band of Moro robbers, in which the fighting lasted for three or four days, showed such a large loss among the Moros as to give rise in a part of the public press to the criticism that there had been a wanton destruction by our troops of Moro lives, including those of women and children. Inquiries were made of me by members of the Senate and House of Representatives in respect to the matter. Accordingly I yesterday directed that the following telegram be sent to Gen. Wood:

"It is charged that there was a wanton slaughter of Moros—men, women, and children—in the fight in Jolo at Mount Dajo. I wish you would send me at once all the particulars in respect to this matter, stating exact facts.

"Gen. Wood's answer came to-day. It seems to me to show most clearly that the unfortunate loss of life of the men, women, and children among the Moros was mostly unavoidable, in view of their deliberate use of their women and children in actual battle, and their fanatical and savage desire that their women and children should perish with them if defeat were to come. They seem to have exhibited in this fight the well-known treachery of the Mohammedan, when wounded, of attempting to kill those approaching for the purpose of giving aid and relief. Gen. Wood's dispatch is as follows:

"'The Military Secretary, Washington.

"'In answer to Secretary of War's request for information of March 12, I was present throughout practically the entire action, and inspected top of crater after action was finished. Am convinced no man, woman, or child was wantonly killed.

"'A considerable number of women and children were killed in the fight—number unknown—for the reason that they were actually in the works when assaulted, and were unavoidably killed in the fierce hand-to-hand fighting which took place in the narrow, inclosed spaces. Moro women wore trousers and were dressed and armed much like the men, and charged with them. The children were in many cases used by the men as shields while charging troops.

"'These incidents are much to be regretted, but it must be understood that the Moros, one and all, were fighting not only as enemies but religious fanatics, believing Paradise to be their immediate reward if killed in action with Christians. They apparently desired that none be saved.

"'Some of our men, one a hospital steward, were cut up while giving assistance to wounded Moros, by the wounded, and by those feigning death for the purpose of getting this vengeance.

"'I personally ordered assistance given wounded Moros, and that food and water should be sent them and medical attendance. In addition friendly Moros were at once directed to proceed to the mountain for this purpose.

"'I do not believe that in this or in any other fight any American soldier wantonly killed a Moro woman or child, or that he ever did it except unavoidably in close action.

"'Action was most desperate, and was impossible for men fighting literally for their lives in close quarters to distinguish who would be injured by fire. In all actions against Moros we have begged Moros again and again to fight as men and keep women and children out of it.

"'I assume entire responsibility for action of the troops in every particular, and if any evidence develops in any way bearing out the charges will act at once.
"'WOOD.'

"Very sincerely yours,
"WILLIAM H. TAFT."

The President's reply reads:

"The White House, Washington, March 14, 1906.

"My Dear Mr. Secretary: I have received your letter of March 13, with accompanying cable of Gen. Wood answering your inquiry as to the alleged wanton slaughter of Moros. This answer is, of course, entirely satisfactory. The officers and enlisted men under Gen. Wood's command have performed a most gallant and soldierly feat in a way that confers added credit on the American Army. They are entitled to the heartiest admiration and praise of all those of their fellow-citizens who are glad to see the honor of the flag upheld by the courage of the men wearing the American uniform.
"Sincerely yours,
"THEODORE ROOSEVELT.
"Hon. William H. Taft, Secretary of War."

The Senate to-day passed this resolution:

That the Secretary of War is hereby directed to send to the Senate copies of all reports and other communications between the War Department and any officials in the Philippine Islands respecting the recent attack by troops of the United States on Mount Dajo.

The resolution was offered by Mr. Culberson. It was accepted without comment.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, March 14.—Adjt. Gen. Henry C. Corbin, who arrived to-day, expressed much indignation over the criticisms of Gen. Wood's battle with the Moros.

When told that people were saying that Gen. Wood slaughtered the natives needlessly he burst out:

"They do, do they? Well that is because they do not understand the situation. These Moros are savages, and to fight them successfully you have to treat them as such. Do you think Gen. Wood was going to let his men be slaughtered without doing anything?"

"But the women and children, General; you know they say—"

"I don't care what they say," he broke in, impatiently. "The women and children were all in the crater. So you think the General was going to rush down and say: 'Ladies and children, please get to one side. We want to shoot the men.' They didn't have to take their women and children up there into that crater. But you see the women and children fight just like the men. There's no way of distinguishing them.

"But I don't want to discuss the matter further. Gen. Wood never did less than his duty, never less than his duty."

CLOSE CALL FOR MISS ADAMS.

The Actress Is Nearly Pushed Over the Footlights by a Swaying Curtain.

A bunch of violets, a gust of wind, and an unsteady curtain came near proving a disastrous combination for Maude Adams on the stage of the Empire Theatre yesterday afternoon.

At the close of the third act of "Peter Pan," as Miss Adams was responding to the first curtain call, some one threw a large bunch of violets on the stage. They landed close to the footlights just in front of Gustave Sanger, the leader of the orchestra.

Miss Adams did not see the flowers at first. When the applause continued she came forward a second time, caught sight of the violets, and hurried to pick them up. While she was bending over a draught of air from the stage blew the curtain out over the footlights against Miss Adams, almost forcing the actress into the orchestra.

As she tottered on the edge of the stage and the audience gasped, her hands found a support on the shoulders of Mr. Sanger, who sprang to her assistance. With his help she regained her balance, and as the curtain fell back into place, hurried from the stage.

Beyond a moment's scare, Miss Adams suffered no ill-effects from the accident. The audience, however, seemed to feel she had had a narrow escape and showed its relief by redoubled applause.

ROCKEFELLER MEN WOUNDED.

Italians Employed at Pocantico Hills Attacked by Armed Assailants.

Petro Albani, a watchman on John D. Rockefeller's estate at Pocantico Hills, was attacked by two men on the Rockefeller place Saturday with clubs and knives. Antonio Malano went to his rescue in time to save his life.

Albani was taken to his home in North Tarrytown. Early yesterday morning Malano was set on by three men in Beekman Avenue while on his way to work. His assailants wounded him in several places with knives. He fired three shots and they ran away.

The police say that there are at least twenty members of the "Black Hand" Society in the neighborhood, and there is likely to be trouble. Only Saturday a fugitive from Hackensack fled to North Tarrytown and hid himself on John D. Rockefeller's estate. He escaped detectives sent there to catch him.

Mr. Rockefeller employs more than 100 Italians, and it is thought that Italian blackmailers are trying to force some of them to pay money under penalty of death.

The police have arrested one man, and Malano, who is now in the hospital, has identified him.

TOOK ADOPTED CHILD AWAY.

"Safe with Mamma," Said a Telegram Sent to the Foster Mother.

The police of this city and Philadelphia have been asked to find a well-dressed man and woman, also a little girl of 12 years, whom the well-dressed couple are charged with having kidnapped from the home of her adopted mother, Mrs. Reizzak, who lives with Mrs. Julia Daley at 225 Fifth Street.

Mrs. Daley and Mary Gibbons, janitress of the house, say the couple went to the house yesterday afternoon in Mrs. Reizzak's absence and, seeing Mrs. Gibbons, asked her if a little girl named Mamie Smith lived there. Before Mrs. Gibbons had a chance to reply the little girl appeared in the hallway.

"Why, there is Mamie now," the woman with the man exclaimed. "Why, Mamie, don't you know your mother?"

The little girl ran to the woman, who kissed her affectionately. Then all three went away. When Mrs. Reizzak returned and found that the little girl had gone away she told the police. Mrs. Reizzak said that Mamie had been with her for nearly ten years, having been given into her charge by a woman friend who said the baby girl had been left with her by the baby's mother, and that the mother was unable to care for it. The friend had found herself unable to support the little one and gave her to Mrs. Reizzak, who gladly took the child.

When Mrs. Reizzak returned home she received this telegram, sent from 110 West Fourteenth Street, a branch office of the Western Union Telegraph:

"Mamie is safe with her mamma in Philadelphia. Will call and settle."

The telegram was signed "Mrs. Kate Smith." As soon as the police were told of the telegram, word was telegraphed to the Superintendent of the Philadelphia police to look for the couple and the little girl.

NEWS FOR THE CURB.

Incorporation of a Traction Company May Settle Some Disputes.

The Consolidated Traction Company of New York, a holding company, was incorporated at Albany yesterday, with a capital of $1,000. The Directors named are Fred Schwed, George W. Stein, and Jacob Schneck, curb brokers.

Immediately after the announcement of the Interborough-Metropolitan merger stock of the prospective holding company was dealt in on the curb, as is frequently the case, before an official title for the new company had been agreed on. In curb language, it was dealt in "when if and as issued." For convenience sake a name was sought for it, and the title "Consolidated Traction Company of New York" was settled upon.

Winners and losers in this curb stock gamble have since become divided as to their financial responsibility in the trading that took place. The losers say they cannot be held responsible for their losses inasmuch as no Consolidated Traction Company exists. The winners declare that the stock of the holding company should be good inasmuch as an officially designated company filling the conditions has been incorporated in the Interborough & Metropolitan Security Company.

Mr. Schwed said at his home, 23 East Ninety-fourth Street, last night that he would explain his activity in getting the Consolidated Traction Company incorporated to his fellow-brokers to-day.

THE BRITISH KING SUNK BY HER UNSHIPPED CARGO

Great Wave Lifted Her Deckload and Launched It at Her Side.

27 MEN PERISHED WITH HER

Capt. O'Hagan, Fatally Hurt, Fought Gallantly to Save Her, and Died After Rescue.

BOSTON, March 14.—With holes battered in her side by barrels of oil that had been torn from her deck, the Phoenix Line steamer British King foundered last Sunday night 150 miles south of Sable Island.

Twenty-seven men went down with her. The Leyland liner Bostonian brought in to-day seventeen survivors, rescued at great risk, and eleven more are on the German tank steamer Mannheim, now going to New York. Capt James O'Hagan of the wrecked vessel was taken off by the Bostonian, but was so badly injured that he died.

The rescued who were brought here to-day include James Flanigan, the second officer; J. D. Crawford, the chief engineer; Adolphus Beck, the fourth engineer, and William J. Curry, the steward. The others were coal passers and sailors, mostly Belgians, and one stowaway, Henry Parkotch of New York.

The British King sailed from New York last Wednesday, bound for Antwerp with a miscellaneous cargo and 150 head of cattle. On Friday morning the ship was struck by a northwesterly gale. It developed into a hurricane and huge billows, and these broke over the deck, carried away the fittings, and unloosed the fastenings of her deck cargo of oil barrels and cast them into the sea. Some of the hatches were torn open and great volumes of water flowed into the ship's compartments, putting out her fires and making her engines useless. The rudder held for a time, enabling Capt. O'Hagan to steady his ship; but this, too, was swept off.

Meanwhile the wreckage and oil barrels gathered about the steamer and formed into a powerful ram that was driven down upon her port side with crushing force by the waves. They opened the vessel's plates and allowed the water to pour into her holds.

It was not until Saturday that the crew realized that the vessel had settled noticeably in the water, and would soon sink.

Capt. O'Hagan went into the hold, and strove to repair the most damaged sections. While so engaged a barrel of oil fractured one of his legs in two places. The injury was so severe that a piece of the bone protruded through the flesh. In spite of this injury and of internal hurts caused by his fall, he refused to be carried to his cabin. He had his leg bound up, and directed the efforts to plug up the hole in the ship's side.

His efforts were vain. The water gained continually, and by Saturday night all hands were forced to take refuge on the main deck. The cattle were swept overboard gradually and drowned. All the ship's boats were smashed.

Capt. O'Hagan at 6 o'clock sighted the Mannheim, and shortly afterward the Bostonian. Both vessels stood by and watched the rolling vessel with the men clinging to its deck. They could do nothing during the forenoon, however.

The British King, at 1:40 P. M., signaled "Help us; we are sinking." A slight moderation of the weather permitted the Mannheim to lower a boat in charge of a volunteer crew which, after a perilous pull to the British King, rescued eleven men. The British King's crew were brave, for they pushed one another forward; all apparently willing to wait for the last chance. The Mannheim lowered other boats, but they were stove in.

Sailors of the Bostonian vied with each other for the honor of going to the rescue, and were not deterred when the first boat was dashed to pieces against the steamer's stern. First Officer William Brown and the six seamen were left struggling in the water, but were pulled in, badly bruised, by lines thrown out from the vessel.

A great cheer went up from the Bostonian when, at 4 o'clock, the starboard lifeboat put out in charge of Second Officer Cromwell. The steward and four sailors went with him. They reached the sinking vessel and took off thirteen men, including Capt. O'Hagan, who was lowered by his men by means of a line from the stern. Just as the rescued men had been put aboard the Bostonian the boat was smashed and the rescuers were saved with great difficulty by means of lines.

Capt. Perry deemed it imprudent to send another boat before the moon arose. At about 11 o'clock the British King staggered and sank. Both the Mannheim and the Bostonian sailed to the point where the ship had foundered, and half an hour later Capt. Parry of the Bostonian located a small section of a cattle deck to which five men were clinging. They were rescued. Both vessels laid by till morning, when, seeing nothing alive, they sailed away.

The British King was built at Newcastle, England, in 1891. She was 404 feet in length, 47.9 feet in breadth, and 27.0 feet in depth. Her tonnage was 3,042. She was owned by the British Shipowners' Company (Limited) of Liverpool.

A QUESTION OF BOSSES.

Raised in the Assembly, but Moreland Refuses to Talk.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 14.—In discussing in the Assembly to-day the bill making constitutional amendments operative only when they receive the vote of a majority of those who vote for members of the Assembly Mr. Palmer of Schoharie referred to bosses.

"Are there any bosses left?" inquired Mr. Rogers of Broome.

"No, not in the State," replied Palmer, "but I think there are some in Washington. Some people think the Governor is the boss. But his refusal to help oust the man in Newburg makes one think he isn't."

Then Mr. Palmer asked Majority Leader Moreland to tell who is the boss of the Republican Party.

"It is as much for the gentleman from Schoharie to guess that as it is for me," replied Mr. Moreland, dismissing what was apparently an unpalatable subject.

THIRD TERM, SAYS PARKER.

Does Not Believe Roosevelt Ever Intended to Reject It.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 14.—Ex-Judge Alton B. Parker passed through this city to-day, returning North. He said:

"I am convinced, as far as I am personally concerned, that Mr. Roosevelt will ask for the nomination of the Republican Party for a third term. I am satisfied that at present this is the intention of the President. In spite of the fact that when his election in 1904 was an assured fact, he made the statement that under no condition would he agree to be a candidate, I believe that Roosevelt has intended all along to ask for the nomination."

OPERATE DESPITE FIRE.

Umbrellas Held Over Patient in a Maine Burning Hospital.

BIDDEFORD, Me., March 14.—Seventeen patients at the Trull Hospital in May Street, this city, were removed from their beds to-day during a fire which destroyed a portion of the building, and the surgeons at the hospital completed an operation upon a female patient while the firemen were at work and while umbrellas were held over the operating table to ward off the water which was leaking into the operating room from the upper part of the building.

The fire, which was confined to two upper floors of the hospital, caused a loss of $15,000.

It was found possible to fit up the street floor of the hospital to accommodate all the patients.

DEATH PUZZLES POLICE.

Case of "James C. Wallace," Who Died Near the Navarre, Investigated.

Coroner Shrady and the West Thirty-seventh Street police early this morning were investigating the death of James C. Wallace or James C. Conant, said to be a wealthy man from Pittsburg, which occurred early yesterday afternoon, but which they did not learn of until about midnight last night. Wallace, or Conant, is supposed to have died at the Hotel Navarre, but at the hotel it is asserted that a "joke" is being played on the police.

The facts, as far as the police can learn, are that the man died yesterday afternoon at 220 West Thirty-eighth Street, a few doors from the hotel. A burial permit was granted for "James C. Wallace."

BANK CASHIER CARRIED OFF.

Rushed Away in Automobile to Appear Before Graft Inquisitors.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, March 14. — Cashier Thomas J. Davis of the First National Bank, who refused to appear before the Senate committee now investigating Cincinnati and Hamilton County affairs, although subpoenaed, and who has part of the time since been sojourning in Kentucky to avoid the committee's officers, was early this evening arrested at the bank and spirited away in an automobile by Special Assistant Sergeants at Arms Sweeney and Harrison of the Senate.

It is said that Davis will be taken to Columbus to-night in the automobile, there to appear before the Senate to-morrow to answer to his alleged contempt of the authority of that body in refusing to appear before its special committee.

The main reason for the unusual action in Davis's case was to avoid habeas corpus proceedings by the bank officials. Davis is wanted to testify as to the giving of "gratuities" by banks to various County Treasurers in return for the use of county funds without the payment of interest.

FIRE TRUCK HITS TWO WOMEN

Strikes Them in Swinging Around a Corner—Both Severely Hurt.

Bertha Stern, 25 years old, of 238 East 152d Street, and Clodia Specidio, 22 years old, of 2,372 Second Avenue, were struck by Hook and Ladder Truck No. 20 at Lafayette Street and Astor Place last night, while the truck was on its way to a fire. Miss Stern received many bruises, while Miss Specidio had two ribs fractured.

The two women were crossing the street when the truck swung around the corner into Lafayette Street. The rear end of the truck sweeping around in obedience to the steersman's wheel, hit them both, knocking them down.

Driver Joseph Burton stopped the truck at once and one of the firemen sent a call to Bellevue Hospital for an ambulance. The women were taken there.

POLICE PLOT TO MURDER DR. PARKHURST ALLEGED

Two Witnesses Swear That Assassin Was to Get $500.

ONE DISLIKED JOB, AND TOLD

Sergt. John H. Shiels and Patrolman Phelan Subpoenaed by Wahle—McAuliffe's Violent End.

District Attorney Jerome is investigating an alleged police plot to assassinate the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst. In connection with this investigation, he caused subpoenas to be issued yesterday for Sergt. John H. Shiels of the West 100th Street Station and John Phelan, until recently a patrolman in the same precinct, who, when Sergt. Shiels was Acting Captain there, was his wardman.

The subpoenas were issued by Magistrate Wahle, sitting in the Tombs Court, at the request of Assistant District Attorney Hart, and unless Mr. Jerome should change his mind and take the matter to the Grand Jury this morning, which is considered quite likely, the two police officials will be required to attend as witnesses at John Doe proceedings which are scheduled to be begun at 3 o'clock this afternoon before the Magistrate.

The information furnishing the basis for the proceedings is contained in affidavits furnished the District Attorney by one L. Rogers, who formerly was an employe at Police Headquarters, and a young man known as Richard Wilson, who according to their sworn statements were asked to undertake the job of getting the clergyman out of the way.

While the strictest secrecy is being preserved by all familiar with the details of the alleged plot, it was learned yesterday that the affair came to light shortly after the last municipal campaign and that for some weeks Mr. Jerome's county detectives and agents of the Parkhurst Society have been at work collecting evidence to corroborate the statements made by Rogers. The affidavit of Richard Wilson was not obtained until a couple of days ago after he had been submitted to a third-degree process of nearly twelve hours' duration in the office of Frank Moss, Vice President and counsel of the Parkhurst Society.

Both Are Closely Watched.

Both Rogers and Wilson are now kept under close surveillance by District Attorney Jerome's detectives Both men will be on hand to-day either before the Grand Jury or before Magistrate Wahle, as the case might be.

Dr. Parkhurst himself, according to information obtained yesterday, was one of the first to learn about the plot against his own life. His informant is said to have been a certain Robert J. Kelly, who was employed to make some investigations by the Citizens' Union and in the course of this work employed Rogers. Rogers was something of a detective. He has been employed as a prison keeper at Police Headquarters, but prior to filling that position, in the days of Supt. Byrnes, was employed as a stool pigeon by some of the detectives on the latter's staff.

It seems that Kelly had treated Rogers with a great deal of kindness, and that Rogers, who already had balked at the job of murder, had opened his heart to Kelly. This was a few days after election. Kelly lost no time in informing the Rev. Dr. Parkhurst of the danger which was hanging over him. He told the clergyman the whole story told him by Rogers. Dr. Parkhurst called on Frank Moss for advice, and a hurried conference was arranged, at which Kelly, Dr. Parkhurst, Mr. Moss, and Supt. McClintock of the Society for the Prevention of Crime, better known as the Parkhurst Society, were in attendance.

Saw Wilson Meet Police Official.

The result of this conference was that after agents for the society had been watching the movements of the two men for some time and even had overheard some of their conversations and witnessed one meeting between Wilson and a police official, Frank Moss went to the office of District Attorney Jerome and told him of the alleged plot. Mr. Jerome assigned one of his assistants to take charge of the case, and under his direction and that of Chief Hammond of the county detectives' staff a certain amount of corroborative evidence was gathered and full confessions finally obtained from Rogers and Wilson.

Rogers in an affidavit sworn to before Magistrate Wahle affirms that the man at the head of the plot is a Sergeant in the Police Department, who from time to time has been an Acting Captain. One day last June or July, Rogers swears, he met a policeman with whom he had become acquainted in his days at Headquarters. The policeman told him:

"Capt. —— would pay $500 to have Dr. Parkhurst's lights put out."

The policeman said that, while his superior was willing to pay this sum, Rogers would only get $300 of that amount. The policeman said he thought the rest was coming to him as go-between.

Rogers says that shortly afterward he went to see this Sergeant, whom the policeman had referred to as Captain, because at the time he was acting in that capacity. The Sergeant told him that what the policeman had told him was right, and that he would let him know when the job was to be done. Dr. Parkhurst at the time was away on his Summer vacation in Switzerland. Rogers was told by the official that a blackjack would do the work more neatly and noiselessly than any other weapon.

Weakened as Time Drew Near.

According to Rogers, he saw the Acting Captain and the policeman on other occasions, but that as the time approached for the return of the clergyman and the crucial moment drew near he weakened, until one day he went to see the police official and told him:

"I don't mind giving the old doctor a good licking, but I ain't willing to kill him."

The Sergeant would not hear of this, according to Rogers's statement. He wanted murder or nothing. It was at this time Wilson appeared in the plot. Wilson in his affidavit says he was introduced to the policeman who first had broached the scheme to Rogers, that subsequently he saw the Sergeant, but that at this interview the name of Dr. Parkhurst was not mentioned.

Persons thoroughly familiar with the details brought to light by the investigation and the contents of the confessions of Rogers and Wilson declare that desire for vengeance had inspired the desperate plot.

The Sergeant implicated by the affidavits of Rogers aspired to become a Captain. He was on the eligible list, and well up toward the top, and ordinarily would have had a better chance than most to have his ambition realized. This was in the McAdoo administration. When Mr. McAdoo made his appointments, aided by his advisory committee of citizens, the name of this particular Sergeant was passed by. The Sergeant believed this failure to obtain a Captaincy due to pressure brought to bear by Dr. Parkhurst.

Wilson a Reluctant Witness.

It was not until last Monday that the investigation had reached a point where the detectives determined the time had come to put the screws on Rogers and Wilson. Both were taken to the office of Frank Moss. Wilson was kept there until almost midnight before he decided to tell what he knew.

District Attorney Jerome declined yesterday either to confirm or deny the story of the alleged plot, and the same reticence was observed by his assistants. The Rev. Dr. Parkhurst, when questioned about the plot, would say nothing. Mr. Moss and Supt. McClintock had a long conference at the former's office yesterday afternoon. Mr. McClintock, when questioned regarding the plot, said his lips were sealed. Mr. Moss said:

"I am sorry to refuse you information, but I have made about seventeen premises not to talk."

It was surmised last night that the reason why District Attorney Jerome has called Sergt. Shiels might be to ask him about the experience he had with the Parkhurst society in 1901. He was a Sergeant at the Tenderloin Station under Capt. (now Inspector) Flood, and when Flood was away on his vacation Shiels was acting Captain. Edward J. Glennon was wardman in the Tenderloin, and was said to be more powerful there than the Captain.

Parkhurst Society Made a Raid.

In August of 1901, while Shiels was in charge at the Tenderloin Station, the Parkhurst society raided a disorderly resort in West Thirty-third Street, kept by a Frenchwoman known as Laura Mouret. The Parkhurst society agents had asked the Tenderloin police for assistance, and some of the Parkhurst men who were watching the place saw a policeman in full uniform enter it and warn the inmates of the coming raid.

The sequel of this raid was a veritable upheaval among the Tenderloin police. Wardman Glennon was indicted, tried, and convicted and sentenced to six months in prison. Later he received a certificate of reasonable doubt and a new trial, which resulted in his acquittal, the most important witness for the prosecution having disappeared. Shiels himself was indicted. So were Coxe, Darcey, Schoeneich, plain clothes men in the Tenderloin.

Shiels was never tried on his indictment, but after a trial at Police Headquarters was dismissed from the force. Later he was reinstated by the courts.

Mrs. Anna McAuliffe, a dressmaker, who lived next door to Mauret's resort, was a witness against the place. Her husband, who also testified, was found dying on the street in February the following year after a night spent in a cell at the West Forty-seventh Street Station. Grave allegations were made at the time against the police of the precinct. An investigation by District Attorney Jerome, while it failed to bring out any evidence in support of the charges, did not clear the mystery of McAuliffe's death.

Shiels Knows of No Plot.

Sergt. Shiels said last night that he knew nothing of any plot to kill Dr. Parkhurst, and that any suggestion which might be contained in the affidavits in Mr. Jerome's possession that he had anything to do with such a conspiracy was absurd.

"Why should I want to kill Dr. Parkhurst?" he said. "The man has never done me any harm. If I had $500, I think I could put it to better use than to do away with a man whom I have no reason to hate."

Sergt. Shiels said that Phelan, who also was subpoenaed by Mr. Jerome, was formerly a patrolman at the West 100th Street Station, and about ten days ago was transferred to the City Hall Station. He declared he had never spoken five words to Phelan. Shiels said that on the night of July 4 last James Rogers, son of the Rogers who signed one of the affidavits, was arrested on a charge of grand larceny. The same night, according to Shiels, the senior Rogers, who is called "Larry" Rogers, came to the station house.

"He was drunk and abusive," said Shiels last night. "I was Acting Captain at the time. Rogers came in and began to abuse me and the precinct police generally. He said we were hounding his boy and that we wanted to 'put him away.' I ordered him out of the station."

Shiels said that the policemen who had arrested the younger Rogers were Patrolman William F. Short, who is still attached to the West 100th Street Station; William B. McManus, who is a detective at the Bronx Headquarters, and Robert Copeman, who is at the Central Park Station.

Patrolman Short said last night that the senior Rogers went to the District Attorney's office and saw Detective Reardon of the county force and told Reardon that the plain clothes men of the West 100th Street Station had made threats against him.

TRUST INQUISITORS READY.

Federal Grand Jury to Look for Violation of Elkins Law.

The March Federal Grand Jury was sworn in yesterday by Judge Thomas. Robert N. Bolton, a dealer in chinaware at 45 Barclay Street, is its foreman.

The principal matters to be investigated relate to alleged rebating practices and other violations of the Elkins law involving the American Sugar Company and railroads running out of New York. The investigation of the American Tobacco Company, interrupted by the refusal of its officers to produce books, probably will be resumed. The Supreme Court has established the right of the United States attorneys to compel witnesses to produce the required evidence. The investigation is in the hands of Special Assistant Attorney General Henry W. Taft, brother of the Secretary of War.

Judge Thomas cautioned the Grand Jurors that their affiliations with commercial life must not influence their judgment in their pending deliberations.

POLICEMAN MAULED BY CAR.

Nugent Was Wedged Under It—Reserves Pulled Him Out.

Policeman Patrick Nugent of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station, who lives at 841 East Eightieth Street, was seriously injured yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when he was struck by a Lexington Avenue car at the corner of Sixty-seventh Street.

The policeman was on his way to report for duty, and had walked behind the south-bound car which he had just left, when he was struck by a north-bound car. He rolled under the fender and was shoved along ten feet before Michael Whittaker, the motorman, could halt the car.

Sergt. Joseph Connors was calling the roll in the station house and remarked the absence of Nugent, who was seldom late. At that instant a boy ran in, exclaiming:

"A cop's been killed at the corner."

The reserves turned out, and it took a dozen of them to get Nugent, who was unconscious, from beneath the fender. The policeman was so seriously injured that a priest was summoned from a neighboring church.

Dr. Barrett of the Presbyterian Hospital removed Nugent to the institution. He was suffering from a severe scalp wound, a possible fracture of the skull, and internal injuries. He is 54 years old and has a wife and children.

Competition for Theatre Plans.

The architects who are to submit designs for the New Theatre met the members of the building committee of the Board of Founders yesterday, and discussed arrangements for the architectural competition. The jury to pass on the plans will consist of three members of the Board of Founders, three outside architects selected by the competitors, and one theatrical expert.

ARREST WOMAN VISITOR TO MORGAN'S OFFICE

Mrs. Williams Will Be Examined as to Her Sanity.

SHE THREATENED TO SHOOT

Financier's Son Mollified Her — Mr. Morgan Willing to Pay Her Expenses in Hospital.

Mrs. Ellen Barbara Williams, who has been known for some time in Wall Street as a woman with a grievance against J. Pierpont Morgan, was arrested yesterday afternoon, and after examination by Magistrate Wahle in the Tombs Court, was committed to Bellevue Hospital for investigation as to her sanity.

She went to the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., in Wall Street, last Friday and asked for Mr. Morgan. When she was told he was away she waited two hours for J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., and then left the office. She returned in twenty minutes, waited for another hour, and then, catching sight of the younger Mr. Morgan, spoke to him. He offered her money, but she declared she would shoot several persons, and in particular Charles Steele, one of the members of the firm. She was persuaded to leave and was told to return yesterday.

Detective Flood arrested her in Wall Street at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon told he was away she waited two hours appointment. He asked if she was going to see Mr. Morgan and invited her to step into a cab which Roundsman Beery had waiting. She got in quietly, but by the time they had reached Trinity Church realized something was wrong and began to scream. Detective Flood did all he could to quiet her, and she was hurried as quickly as possible to the Tombs Court, where she was kept waiting for a while in the Magistrate's private room.

The case was heard in the Magistrate's room, William Rand, Jr., and Frank Lord appearing for Andrew T. Dunn, the complainant, who is an employe of the Morgan firm. Mrs. Williams asked that Eugene Jerome be summoned as her attorney, but as he could not be reached by telephone, she said:

"It means everything to me, for he has all my papers. But I am not afraid. It would have been nice if he had been here, though."

Magistrate Wahle, who treated her with the utmost consideration throughout the hearing, assured her that her interests would be looked after, and Mr. Rand even suggested that he would act as her counsel, leaving the prosecution, if it can be called such, to Mr. Lord.

Mr. Rand then said:

"Some years ago Mrs. Williams called on Mr. Morgan with introductions from England. He interested himself in her affairs, advancing her money to pay her lawyers for services in connection with a trust estate in Baltimore in which she was interested. Since then he has not seen her, but last Friday she came to the office and was very violent to Mr. Morgan, Jr., on his refusal to pay her money. She threatened to shoot Mr. Steele and to break glass if she did not get her way. Mr. Morgan believes her mind is lacking in balance."

At this Mrs. Williams exclaimed "Oh!" and laughed derisively.

"His only object," continued Mr. Rand, "is to act in the public interest, and he asks that she be remanded for examination as to her state of mind. He will cheerfully pay for better quarters and food than for the ordinary prisoner, and will engage a prominent city physician to help in the consideration of her case."

Then Dunn was called. He told how Mrs. Williams waited for Mr. Morgan. Mr. King, Mr. Morgan's secretary, offered her $1, but she refused it as not enough. At length she caught sight of Mr. Morgan, and asked him about her Baltimore property. He promised to cable his father about the matter.

"Then," said the witness, "she showed him some papers, including a newspaper clipping. Mr. Morgan told her he did not believe half that was in the newspapers."

"He never did," interrupted Mrs. Williams. "He was too much of a gentleman. Why, I spend every Saturday at his house."

The witness said she made some rambling statement about Mr. Satterlee's children.

"I didn't say anything about the Satterlees at that time," broke in Mrs. Williams.

"Never mind what that man says," said Magistrate Wahle, soothingly.

Dunn said Mrs. Williams declared Mr. Steele a scoundrel, as not fit to black her boots, and threatened to shoot him. Mr. Morgan offered her $5, and then $10 to tide her over till the answer to the cablegram came, and warned her not to go to the office again.

Mrs. Williams was asked if she had any questions to ask.

"My words were," she said, "'Whoever doubts a lady's word deserves shooting, so help me God.' That meant a great deal for me, for I am a High Episcopalian. I knew Dr. Rainsford well."

Mrs. Williams also said, talking very rapidly, that she had been defrauded and that she was acquainted with the Barings of London, Bishop Potter, Wilmer & Canfield, and Simms, Steele & Co. of Baltimore. She also said she had married a man who had another wife.

She produced some letters which seemed to show that Mr. Morgan had lent her $500 on one occasion, and also a document, apparently an agreement between herself and Mr. Morgan.

"How did you get this?" asked Magistrate Wahle. "It is only signed by yourself."

"Oh, that's only a copy. The original's on file in Baltimore."

Then she showed some cablegrams from England, dated 1901 and signed "Suffield" in ink. These, Mrs. Williams said, were from Lord Suffield, and she had written the name in because Lord Suffield never signed them.

"Did you ever break the glass in the office of Mr. Stone of Wilmer & Canfield?" asked Mr. Rand.

"Yes, because Mr. W. S. Logan told me I would never get anything unless I did," she replied.

Magistrate Wahle then said:

"Madam, it is evident you are laboring under great nervous excitement. I must commit you to the care of the Commissioner of Public Charities." Mrs. Williams arose from her chair and faced him.

"You can't do it," she exclaimed. "I am an English lady of royal blood. All Mr. Morgan's money can't imprison me."

Several policemen took her, screaming, from the room.

In half an hour she calmed down somewhat, and was then got into a cab on the pretext that she was to be taken home. When she found policemen still with her she leaned out of the cab window and shouted. When she arrived at the hospital she struggled violently.

At 42 West Twenty-fifth Street, where she boarded, Mrs. Glass, the housekeeper, said that she had been there six months and had always appeared perfectly sane. She had spoken of her connections and her claims on property at Baltimore and referred to Mr. Morgan as "Jack."

It was said last night at one time Mrs. Williams had rights in a property in Baltimore and that Mr. Morgan lent her money from time to time. After a time he found that she had disposed of her claims, and he then dropped the matter. This happened some years ago, and since then she has been a constant visitor to his office and has caused a great deal of trouble to everybody in it. Mr. Rand gave out this statement last night:

"Some years ago Mrs. Williams called upon Mr. Morgan with letters of introduction from people whom he knew, and he interested himself in her affairs to the extent of advancing money to her to pay her lawyers for services rendered in connection with a trust estate in Baltimore of which she was the beneficiary. Since then he has not seen her.

"She appeared at his office last Friday afternoon, March 9, and on the refusal of Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., to pay any money to her became very violent in her conduct and language, threatening to shoot Mr. Steele, one of the partners, and to break glass and destroy property unless her demands were complied with. The woman's mind had apparently been affected by her misfortunes.

"Mr. Morgan has instructed me to see that she is treated with every possible consideration under the circumstances. He has no wish to humiliate or degrade her in any way. He has taken this action not for his own protection, for he can easily enough keep out of her way, but for the protection of the employes in his office and in the interest of public order."

LASSOED 225 FEET IN AIR.

Capture of a Climber Who Says He's Grover Cleveland.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, March 14.—A man whose rolling gait was justified by his sailor costume, strolled into the sixteen-story Williamson Building, at Euclid Avenue and the Public Square, this afternoon, and boarding an elevator rode to the top floor. Then he took to the stairway that runs through the cupola, and unobserved, reached the roof.

The next that was seen of the man in the sailor clothes was when he leaned recklessly over the edge of the roof and waved his cap in friendly salutation to the street crowd. The boy who saw him first was soon surrounded by a throng which realized that something was amiss with the man in the upper air. Policemen Hannan, Bitzer, and Bellet were attracted, and while they were debating as to what was best to be done, the far-off figure made a gesture of farewell, and tossed his cap away as a souvenir.

That decided the policemen, and rushing into the building they impressed an elevator which ran them to the sixteenth floor. When they reached the roof the man in sailor costume had sought a still higher level—he had shinned up the towering flagpole, 225 feet above the ground.

"Hey, you," called Hannan in tones of authority, "come down out of that."

"Can't do it," responded the man up the pole. "I have an engagement to meet a bird here in a couple of minutes."

"Don't you see you're blocking traffic?" demanded Bellet, pointing to the street.

"What, airships?" grinned the sailor, disregarding the gesture.

Bitzer, while his comrades were arguing with the man, loosed the halyard of the flag pole and drew the long rope to the roof. Then he constructed a lasso and busied himself in trying to rope one of the sailor's feet. In the sixth case he succeeded, and a gentle tug admonished the man up in the air that his finish was in sight. He clung desperately to the pole, but without avail, for he was irresistibly drawn to the top of the cupola.

The faint sound of cheering rose to the roof as the policeman seized the adventurer. He bowed his acknowledgment.

"Who are you?" the police asked.

"I'm Grover Cleveland," he said, "but don't give it away. Treat me right, and I'll do the same for you."

The police locked him up and have reason to believe that he is not Grover Cleveland at all, but J. Cline, formerly of the battleship Iowa.

DIVIDED ON INJUNCTION BILL.

Some Labor Men Now See a Snare in the Measure.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—A decided division in the ranks of organized labor on the subject of an anti-injunction bill was disclosed to-day at the hearing before the House Committee on Judiciary. For some time before the hearings began telegrams and letters were received by Speaker Cannon in large numbers urging him to pass the Gilbert anti-injunction bill. They came from lodges of railway trainmen all over the country. Since the hearings have been under way the trainmen have had a delegate here strenuously advocating the passage of the Gilbert bill.

To-day, however, Samuel Gompers, head of the American Federation of Labor, and Andrew Furuseth, representing the International Seamens' Union, appeared before the committee and bitterly attacked the bill. They both declared that it was an insidious attempt to write into the law the very proposition against which they have fought for so long. Under the guise of limiting the power of the courts in granting injunctions, they say, the Gilbert bill seeks to confer upon the courts specifically the power which they now derive from the common law, so that, instead of being a restriction on government by injunction, it is in fact an effort to extend and reinforce such government.

PUSHCART MEN ARE SORRY.

Didn't Know the Hearing on Their Bill Was Set for Tuesday.

The east side peddlers, in and out of the United Peddlers' Association, are working night and day to convince all politicians with a pull reaching as far as the City Hall that business was so pushing this week that really they should not be held responsible for not showing up before Mayor McClellan on Tuesday for the hearing of the pushcart bill. If it becomes a law it will allow a peddler to put up his cart as bond when he is arrested for violation of the city ordinances.

The peddlers declare that they understood the hearing was to be to-day. They were pushing their wares through the east side yesterday when they found out that Tuesday was really the day. As the bill requires the signature of the Mayor, and a hearing is necessary to get his acquiescence, the east side has mourned bitterly. The Mayor now has a letter from the President of the United Peddlers' Association explaining all and asking for a new hearing date.

PRINCE TSAI TSE SAILS.

Off to Study England, France, Belgium, and Germany.

With the dragon ensign of China snapping in the breeze from her masthead the White Star liner Baltic, having on board Prince Tsai Tse, the head of the Chinese Commission appointed to study the government of this and other countries, sailed for Liverpool yesterday morning. The Prince and his suite arrived at the pier about 7 o'clock, and immediately retired to the suites reserved for them. The Baltic sailed at 8 o'clock.

Two big Chinamen stood guard at the entrance to the suite occupied by the Prince, and all callers were informed that the Prince could not be disturbed. The Prince's secretary, Dr. Kwon Ching Hsie, said, however, that the Prince's visit to the United States had been one of the happiest possible, and that the Prince had been much impressed with the form of government in this country.

The Prince will spend one month in England, and will then visit France, Belgium, and Germany, in the order named.

MORE OF THE HUDSON BRIDGE.

A Report That the Railroads Are Considering the Plan.

It was reported again yesterday that plans are under way for the construction of another bridge across the Hudson River at Garrisons or Dutchess Junction. It was said that this bridge was to be part of a scheme to facilitate intercommunication between the railroads on the east and west sides of the Hudson, and that all the railroads entering New York were interested in the scheme. The roads mentioned in the report were the New York Central, the New Haven, the Erie, and the Pennsylvania.

Among railroad men the report was discredited. A representative of one of the roads mentioned said that not only was his company not interested, but that the scheme as outlined did not have the appearance of probability. One road which specifically denied connection with the plan was the Erie.

Mr. Marshall was 81 years old.

RAYNER ROUSES SENATE BY SLAPS AT MEMBERS

Points to Foraker and Aldrich as Mourners for Railroads.

HIS CHARGES ARE RESENTED

He Intimates a Belief That Railroad Lawyers Have Made the Hepburn Bill Ineffective.

Special to The New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Senator Rayner of Maryland stirred up the Senate over the railway rate question to-day, flinging shafts of wit about in such fashion as to have Senators constantly going at him. No part of the debate heretofore has excited such controversy.

Mr. Rayner openly intimated his belief that the railroad lawyers had tinkered the Hepburn bill so as to make it ineffective. He flouted the recent argument of Senator Foraker. He finally pointed to Senators Foraker and Aldrich as chief mourners for the railways, and met their resentment and that of Senator Lodge, who rushed to their defense.

In his attack on the Hepburn bill, the Maryland Senator said:

"It is true the framers of this bill have given the constitutional right for review, but they have provided no venue. They give the parties the right to go to a court, but they have provided no court.

"If the railroad lawyers of the country, all the genius of the most brilliant men of the American bar, had had a hand in framing this bill, in my judgment they could not have so framed it that it would better defeat the very object sought. They have incorporated in this bill words and phrases that will absolutely defeat it.

"How all that may have occurred I would not pretend to know. I do not say that they actually wrote in the words as to the suspension of rates by the courts. Such things may happen by inadvertence, by suggestion. There are many ways for it to occur. But if the railroad lawyers can keep in just the word 'suspension' the bill will be a fraud and a mockery, a disappointment to the people who are expecting that we shall give them relief from intolerable conditions."

"What lawyers!" demanded Mr. Foraker. "This is the first time I have been told that railroad lawyers had any hand in writing anything into this bill."

"Oh, well, they have got a word in here and there," answered Mr. Rayner. "They ask nothing better than to get in and keep in that word 'suspension.' And I want to say," declared the Maryland Senator with great emphasis, "that if that word suspension remains in the bill I shall vote against it.

"If you leave in that word suspension you might as well pass no law. You might as well abolish the Inter-State Commerce Commission and tear down the whole framework of protection to the country from the selfishness of the railroads."

Mr. Rayner made pointed reply to the speech last week by Senator Foraker, and took issue with him directly in declaring that Congress had not the power to make railroad rates under the clause in the Constitution in regard to commerce between the States.

"That speech," said Mr. Rayner, "was one of the greatest arguments I have ever been privileged to hear. I have read it over and over with continuing pleasure—and I disagree entirely with the Senator. He is all wrong. He met authority after authority that was squarely against him and with matchless courage impressed it into service with him on his side of the battle. I have never known a hopeless cause to be managed with such consummate and matchless skill. The tide was dead against him, and when he encountered a cloudburst of decisions from the State and Federal courts a torrent that would overwhelm a man of ordinary capacity, his genius irradiated the storm and pacidly and serenely he rode upon the billows."

Senator Foraker took Mr. Rayner to task for his observation about railroad lawyers tinkering the bill, which he thought a reflection on the Inter-State Commerce Committee.

"Oh, I meant no criticism on the committee," replied Mr. Rayner. "I think the committee has done its work splendidly. It has put the bill in the hands of an honest Democrat." Everybody laughed at this.

Mr. Rayner recited the difficulty in getting prompt settlement of disputed rates, and Mr. Knox told how the passage of the expedition act by the Fifty-seventh Congress had made it possible to put through the Northern Securities case in sixty days. Mr. Rayner thought that this would be impossible with rate cases.

"Why, there is a case up in the Senator's State in Titusville," roared Senator Tillman at this point, "that has been in the courts seventeen years, and the complainants have some of them died before they could get justice."

Mr. Knox replied that he had a letter from the Pittsburg Judge in that case saying that the complainants had slept on their rights for two years.

"Oh," retorted Mr. Tillman, "they are tired out and would rather die than go on."

"They have been in court only five years," said Mr. Knox excusingly, and the Senate laughed.

Mr. Rayner in the closing passage of his speech pictured Messrs. Vanderbilt, Morgan, Gould, and Harriman seated around a table in New York fixing rates for the rest of the country to pay, and then passed to a scene where railroad lawyers, whom he named, appeared before the Senate Committee with funereal faces and told of the woes that would come to the country and property interests if the bill were to be passed.

In making this picture he included satirically Senator Foraker and Senator Aldrich as among the saddest of the mourners. This offended them, and especially Senator Lodge, who resented the intimation that they were railroad Senators.

Mr. Rayner in reply exasperatingly declared that if the railroad lawyers would agree to take the word suspension out of the bill it would be done. This enraged Mr. Lodge more than ever, and he read the Maryland Senator a homily on the honor and dignity of the Senate.

Mr. Foraker also put in a general denial of the charge that he was a railroad Senator. "Once for all," he said, "I deny this charge. I have no interest in any railroad. I am humiliated to have to say it. I do not want the Senator again to say that I have an interest in railroads or in anything in this matter but to do my duty as a Senator."

"I am not responsible for the Senator's condition of mind. He is entirely too sensitive," responded Mr. Rayner cheerily.

The debate of the day was closed by a tilt between Messrs. Dolliver and Tillman, in which the latter alluded to the Hepburn bill as a "brat" that had been thrust into his arms, and said he did not like the court review clothes that were proposed to be put on it. His own bill, which he called a baby, had been put to sleep in the pigeonhole of Senator Elkins's desk in the committee room of the Inter-State Commerce Committee.

Nine hundred and fifteen of the cases treated are classified as accident cases. The number treated in the dispensary was 42,714, and the number in the hospital proper was 1,833.

The vaudeville entertainment included the Borsinis, Chinko, the Crickets, the Imperial Japanese Troupe, Gaudschmidt's Acrobatic Clowns, Miss Minnie Kaufmann, Kosta, the Chamberlain and Bronco, and the Metropolitan Boys.

NO MILLION FOR HIS VALET.

Dr. Freel Could Only Bequeath About $20,000, Friends Say.

From New Haven, Conn., yesterday came a story that Dr. Frank J. Freel of Brooklyn, who died at Stony Creek, Conn., last week, had left a will bequeathing to his valet, Patrick Colbert, an estate worth $1,000,000. It was said that the will had been filed for probate in New Haven.

Relatives and friends of Dr. Freel, who were seen in Brooklyn last evening, expressed the belief that there was some misunderstanding about the will, if he left any, as he did not have power to dispose of the property left by his father. Their impression was that if Dr. Freel had left a will in favor of his valet he had bequeathed merely his individual estate, amounting to about $20,000.

Colbert entered Dr. Freel's employ as an office boy about ten years ago. He is now 25 years old. The physician took a great fancy to him, and the young man was his constant companion. Dr. Freel was unmarried and had become estranged from his mother, Mrs. Catherine Freel, of Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn, as a result of a disagreement over the management of his father's $1,500,000 estate. In the last two years there had been much litigation. Dr. Freel's father, the late Edward Freel, was a contractor, who built reservoirs, conduits, and other large public works for the old City of Brooklyn.

PAY CONSULS BETTER, SAYS THE PRESIDENT

Cheap Salaries Make Cheap Men, He Tells Consular Reformers.

GIVE LIVE MEN A CHANCE

Service Should Be on a Strictly Business Basis with Chance for All to Work Up.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The delegates to the Consular Reform Convention called in a body on the President at the White House this afternoon. He delivered a speech on consular reform in part as follows:

"We in Washington must rely upon you to make our people—pre-eminently a business people—appreciate that the Consular Service should be in its essence a part of the general scheme of business development of the country.

"I have not, I am sorry to say, been able to persuade people thus to look upon even such a question as the Santo Domingo treaty, which is a purely non-partisan measure; for if it was treated as it should be, purely on its merits, there would not be one shadow of opposition to or criticism of it. But while we have not yet been successful in getting the work of the department looked upon quite as in the non-partisan spirit that should be our National attitude in foreign affairs and have not been successful in getting the Consular Service made by law what we strive to have it made—an absolutely non-partisan service—still we have made a certain amount of progress, and with the help of you and those like you we shall be able to make a great deal more progress.

"You cannot expect to get permanently good service when that service is unattractive and ill-paid. We all know that under such conditions it is necessarily difficult to secure honest and efficient service. We cannot keep the service as high as it should be kept unless we have adequate salaries.

"Remember that the dearest kind of public servant is a servant who is paid so cheaply that he must render cheap service. Also, I feel most strongly that in the Consular Service, which stands entirely apart from the Diplomatic Service proper, entrance should be made by law into the lower grades and that the higher grades should be filled by a gradual process of weeding out and promotion; remembering, gentlemen, that the weeding out process must not be interfered with. It is not any too easy to get rid of a kindly natured elderly incompetent at best, and if you add to the difficulty by law, he then permanently stays. Make the entrance to the service as far as possible non-partisan, and make it at the lower grades so that desirable positions shall come to those who have rendered good and faithful service in the lower grades, and so that those entering the lower grades shall feel that if they do well they have a long and worthy career ahead of them."

Secretary Root addressed the convention to-day, indorsing the Consular Reform bill, which has passed the Senate and is now in the House.

ROOSEVELT TO MINERS.

Advises That They Work On Under Award of Arbitrators.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 14.—President John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers has been informed that President Roosevelt will not interfere in the anthracite coal strike situation. Mr. Roosevelt is opposed to any action which will bring on a strike in any part of the country and has advised the anthracite men to go on working under the old award of the arbitrators.

In this district Mitchell has won a point against Patrick Dolan. Dolan will retire as President of this district in favor of Edward McKay, who will undoubtedly be elected at the special election now in progress. Dolan will go to Mercer County, and a new district will be formed of the northern counties, and over it he will preside.

This is part of the agreement entered into by Mitchell for a settlement of the differences between him and the operators in this district. It is believed that the scale for this district will be settled at the Indianapolis conference regardless of what happens to other districts.

KILLED AFTER A FUNERAL.

Naval Officer's Son Slain by Pistol Dropped by Brother.

PHILADELPHIA, March 14.—George Payne Burnap, 38 years old, a son of the late Capt. George J. Burnap, United States Navy, died to-day at a hospital as the result of a most unusual accident.

Mr. Burnap arrived here yesterday from his home in Santa Cruz, Cal., to attend the funeral of his father. About midnight he went with his brother Arthur to the latter's room. As he lay upon the bed smoking a pipe his brother picked up a newspaper from a trunk in a corner of the room, and dislodged a pistol on the trunk.

The weapon fell to the floor and was discharged. The bullet penetrated the mattress and entered George Burnap's left side near the heart.

DEATH GRANTS THEIR WISH.

Aged Mother and Blind Son Killed by Gas Together.

Mrs. Rose Hyslip, 93 years old, and her son, Joseph, 59 years old, who occupied a first flat in a large four-story double apartment which they owned at 170 India Street, Greenpoint, were found asphyxiated by illuminating gas in their beds yesterday morning. It always had been the wish of both to die at the same time.

For a long time the son had been practically blind. Mrs. Hyslip, despite her age, was constant in her attentions to him.

The police, after investigation, came to the conclusion that the two deaths were accidental. They believe that Mrs. Hyslip, after having turned off the kitchen gaslight on Tuesday night before retiring, accidentally turned it on again.

FOR PHILIPPINE TARIFF BILL.

Prominent Connecticut Republicans Rebuke Senator Brandegee.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, March 14.—Seventeen of the most prominent Republican business men of this State, including President Mellen and four Directors of the New Haven Road, to-day sent a letter to Senators Brandegee and Bulkeley demanding that they vote for the President's Philippine tariff bill. The letter says:

"As Republicans and consistent advocates of the protective tariff we earnestly urge that your votes be cast in favor of the Philippine tariff bill. In our opinion a vote against that bill will misrepresent the overwhelming Republican sentiment in Connecticut, and will frustrate President Roosevelt's policy of a square deal for the Filipinos, a policy which would receive an overwhelming majority of Republican votes of Connecticut if submitted to popular approval."

The signers of the letter represent over $100,000,000 of capital. It is signed by John H. Whittemore, Waterbury; James S. Elton, Waterbury; Frederick J. Kingsbury, Waterbury; P. Corbin, New Britain; Charles M. Jarvis, New Britain; G. M. Landers, New Britain; Sylvester C. Dunham, Hartford; D. Newton Barney, Hartford; C. S. Mellen, New Haven; Meigs H. Whaples, Hartford; Col. F. W. Cheney, South Manchester; E. G. Burnham, Bridgeport; Thomas P. Taylor, Bridgeport; Schuyler Merritt, Stamford; Charles H. Nettleton, New Haven; Morris F. Tyler, New Haven; Max Adler, New Haven. Of these Messrs. Cheney, Barney, Elton, and Whittemore are Directors of the New Haven Road.

The letter was sent because of the feeling in this State outside of the tobacco interests that Senator Brandegee did not represent Connecticut Republicans when he smothered the Payne Philippine Tariff bill in Senate committee by laying it on the table. The letter is taken to be a sharp rebuke of Senator Brandegee's action and as a warning to Senator Bulkeley, who has not yet had a chance to vote on the bill.

FAILS TO GET GORHAM CO.

Robinson's Attempt Defeated—He Is Dropped from the Board.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 14.—The struggle for the control of the Gorham Manufacturing Company, which began nearly a year ago, ended to-day at the annual meeting of the stockholders in this city in the complete rout of George H. Robinson, Vice President of the company, and the triumph of President Edward Holbrook and his supporters.

Mr. Robinson was not only displaced as Vice President, but was dropped from the Board of Directors by an overwhelming vote.

The struggle became known when Mr. Robinson filed in this city an attachment of $3,000,000 against the stock owned by President Holbrook. The contention was that Mr. Holbrook had violated an agreement to deliver 15,500 shares of the Gorham stock. The stock, it was said, was to be delivered on June 20, 1905. Mr. Robinson tendered the money at that time, but the stock was not forthcoming, hence the attachment. There were rumors of a settlement, but the case went to the courts. On Aug. 5 the case was settled as far as the legal proceedings were concerned.

It was generally understood that Mr. Robinson represented a group of outside capitalists, among them being Marsden J. Perry of this city, who were trying to get control of the concern and who almost succeeded in putting the scheme through.

CANDIDATES FOR DOUMA ARRESTED AND BANISHED

Trepoff in a Great Plot to Prevent Reforms in Russia.

PLAN IS TO MASSACRE JEWS

Repressions Necessary Will Then Show That People Are Not Ripe for Self-Government.

London Times—New York Times
Special Cable. Copyright, 1906.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 14.—An official communiqué states that the Minister of Justice is hurriedly drafting laws to prevent election abuses. In the meanwhile the provincial authorities continue to arrest and deport candidates and to terrorize the peasants.

A telegram from Yaroslav says that only thirteen out of 600 small landlords and clergy met to elect delegates to the provincial Electoral College. These thirteen elected eleven of their own number.

Ominous rumors come from Moscow. The Revolutionaries are said to be displaying great activity. A large proportion of the workmen have definitely refused to take part in the elections. Considerable unrest noticeable among the railway men causes alarm to the authorities. A regiment of dragoons and several batteries of artillery have been drafted into Moscow from Tver.

Proclamations are being distributed in Moscow announcing that the Revolutionaries will blow up the electoral offices when the elections begin. It is difficult to ascertain the origin of these proclamations. The extremists of both sides are adopting tactics designed to defeat the elections.

Another batch of 150 political prisoners has left Moscow for Yakutsk. Five Moscow newspapers have been indicted.

The Kharkoff seminarists have mutinied and have poured sulphuric acid over the rector.

The Government announces that it will take measures to stop the incitement to murder Jews. This gives rise to reports that it is intended to abolish the reactionary organizations. It is doubtful if the St. Petersburg police or the Governor General of Odessa, who have been foremost in promoting race hatred, will be punished.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 14.—At to-day's session of the Cabinet Premier Witte insisted on the suppression of the organization know as the League of the Russian People, through which the agitation of the reactionary "Black Hundreds" is propagated.

The Police Prefect, M. Von der Launitz, was summoned to the meeting and asked to explain how it was that the proclamation calling for the extermination of the Jews was printed in the official printing office attached to his department. He denied any knowledge of the matter.

However, there is constantly accumulating evidence that the plot to produce a counter-revolution in the hope of sweeping away the reforms outlined in the manifesto of Oct. 30 had its origin in a Court cabal. The conspirators include Gen. Trepoff, Gen. Count Ignatieff, Count Sherometieff, and Gen. Prince Putiatin. The plan is to provoke riots and massacres of Jews and revolutionists over as wide an area as possible in order to justify still more terrible repressions and thereby prove to the Czar that the people are not ripe for any sort of self-government.

It is a desperate game, but it is backed by many of the provincial authorities, and the support of the Governors General has been enlisted. The complicity of Interior Minister Durnovo in the conspiracy is not proved, although it is suspected.

It is understood that 50,000 members of the "Black Hundreds" in St. Petersburg are armed. The danger of an outbreak at Easter is regarded as very real.

On the other side the proletariat organizations are trying to organize another general strike.

The rumor that the officers of a regiment of the Guards met and resigned in a body was confirmed to-day. The officers belonged to the First Regiment of Artillery of the Guards.

On account of the wholesale arrests and executions in Chita numerous threats have been made against the life of Gov. Gen. Rennenkampff, and he to-day issued a proclamation in which he announced that if an attempt were made upon his life or upon the lives of members of his escort all the revolutionists now in prison would be executed within an hour. There are 600 revolutionists in prison at Chita, and sixty military executions have taken place in that city or its vicinity.

GERMAN DESPERADO CAUGHT.

Accused of Murder, and Other Crimes —Captor Will Be Well to Do.

BERLIN, March 14.—Hennig, a marriage broker, whose swindling, murders, other acts of violence, and bold escapes have given the Germans many thrills in the past three months, was captured after he had shot a policeman at Stettin to-day by a butcher, who will be made well to do owing to the aggregate of the rewards offered for Hennig's capture.

Among the crimes of which Hennig is accused are the decoying of a bartender named Giernoth to the forest of Grünewald, near Berlin, murdering him, impersonating Giernoth, hypothecating the latter's property, and shooting a Berlin policeman.

$18,000 FOR NELSON MS.

Memorandum to Captains at Trafalgar Sold by Auction in London.

LONDON, March 14.—The original draft in Lord Nelson's handwriting of the historical "General Memorandum" to his Captains at the battle of Trafalgar was sold at auction at Christie's this afternoon for $18,000.

The purchaser was a bookseller who was reported to be acting on behalf of an American collector, but he denied this and said he thought the document ought to remain in England, adding that he was ready to hand it over to the British Museum for $18,000. Otherwise he intended to sell it to the highest bidder.

The competition was very brisk. The first offer was $1,250, after which the bidding rose $500 or $1,000 on each bid.

The memorandum was supposed to have been lost, but was recently found in the possession of a private family living near Merton Abbey, the home of Lady Hamilton.

$1,000 for a Broken Leg.

Patrick Keenan of Saugerties, who was a janitor in Harlem when his wife had her leg broken in a Lenox Avenue street car accident in 1900, and who sued for $50,000, got a verdict of $1,000 in the Supreme Court yesterday. Mrs. Keenan's action for $50,000 will be begun on Monday.

JAMAICANS' ANGER SHOWN.

Legislature Refuses to Pass the Appropriation for Militia.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, March 14.—As a result of the new policy followed by Great Britain in the disposition of her naval and military forces, the Legislature to-day refused to pass the appropriation for the maintenance of the Jamaica militia.

With the exception of probably 100 men of the Artillery for garrison duty, the militia will be disbanded.

CHINESE RUSH FOR SHARES.

Great Demand for Canton—Han-Kow Railway Stock.

CANTON, March 14.—The rush of applicants for shares of the Canton—Han-Kow Railway, issued to-day, was so great that the streets were blocked with Chinese.

Soldiers were called out to maintain order.

TAFT BROTHERS GATHER.

Secretary of War Will Advise with Family About His Future.

Silent on the subject of politics and the reputed desire of the President to make him a Supreme Court Justice and thus shelve him in the next Presidential contest, William H. Taft, Secretary of War, came to New York yesterday afternoon to talk over his future with his brothers, it is understood. He is stopping at the home of his brother, Henry W. Taft, 36 West Forty-eighth Street, but will return to Washington this afternoon.

"You must excuse me, but I have nothing to say on that matter at this time," was the invariable reply made by Secretary Taft when asked about the Supreme Court appointment.

The Secretary was accompanied to the city by Capt. Frank McIntyre, U. S. A., who is one of his aides. At the Taft home also are Horace B. Taft of Watertown, Conn., and Charles B. Taft of Cincinnati, two other brothers, who are reported to have come on for a general family conference regarding the Supreme Court appointment and the political future of the Secretary. The latter said yesterday that the meeting between all of the brothers had been arranged some time ago. He would not deny the "conference" story, but he would not say anything to confirm it.

A short time after his arrival Secretary Taft went to the office of John C. Milburn at 54 Wall Street, where he discussed negotiations for the financing of another Philippine railroad, and then he went to the City Hall, where, with Mayor McClellan and Stephen V. White, he attended a meeting of the Prison Ship Martyrs' Memorial Commission. Gov. Higgins, who is the other member of the commission, could not get down from Albany.

"In order to straighten out the kinks in this matter we have decided it will be necessary to appeal to the State Legislature for relief," said Secretary Taft after the meeting. "It seems there is a clause in the Greater New York charter which prevents the city from joining with any other political body in any work, and therefore the legislation is needed before we can legally take over the city's $50,000 contribution toward the memorial."

When pressed again on the Supreme Court matter, Mr. Taft said:

"You may rest assured that I shall have nothing to say on that subject while I am in New York. I shall remain at my brother's home to-night, for that is the best hotel I know of. With my brothers I shall discuss matters that brothers ordinarily would discuss, but I shall have nothing whatever to say."

DECISION MAY HELP HADLEY.

Mr. Wollman Thinks Standard Oil Officials Must Answer Now.

Henry Wollman, New York counsel for Attorney General Hadley of Missouri, who sought to extract information from Standard Oil officials before a referee in this city, sees in the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the "Trust" cases a means by which the facts wanted may be obtained. The inquiry will be resumed in New York on March 23.

"Heretofore," said Mr. Wollman yesterday, "every time an official or employe of an accused corporation has been put on the witness stand, whether in the East or the West, he has said that the evidence sought to be adduced would render his corporation liable to the forfeiture or penalty imposed by law, and in many instances the prosecutor has stood baffled. Every refusal to answer implies guilt, but even corporations cannot be convicted on implications.

"All will be changed by these decisions; the door will be opened, and the unlawful corporations must either reform or be driven out. These decisions do not go to the extent of requiring an employe to incriminate himself personally, but he will not be allowed improperly to use this claim of privilege to shield his corporation from prosecution.

"The recent decision of the Supreme Court of Missouri in the Standard Oil case is along exactly the same lines and based on the same reasoning as the opinions handed down by the Federal Supreme Court this week. It is hardly probable, therefore, that there will be an appeal from the Missouri decision."

SAY HE PADDED THE ROLLS.

Bridge Company Superintendent Up in Court—Wife Suing Him, Too.

Samuel Dias, former Superintendent for the Williams Engineering and Construction Company, which is doing the stonework on the Blackwell's Island bridge, was before Magistrate Smith in Long Island City yesterday on the charge of padding the payroll of the company. The charge against Dias was made by Genaro Vienzo, an employe of the company, who was in a hospital for five weeks. It is alleged he was carried on the payroll by Dias all that time, the Superintendent receiving the sick man's wages.

As the plaintiff was in doubt whether to make a charge of petty larceny or take other cases of alleged roll-padding and make one charge of grand larceny, the court gave the company until to-morrow to decide what charge to make, and Dias was sent back to jail.

The prisoner's wife, Florence Dias, who is suing him for divorce, was in court. She lives in West 148th Street, Manhattan. He has a counter suit against her. Mrs. Dias asked Magistrate Smith to issue a warrant to enable her to search the premises at 364 Vernon Avenue, Long Island City, where Dias boarded. She said she wished to get her marriage certificate and some letters which are in his trunks. The Magistrate refused to issue the warrant.

NOT A THEFT OF TRANSFERS.

Magistrate Baker Denounces Arrest of a Passenger Under the Rule.

Harlemites gathered in their Police Court yesterday to keep their eyes on the working of the law in the matter of George Aneer of 111 East 127th Street, charged with larceny in taking three transfer slips from a conductor on the Eighth Avenue surface line the night before, after a transfer had been refused.

Magistrate Baker discharged Aneer on evidence that he paid his fare at 115th Street and asked for transfer at 116th. The Magistrate declared the arrest an outrage. Aneer's lawyers threaten suit against the company.

RUPTURE AT ALGECIRAS IS AGAIN THREATENED

French and German Envoys Can Make No More Concessions.

THEY AWAIT INSTRUCTIONS

All Depends on the Cabinets at Paris and Berlin—King Edward Trying to Influence France.

London Times—New York Times
Special Cable. Copyright, 1906.

ALGECIRAS, March 14.—We are constantly reminded here of the French proverb, "Les jours se suivent et ne ressemblent pas." To-day things do not look so well as yesterday. The grand principles are appearing again, and threaten to overcloud a tranquil sky.

A meeting of the Comité de Rapporteurs was held this morning, but little or no progress was made. It is felt that it might be better to suspend meetings of this kind until the conference comes to an agreement on the unsolved fundamental questions now blocking the way.

A meeting of the conference will probably be held on Saturday, and it is hoped that by that time the French and German delegates may have received instructions enabling them to continue the rapprochement.

If the version of the instructions sent by M. Rouvier to M. Revoil, as published in The Temps, is accurate, and I have reason to believe that it is not far from the truth, the maintenance of these instructions unmodified would probably lead to a rupture. In the third paragraph there is a passage which seems to preclude the possibility of an amicable arrangement. It is there said that if the police of the seaports are Franco-Spanish M. Revoil is to accept the creation of an inspection as efficacious and as strong as possible, "mais en revanche n'admettre à aucum prix qu'elle se transforme en collaboration et refuser catégoriquement que l'Inspecteur ait un commandement dans un port."

These words refer doubtless to the Casablanca proposal, and at first sight seem to exclude a condition the German delegates are known to regard as essential, but it is not impossible to turn the difficulty by an adroit diplomatic interpretation, and, indeed, means of doing so have already been suggested.

All depends on the spirit in which the Cabinets at Paris and Berlin issue their final instructions.

ALGECIRAS, March 14.—The conference has reached a peculiar stage. It is completely helpless to solve the deadlock which has arisen over the remaining details of the police and bank questions. The sessions are temporarily suspended, and no one knows when they will be resumed.

The French and German delegates are bound by their instructions, and therefore are unable to make any further concessions, and the conference, not having judicial or legislative powers, cannot settle the differences by a majority. Therefore it remains for the Governments themselves to intervene for the purpose of reaching an agreement.

FRENCH MINISTRY UPHELD.

Chamber Approves Its Declaration of Policy by a Big Majority.

PARIS, March 14.—The new Ministry presented itself to the Chamber of Deputies to-day and outlined its policy as follows:

"The Government intends to carry out the Church and State separation law with inflexible firmness and to establish the responsibility for resistance to the taking of inventories.

"Concerning Morocco, we intend to follow the policy of the preceding Ministry, hoping that the equity and dignity of our position will permit an early and satisfactory solution."

The Cabinet approves the Franco-Russian alliance.

The Chamber by a vote of 305 against 197 approved the Ministerial statement.

The Ministry held its first council at the Elysée Palace to-day. Minister of the Interior Clemenceau presented a dispatch announcing that 600 peasants had attacked a detachment of troops engaged in manoeuvres near Fougères, Department of Ille-et-Vilaine, under the mistaken idea that the troops came to take inventories of Church property under the Church and State separation law. A Captain, a Lieutenant, and ten soldiers were injured, and the detachment retired precipitately.

The Minister of Justice was ordered to prosecute the offenders.

Judgment for Federal Bank Loans.

Judgment for $218,757.06 was entered yesterday against David Rothschild, former President of the Federal Bank of New York, who is in Sing Sing Prison, in favor of Leo Schlesinger, as receiver of the Federal Bank, for money advanced by the bank to Rothschild during 1903 and 1904.

Fire on Liner, but No One Knew It.

A small fire in the mail room of the Hamburg-American liner Bluecher, in yesterday morning from Hamburg, was discovered late last Saturday afternoon, when the vessel was about 500 miles east of Nantucket. Jacob Gotner, a steward, turned in a still alarm that brought a bucket brigade. In twenty minutes the fire was out, and none of the passengers knew anything about it until next day. The damage was insignificant.

PAYMENTS SANCTIONED IS HAMILTON'S DEFENSE

Approved by New York Life Auditing Committee, He Will Say.

TRUSTEES MAY FACE SUITS

The Fowler Committee, Which Contains Three of the Auditing Committee, Favors Actions.

The defense that Andrew Hamilton, the legislative generalissimo of the New York Life Insurance Company, will make to the charge that he spent more than $1,000,000 of the company's money without rendering a proper accounting, is that practically all his expenditures were reported to and approved by the New York Life Auditing Committee, and then passed along to the full Board of Trustees.

This came out yesterday at the very time the Trustees were adopting resolutions against the Armstrong Committee's proposal to have all life insurance Trustees go out of office on Nov. 15.

Meanwhile, also, it was learned that all payments of New York Life money to political campaign funds were discussed by the Finance Committee of the company informally, and that members of this committee who had knowledge of the contributions were examined by the Fowler Investigating Committee of New York Life Trustees. This was before that committee reported on the general subject of political and legislative expenditures, putting the former up to John A. McCall with a hint that a few Trustees might know about some of them.

No names were mentioned in the Fowler committee's report, except those of John A. McCall and George W. Perkins, the latter being the medium for the payment of about $48,000 to the Republican National campaign fund in 1904.

Trustees to be Sued.

It is now understood in New York Life circles that some of the Trustees who are known to have attended meetings at which the political payments were discussed are to be included as defendants in the suits which the Fowler committee is going to recommend. Members of that committee and its counsel did not deny this last night.

An interesting situation has developed from the Hamilton payments because Hiram R. Steele of the Fowler committee has been for many years a member of the company's Auditing Committee, which passed on the Hamilton payments in one form or another, and Col. Augustus G. Paine of the investigators also was a member of the Auditing Committee up to about two years ago, as was E. B. Perkins, George Perkins's brother. The other members of the Auditing Committee in recent years have been an actuary, a controller, a secretary, an auditor, and a solicitor of the company. The members of the Finance Committee for a year preceding the insurance investigation, in which the last payment to the Republican National Committee was made, were John A. McCall, ex-officio; Alexander E. Orr, now President of the company; George A. Morrison, John S. Kennedy, John Claflin, Woodbury Langdon, E. B. Randolph, and George W. Perkins.

The resolution which the New York Life Trustees passed protesting against being legislated out of office on Nov. 15 says their opposition is based "on the ground that such course is dangerous to the best interests of the policy holders, and the vast interests at stake ought not to be subjected to the hazzard of a single election, especially at a time of great public excitement, and that the proposed legislation is an unnecessarily radical departure from the provisions of the charter of this company, which provides for a gradual change in the membership of the Board of Trustees." General Solicitor McIntosh was instructed to attend the hearing at Albany to-day and present the views of the board.

The Fowler Committee had a long meeting after the Trustees had adjourned.

The present by-laws of the New York Life Insurance Company, which were adopted Sept. 15 last, are very specific as to the duties of the Auditing Committee. The preceding set was not substantially different in this respect. The by-laws say:

> It shall be the duty of the auditing committee
>
> (a) To examine all disbursements and pass upon all bills and accounts and the current expenses of the company.
>
> (b) To check the balances, shown by the Treasurer's books daily and report in detail the following day to the President.
>
> (c) To check monthly all purchases of securities, loans on mortgages, and other investments, and make comparisons of the same with the cash book, investment record, and entries in the general ledger.
>
> (d) To verify monthly all payments, by account or otherwise, of principal, interest, dividends, or rents arising from the company's investments.
> (e) To report to the Board of Trustees monthly a resume of their work for the previous month and to the President whenever he shall call upon them to do so and they shall deem proper. All such reports must be made in writing.

From these by-laws it appears that the Auditing Committee has been charged with about as complete a supervision of the Treasury Department transactions of the company as of its general expenditures. The checking each day of the balances on the Treasurer's books and every month of sales and purchases of securities and the verification of payments of principal, interest, or dividends, places on the committee the responsibility of knowing about the securities carried through the Hanover Bank Building office which did not appear on the books of the home office. In the investigation by the Armstrong Committee no reference was made to these by-law provisions.

Equally specific also is the by-law governing the duties of the Finance Committee, which says:

> It shall be the duty of the Finance Committee to take and have a direct personal supervision over the funds of the company, to direct the mode, manner, and time of making and calling in investments; provided, however, that no loan or investment shall be made without the consent of all the members of the committee present.

George W. Perkins, in testifying before the Armstrong Committee, said that it was frequently necessary for him to make transactions for the company without consulting with other members of the Finance Committee in order to catch a momentary advantage of the stock market.

A member of the Auditing Committee of the New York Life said last night that it had been the custom of that committee to accept the statement of the officer from whose department various items of expenditure were reported without going behind his "O. K." to get at the details. Unless the suspicion of the Auditing Committee was excited, this member declared, it would do no more than see that the accounts tallied, and it was his opinion that the Hamilton payments for the most part were not reported to the Auditing Committee as such. In the Hamilton defense it will be asserted that all the Hamilton payments except the $59,310 paid out of the New York Life's participation in the United States Steel Syndicate and the $144,500 that he drew through the Paris office of the company were known to the Auditing Committee, and approved by it before being reported to the board.

It was also said yesterday that the reason why John A. McCall, when on the witness stand before the Armstrong Committee, shouldered all the responsibility was that he desired to shield some of the Trustees who had agreed with him that if there were to be any restitution they would stand by him financially. The existence of such an agreement has been hinted at from time to time since Mr. McCall's death, and it is likely to figure in the Hamilton action when the other side of the case is told. It is reported also that before Mr. McCall cashed in all his life insurance to settle the $235,000 account that Hamilton owed for, he made personal application to one of the members of the Fowler committee for a loan and was turned down.

HUGHES TO ATTEND HEARING.

Other Lawyers Who Are Going—The Agents' Side Explained.

Charles E. Hughes, counsel for the Armstrong Investigating Committee, will go to Albany to-day to attend the hearing on the committee's bills not covered in the previous hearing. The other lawyers whose appearances are certain are Samuel Untermyer, representing the Policy Holders' Committee of the New York and Mutual Life Insurance Companies; Paul D. Cravath for Thomas F. Ryan and the Equitable Life, Henry W. Taft for the Mutual Life, and James H. McIntosh, solicitor for the New York Life.

William C. Johnson, who has been conducting the campaign of the agents against the sections of the Armstrong report limiting the expenses of new business, commissions, and the volume of business to be written each year, sent out a long statement yesterday on the attitude of the agents. It declared that, although the agents were doing active and vigorous work against the sections objected to, no money was being used. Mr. Johnson's statement contains this argument against the proposed Section 98 of the insurance law limiting the expenses of new business:

"Under its provisions, taking as a basis the calculation of the highest premium now charged by any American company and using 35 as the average age, the total fund per $1,000 of insurance, from which must be met all agency expenses of every nature, would amount to $17.43. Under the terms of the section the following items would have to be met from this expense fund, before paying any compensation to either the solicitor or the general agent, namely, medical fees, the cost of inspection of new applicants, the expense of the maintenance of branch offices throughout the United States, including both rent and furniture; clerical hire at branch offices, advertising, printing, and distribution of circular literature, postage, expressage, freight, telegrams, and other expense items incurred in conducting the business; licenses for agents; occupation taxes charged by many cities, particularly in the South; taxes on new premiums, amounting in some States to 2½ per cent. of the gross premiums; (on some forms of policy this tax alone would equal 15 per cent. of the expense loading per $1,000 quoted above;) the cost of maintaining medical and agency departments at the home office, including salaries of the heads of these departments, their clerk, &c.; the cost of printing application and policy forms and the maintenance of the policy department at the home office; agency supervision and travel in the field, covering salaries and expenses of men engaged in procuring training and supervising agents.

"All these expenses would have to be met from an expense fund per $1,000, which in the case of some companies is but $16, and in the case of companies charging the highest rates is but $17.43, before the agent can receive any compensation. Is it not clear that the adoption of this section would lead to the disruption of the agency organizations of all the companies?"

A "GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT."

New York Life Campaign Gift Approved Informally, Albany Hears.

ALBANY, March 14.—"Judge" Andrew Hamilton returned to his home in this city to-night after a two days' stay in New York City. A report came here that there would be published in New York City to-morrow morning a statement that the contribution by the New York Life Insurance Company to the Republican National Committee in 1904 was duly passed upon by the Finance Committee of the Board of Trustees of the company. The statement, according to the report, said that when the Finance Committee had finished its routine business and had formally adjourned it continued in session as a "company of gentlemen" and approved the expenditure.

This statement was brought to the attention of Mr. Hamilton to-night. He said:

"I am not the one to disclose knowledge which my professional relations with the company brought to my attention. That is for the parties interested to affirm or deny."

JEROME ASKS FOR $10,000

To Carry on Insurance Inquiry—Has a Talk with C. N. Bliss.

District Attorney Jerome wrote to the Board of Estimate yesterday, asking for a special appropriation of $10,000 to carry on the investigation of the insurance scandal.

Cornelius N. Bliss, Treasurer of the Republican National Committee in 1904, and a Director of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, when that organization turned over $50,000 to the Republican campaign funds in the same year, called at the office of District Attorney Jerome yesterday and had an hour's talk with Mr. Jerome. Neither of them consented to talk with reporters about the conference, but it was understood that the topic was the giving of political contributions out of the funds of great corporations.

That very subject is now being investigated by the Grand Jury, that body having asked Judge O'Sullivan to instruct them as to the circumstances under which the disposal of the funds of such corporations by their executive officers for political purposes may be regarded as constituting a larceny. Next Tuesday has been set for the reply by the Judge to that question.

Mr. Rand will be on hand then, it was learned yesterday, partly to meet the arguments of the District Attorney, if permitted by the court to do so, and also to move that the court allow him to examine the minutes of the Grand Jury as far as they bear on the indictment of President Frederick A. Burnham, Second Vice President George D. Eldridge, and Vice President George Burnham, Jr., of the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Company.

To clear up the calendar and make way for the proceedings of more serious nature than ordinary routine trials, which are expected to materialize in the next two months, there will be two terms of the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court next month. Justice Dowling will continue the March term as long as there is work waiting to be disposed of. Justice O'Gorman will hold the April term of the court. Both terms will be devoted exclusively to the trial of murder cases. There are now thirty-one persons in the Tombs awaiting trial on that charge.

The new courtroom fitted up for Justice Dowling on the top floor of the Criminal Courts Building has been furnished in such a way that it can be turned into a Grand Jury room.

CANNON TRIES TO FORCE HOUSE INTO OBEDIENCE

Speaker Determined to Amend Statehood Bill or to Kill It.

BUILDINGS BILL IS HIS CLUB

Using It Despite the Fact That the President Has Agreed to the Senate's Action.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—A situation that is unprecedented has arisen over the Statehood bill. Angry at his defeat, regardless of the mutterings in his own party, deserted by the Administration, Speaker Cannon is undertaking to force the original Arizona-New Mexico bill upon not only a House that does not want it, but a Senate that has rejected it.

To-morrow's conference or caucus of the House Republicans is called for the purpose of ascertaining whether the Speaker can compel them to stand by him in trying to make the Senate accept the bill. If he fails in this purpose, it is declared by House leaders, the Speaker will strangle the bill by sending it to the Committee on Territories, and seeing that it does not emerge from that body.

Hardly anybody in the House except the Speaker and his lieutenants favored the original bill uniting Arizona and New Mexico in one State over the protest of Arizona. There were enough Republicans openly against it to beat it. The House machine gradually whipped enough of these into line to pass the measure, after having introduced a rule which prevented any amendments from being offered.

The Senate has restored the bill to the shape desired originally by a majority of the House. If the House voted on it according to personal preferences, the Senate bill would go through by a great majority. Nevertheless, there is a good chance that the speaker will make the House put Arizona and New Mexico back into the bill.

Never has the Speaker been so thoroughly determined. On every hand come protests, but they are all unheeded. The President, who originally favored the House bill and aided the Speaker to put it through, has accepted the Senate bill admitting Oklahoma, and is said to have expressed himself as surprised at the Speaker's insistence.

The Speaker received telegrams to-day from individuals, commercial houses, and commercial bodies from as far East as New York and as far West as Arizona, urging him to let Oklahoma come in and let Arizona stay out. These appeals have caused him only to take a little tighter grip on his cigar and tip it up to a little higher angle, the signs with him of anger and determination.

Some of his lieutenants have cooled toward his Statehood policy and wish they were well out of the trouble. An ugly situation is looked for, not only between House and Senate, but in the Republican ranks in the House. Yet the Speaker has gone his way, holding up the plum tree in one hand and the big stick in the other.

Every doubtful man is being made clearly to understand that the Public Building bill will not be reported until after the Statehood line-up, and that there will be no "pork" for him unless he is good. Old spectators of legislation here say that they have never seen anything like the present use of the whip.

The only explanation offered is that the creation of one State out of Arizona and New Mexico has become a personal matter with Mr. Cannon, and that the very difficulty he had in forcing it upon a reluctant and hostile House has angered him.

The Senate suspected that the Speaker would try the plan of strangling the Oklahoma bill in the Territories Committee in case he could not have his way, and undertook to prevent it by not increasing any of the appropriations made in the original bill. They thought that under the House rules the bill could not be sent to the Territories Committee under such circumstances. One amendment, however, was inserted granting certain lands to the State of Oklahoma in case they proved to be mineral lands, and the Speaker asserts that this comes within the definition of the rule sufficiently to enable him to send the whole bill to the committee.

That this is a stretch of even the Speaker's authority, however, is indicated by the reluctance with which Mr. Cannon contemplates the step. He and his lieutenants assert that he has the power, but that it will be used only as a last resort. He will not undertake to prevent the House from voting on the bill unless he finds positively that it will not vote the way he wants it to.

PARSONS'S TESTIMONY ENDS.

He Submits a Map to Support His Plan for a Sea-Level Canal.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—William Barclay Parsons to-day concluded his testimony before the Senate Canals Committee in support of the majority report of the Board of Consulting Engineers, which advocates the construction of a sea-level canal. At the request of the committee he prepared and submitted a map of the hill where the minority purposes to construct a flight of three locks.

This map will be used in confronting the minority engineers with the statements made by Messrs. Bates and Parsons, that the lock plan submitted by the minority contemplates locks only 790 feet long if equipped with safety gates, and that the locks will in consequence be too short for ships of the largest size.

Alfred Noble, one of the signers of the minority report, will testify to-morrow.

A WESTERN UNION DEFICIT.

Abandonment of Race-Track Service One Cause of Falling Off.

The statement of the Western Union Telegraph Company for the quarter to end March 31, made public yesterday, shows that the estimated net revenue for the period amounts to $1,500,000, compared with $1,546,087 for the corresponding quarter in 1905. Interest on the bonded debt called for $331,300, an increase of $30,500, and $1,217,021 was paid in dividends. These payments resulted in a deficit for the quarter amounting to $48,321, compared with a surplus of $28,266 for the first quarter of last year. The earnings for the current quarter are, of course, partly estimated and the deficit reported may appear less when the actual figures are compiled.

The net revenue of the company, which in recent months has been unfavorably affected by the abandonment of the Western Union's special race track service, has, quite apart from this cause, shown decreases for some years. Last year's earnings of $1,546,087 for this quarter compare with $1,737,426 in 1904 and $1,842,269 in 1903. The total surplus of the company at present, after deducting the estimated deficit for the current quarter, amounts to $16,738,256, compared with $15,793,259 at the corresponding date in 1905.

Alling & Co. Reorganized.

A reorganization of Alling & Co., who have been jewelry manufacturers for fifty years, was announced yesterday in their office, 180 Broadway. Frank M. Welch, the President and manager, has sold his interest and retired. He is succeeded by Matthias Stratton, who has been the Secretary. Other officers and Directors are F. H. Buhler, Secretary and Treasurer; Ms. Emma D. Alling and W. A. Seidler, Directors. The company's factory is at Newark. The capital stock is $150,000, paid.

To Continue as C. C. Shayne & Co.

According to C. C. Shayne's will, notice of which was published in THE TIMES last Tuesday, the decision as to whether the business should be continued was left to Mrs. C. C. Shayne. It is now stated that the business will be continued under the same management as heretofore and under the same firm name—C. C. Shayne & Co.

MEDICAL CARE IN SCHOOLS.

Dr. Darlington Praises System Developed by Supt. Maxwell.

Health Commissioner Darlington declares that, although New York was not the first city to undertake medical inspection of school children it has to-day the most comprehensive and highly developed system of any city in the world. He makes this statement in an article on "The System of Medical School Inspection in the City of New York," contributed to the annual report of City Superintendent Maxwell.

Owing to the printers' strike Maxwell's report was published without the usual appendices. These were submitted to the Board of Education yesterday.

One hundred and fifty physicians were appointed medical inspectors in 1897, and each assigned to the supervision of from three to five schools. The inspector examined each morning all children sent to him by teachers as possible sources of contagion. Six oculists were appointed in June, 1902, to make a special examination of the eyes of children, with particular reference to trachoma. In September, 1902, in addition to the morning inspections, each classroom was visited once a week by the inspector. In the first month 10,567 children were excluded. To limit the number of exclusions as far as consistent with the control and elimination of the contagion, a corps of nurses was appointed, with a supervising nurse, in December, 1902.

Each nurse is assigned a group of schools, which she visits every morning. She treats each child having a card with a diagnosis of its disease, and returns the child to its classroom. The doctor inspects the progress of the case each week. The child loses only a minimum of time from the classroom.

After the duties in the school the nurse obtains from a clerk a list of exclusions, and visits such children in their homes. Statistics show that 98 per cent. of the children that would have been excluded from school are able to continue attendance without exposing any of the associated children to the dangers of infection.

Since March 29, 1905, the routine inspection has been made by the medical inspector only once each month. The nurse makes the weekly inspection, and refers all suspected cases to the inspector, who makes the diagnosis.

Supplementary to the work in the schools the medical inspectors obtain each day from the principal the names of all children who have been absent for three or more days for unassigned cause. These children are visited in their homes, and a large number of unreported cases of contagious disease have been discovered.

ATTACKS CIVIL SERVICE LAW.

Grosvenor Declares Life Tenure of Clerks Should Be Abolished.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Sharp discussion of the civil service law was had in the House to-day. It came up over the proposition of the Committee on Appropriations, submitted in the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial bill, to reduce the pay of superannuated clerks and ultimately force their retirement.

Gen. Grosvenor delivered the most notable speech of the day. He declared that in his judgment the worst fate that could befall a young man was to become a Government clerk. It was to stifle ambition, to throttle incentive, and to turn the employe into a mere drudge whose only hope was to cling to the dull routine of his desk for life.

He said the evil of keeping incompetent men in office must be uprooted. It cannot be cured by lopping off a few twigs at the top. This is not the cry of the spoilsman. It is not for the repeal of the civil service law. It is a single, simple idea. Repeal the life-tenure feature of the Government service and you will cure all the evils."

$90 FOR A HAWTHORNE WORK.

Rare First Edition of a Schoolbook—Jay Gould Relic Sold.

One of the rarest of first editions of Nathaniel Hawthorne's books was sold to Frank Maier for $90 at Anderson's auction rooms yesterday. It was "Peter Parley's Universal History on the Basis of Geography," square 12mo, original cloth, gilt, Boston, 1837. It is a clean copy, but the sub title is torn and three of the fly leaves are missing. As this work was published for the use of school children, who, as a rule, handled it roughly, a perfect copy is almost impossible to get. Only two other copies have brought higher prices, the Bishop Hunt copy in 1904, $140, and the Arnold copy in 1901, $100.

A first edition of John Hay's "Castilian Days," 8vo, Boston, 1871, sold for $11. It was a presentation copy from the author to John A. Littlefield, and has an original tinted portrait of Hay and an autograph note.

Jay Gould's History of Delaware County, N. Y., 8vo, Roxbury, 1856, sold for $11, and "Le Costume Historique," by M. A. Racinet, for $81.

DARLINGTON ACTS ON SMOKE.

Sixty Firms Ordered to Abate Nuisance—Arrests May Follow.

Health Commissioner Darlington issued his ultimatum to those responsible for the smoke nuisance yesterday. In addition to the twenty firms which had been notified previously that they must obey the law communications were sent out by the board yesterday to forty more. Dr. Darlington says he is paying as much attention as possible to the soft coal smoke problem, but owing to the prevalence of many diseases occupying the time of his force he has been unable to do justice to the situation.

"We are going right ahead issuing orders and preparing to make the reinspections required at the end of five days in each case," he said. "We are after the smokers in earnest, and will abate this nuisance. We can't cause arrests or appeal to the courts until the second inspection has been made and a further respite of two days given. But at the expiration of eight days we have power to act under the general authority delegated to the board."

MOTHER AND CHILD.

Let the mother take Scott's Emulsion for the two; it never fails to benefit them both. One can eat for two, but nourishing two is a different thing. It calls for a degree of internal strength that the average woman lacks. People of luxury are not very strong by habit; overworked people are weak in some functions from exhaustion or their surroundings. Scott's Emulsion can be depended upon to overcome such conditions. It is a wonderful food for a mother and child.

MAILS TO SICK WOMAN NEWS SHE'S A WIDOW

THE FUNERAL INTERRUPTED

Neighbor Rushes to Tell Mourners Woman Is Going Crazy—Attempt to Punish Offender.

All the white lies told by the friends of Mrs. John Christianson of 40 Whittlesey Avenue, West Orange, in an effort to keep from her the news of her husband's death in Newark on Saturday, have been made of no avail by the act of a person who sent her newspaper clippings containing an account of the killing of her husband and the efforts to keep the news from her. The woman was not able to read the articles before they were taken from her, but, in the moment she had them, gleaned enough to realize that she was a widow, and that her daughter, born on Sunday, was fatherless.

"To think he never saw his little girl!" moaned the woman before she lapsed into the delirium which may either kill her or leave her a physical and mental wreck.

Mrs. Christianson until yesterday morning was making good progress toward recovery, but is now in a most serious condition. Deputy County Physician M. Herbert Simmons of Orange has been notified of the facts. No effort will be spared to find out who sent the clippings. Punishment will be inflicted if a provision of the law to fit the case can be found.

Mrs. Thomas Reese, a neighbor, went to the door and received the letter bearing a Montclair postmark. Thinking no evil, she carried it into the room where the mother lay and handed it to her. The sick woman broke the seal and found a sheet of paper on which were pasted two newspaper clippings, describing minutely the way in which her husband was crushed to death by a heavy piece of machinery and the efforts that were made to keep the news from her until she should grow stronger. Mrs. Christianson came to this country from Denmark but a year ago, and does not read English with facility, but she recognized her own name, that of her husband, the word "dead," and some other words she was familiar with.

She gave a shriek which brought Mrs. Reese back to the room on the run.

"Read this to me quick," she cried. "My husband's name is there, and it says something about 'dead.' You have been deceiving me all along. He has not come home to me and our babe because he cannot; he is dead, and you must tell me all about it; I must get up and go to him."

Mrs. Reese left the house to get assistance. Over on the hill, a quarter of a mile away in Rosedale Cemetery, the Rev. Dr. Petersen was saying the commitment service as Christianson's body was being lowered into the grave. She rushed in among the mourners with the news that some one had sent the story to Mrs. Christianson and that she was going crazy. Dr. Petersen hastily closed the service and then went over to the house. He went to the room of the sick woman and as gently as he could told her the whole story. She said little to him other than that she had suspected, since Monday, that something terrible had befallen her husband. Alfred Outtrup of Orange has been collecting funds for the relief of the family.

MR. AND MRS. HOFMANN HERE.

Pianist's Wife Comes to Get Her Boy from George P. Eustis.

Mrs. Josef Hofmann, wife of the pianist, and divorced wife of George Peabody Eustis, arrived in New York on the Hamburg-American liner Bluecher yesterday morning. She has come to try to get possession of her little son, George Peabody Eustis, Jr., who arrived here recently from Venice with his father.

The boy, who is only six years old, is in custody of Mrs. Hofmann's attorney, Joseph Larocque, Jr., having been taken away from the father on order of Supreme Court Justice Blanchard until Mrs. Hofmann arrived and had a chance to prove her right to the custody of the boy.

Mrs. Hofmann would not discuss the case yesterday, and with her husband, who came over with her, was among the first to leave the pier. Mr. Hofmann said that as soon as his wife proved her right to have the boy they would return to Europe.

FIRM'S OFFICE BLOWN UP TO AVENGE UNION'S LOSS

Dynamite Wrecks Clark, Chapin & Bushnell's Grocery.

NON-UNION MEN ASSAULTED

Drivers Who Replaced Strikers Last December Attacked When Police Guards Are Withdrawn.

Although the police had been notified of impending trouble as the result of threats made against non-union teamsters employed by the wholesale grocery firm of Clark, Chapin & Bushnell, 177 and 179 Duane Street, and, although the establishment was guarded by detectives and police, dynamite was exploded in the building early yesterday. The entire shipping department was destroyed by the explosion. The dynamite was thrown through a door opening on the street, the wire screen to which was wrenched off on Monday night and the glass panel broken.

The firm stood out against the strike of the truck drivers last December, and refused to meet the demands of Val Hoffman, a walking delegate of Local 105 of the International Teamsters' Association. As long as the trucks of the company were protected by police there was no violence. When it was thought that the strike was broken and the non-union men were there to stay, the firm thought that, as far as it was concerned, there was no longer a strike. The guards were taken off the trucks.

Then began, according to E. F. Bushnell, a member of the firm, and the records of the police stations and the hospitals, a series of attacks on the men who had taken the places of the strikers.

"Ten of our men have been knocked in the head," said Mr. Bushnell yesterday, "and one of them lies dying in Hudson Street Hospital. We are paying his wages to his wife, who will soon be a widow, we fear. Men climbed on his truck under the pretense of taking a ride and used cotton hooks on him, beating him until he was unconscious, and then throwing his body in the street."

The use of dynamite yesterday seems to have been deliberately planned. In the mass of wreckage in the building there is not a single trace of pipe or wire that might give cause for a theory of accident. After the continual assaults on its drivers and the discovery of the broken window screen and pane of glass, the firm reported to the police of the Leonard Street Station that it feared further violence.

Two detectives were stationed in dark corners opposite the building in Duane Street, and a policeman was kept on the next corner, fifty feet away. The detectives were taken from their post at midnight, but the policeman was relieved by another at that hour. The first this policeman knew of the presence of the dynamiters was the report of the explosion. There followed the clatter of glass as the panes of doors and windows crashed to the sidewalk. He rushed to the building and found the front wrecked.

The explosion set off an automatic alarm, and the Fire Department arrived, only to find the shipping office on the ground floor blown to pieces, the ceiling blown out, and the office above wrecked. A gap, three feet by fifteen, was blown in the ceiling, heavy rafters and boards being splintered like matchsticks.

The police of the Leonard Street Station got to work on the case immediately. One man was arrested yesterday afternoon. He gave his name as Charles Bauman, said he was a driver, and that he lived at 143 Hudson Street. He is being held on suspicion of having been implicated in the dynamiting while the detectives continue their investigation.

"This firm," said Mr. Bushnell yesterday, "has been in business in New York for sixty years. I have grown up as a member of it, and my people are of the 1776 class who fought for their independence. I intend to fight for mine despite the fact that I know my life is in danger, and it has been threatened.

"Industrially this city is in the most desperate condition it has been in forty years. One of our men was knocked down and kicked in the stomach because he chose to work for us, and his assailant was fined $25 and five days in jail in Justice Deuel's court. Another got sixty days for a similar assault. Now they are using dynamite."

The firm, in a statement to the public, said:

"The persons who have committed these outrages, as far as we know, are not men who were formerly employed by us, but emissaries of the union. The police have been working, we believe, faithfully in this matter, and until we withdrew the uniformed men from our trucks, believing the strike to be practically over, we were comparatively free from serious interference."

Mr. Bushnell said he was convinced that the lawless element in the labor unions was getting political support to the end that the administration of Mayor McClellan, the police work of Gen. Bingham, and the administration of justice through Mr. Jerome might be disparaged.

"Outside of local causes," said Mr. Bushnell, "I believe that if any one man more than any other can be blamed for the labor outrages of to-day that man is Theodore Roosevelt. He has given the hoodlum element in labor circles the swelled head by interfering in coal strikes and by consorting with strike leaders."

SAW A LATER TODD WILL.

Radcliffe Swears That in It Mrs. Todd Made Her Daughter Executrix.

Testimony that Mrs. Margretta Todd, who was found dead on the tracks of the Reading Railroad, near Philadelphia, in October last, left a will later than that which has been offered for probate, was produced yesterday by the contestants before Surrogate Fitzgerald. The will at issue was drawn in 1902, and the executor is Ingersoll Lockwood, who was Mrs. Todd's legal adviser for years.

Lockwood testified on Tuesday that Mrs. Todd had gone so far toward the execution of a later instrument as to have it partly drawn. He said, however, that it was never finished or attested.

Finley W. Radcliffe, Vice President of the Stephen Merritt Burial Company, testified that on the day Mrs. Todd's body was brought from Philadelphia, Lockwood called on him and said the body was to be cremated.

Radcliffe said he demurred, and asked Lockwood if there was a will. Lockwood showed him a will, he declared, executed in 1903, (a year later than the one subject of the contest,) in which Mrs. Tousey was named as executrix. He added that Lockwood was not named as an executor.

George W. Amory, former manger of the Von Hoffman, testified that in June, 1903, Mrs. Todd told him that her will had been stolen. He also said that after Lockwood left the Von Hoffman he entered into correspondence with Lockwood at Mrs. Todd's suggestion.

Got Divorce Four Months Ago—Fiancee Not ex-Wife's Intimate Friend.

PHILADELPHIA, March 14.—Daniel H. Carstairs of Carstairs, McCall & Co., wholesale liquor dealers, will marry, in the course of a few weeks, Miss Howard of 5,125 Pulaski Avenue, Germantown.

Mr. Carstairs obtained a divorce less than four months ago from Mrs. Louise O. Carstairs. Mr. Carstairs said to-day that while Miss Howard had been entertained by his former wife at Red Gate, his residence in Old School Lane, Germantown, the two were by no means intimate friends.

Tailors Buy Silver Dollar Saloon.

The old "Silver Dollar" Smith saloon and the building in which it has been run for years at 64 Essex Street, were sold yesterday to Roth & Perkowitz of 409 Grand Street. The firm will hereafter turn out clothes instead of drinks from the place. The first paper dollars taken in by the old proprietor, framed and hung on the walls, go with the building. The decorative silver dollars long ago disappeared.

METROPOLITAN INQUIRY STARTED BY STATE BOARD

Railroad Commission to Look Into $15,000,000 Note Issue.

TAKE UP I. G. WALL'S CHARGES

He Hinted That Insiders Benefitted—Scrutiny to be Thorough—Vreeland Satisfied.

BUFFALO, March 14.—The State Railroad Commissioners, in secret session to-day, decided to make an investigation of the complaint made by Isidore G. Wall, President of the Prospect Heights Citizens' Association of Brooklyn, that the sworn statements of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company for 1903-4 do not account for $4,500,000 which was charged against the company for commission and discounts on $15,000,000 3 per cent. notes when only $3,465,000 notes were issued. Mr. Wall wanted to know if "insiders" formed a syndicate to secure the $4,500,000 from the treasury of the company for themselves.

The Controller of the company, in reply to the charges, said that Mr. Wall referred to the 3 per cent. debenture notes of the New York City Railway Company, of which there were $15,000,000 par value authorized and which were subscribed for the Metropolitan Securities Company at 70 per cent. The discount of 30 per cent. on these notes has never been charged against the Metropolitan Street Railway Company. The profit to the Metropolitan Securities Company, amounting to $2,707,200, he said, was taken up by that company when the notes were redeemed, and the item appears in its books as "profit on New York City Railway Company's debenture notes redeemed."

The board asked the Attorney General to take charge of the investigation and set the hearing for next Wednesday morning at Albany.

Commissioner Baker said the investigation would be most thorough. Every one who may be able to throw any light upon the transaction will be called. The whole matter will be in charge of the Attorney General, who will represent the State board.

Secretary John S. Kennedy and A. L. Judson, expert accountants of the State Railroad Commission, left for Albany with all the papers in the case. They will be given to Attorney General Mayer.

President H. H. Vreeland of the New York City Railway Company made this statement yesterday:

"The investigation ordered by the State Railroad Commission in no way involves the merger, but simply relates to the single transaction referred to in the letter from Isidor G. Wall to the State Railroad Commission. That transaction has been fully explained in a letter by our Controller to the State Railroad Commission. The explanation, however, does not seem to have been accepted by Mr. Wall, and I am very glad that the matter is to be investigated by the Railroad Commission in order that it may be fully understood."

JURY-FIXING INQUIRY.

Investigation Resolution in Senate Goes Over Temporarily.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 14.—The scandal attendant upon the disclosures in New York that jurors had been bribed and impersonated by employes of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company was brought before the Senate to-day by Senator Marks of New York, who introduced a resolution calling for an inquiry by the Governor.

When the resolution was introduced Senator Raines objected to immediate consideration and the resolution was tabled under the rule. It will be brought up again on the first call for resolutions.

TRUST SUFFERED IN SILENCE.

Freight Agent Says Public Was Too Inflamed for Standard to Protest.

KANSAS CITY, March 14.—The Inter-State Commerce Commission resumed its hearing here to-day into the charges of rate discrimination made by the Kansas Oil Producers' Association in favor of the Standard Oil Company.

J. R. Koontz, General Freight Agent of the Santa Fé Railway, was questioned about the meeting of Traffic Managers in St. Louis in June, 1904, at which the oil rate east from Kansas points was raised from 10 cents to 17 cents a hundred pounds. No record of the proceedings of the meeting was kept.

Mr. Koontz, cross-examined by Thomas R. Morrow, attorney for the Santa Fé Railway, was asked:

"How do the railroads look upon the oil freight rates established by the Kansas Legislature?"

"As arbitrarily established without the railroads having been given a chance to be heard."

"Why has there been no assault by the railroads upon the Kansas rate?" Mr. Koontz was asked.

"Largely in deference to public sentiment. The officials of the Santa Fé and, I think, of other Kansas roads, think that the Kansas rates would have been contested long before this, but in view of the agitation and inflamed condition of the public mind, the policy of the railroads has been to submit quietly to the unreasonable rates forced upon them by the Legislature of Kansas."

C. A. Stannard, an oil producer of Emporia, Kan., testified that no Kansas oil could be sold out of that State by independent producers because the rate beyond Kansas prohibited it, but if the Kansas maximum freight rate was extended into other States there would be a good market for all the oil Kansas could produce. He gave his experiences with the railroads in shipping oil in his own tank cars. He said his cars were sidetracked and lost and broken by heavy switching. He said, however, that he did not believe the railroad officers sanctioned this sort of work.

CITY BREVITIES.

In addition to contributions for the same purpose previously acknowledged, THE TIMES has received a check for $5 from "M. A. R." for Mrs. Matthew McDermott, whose husband died while at work in the New York Central Station excavation.

The Grand Jury is likely to return several indictments to-day against Robert H. Spriggs and Sallie Bennett. The Bennett woman was identified yesterday by Sergt. Edward Armstrong as the woman who was sent to Auburn Prison in 1888 for felonious assault.

Robert P. Kidd of 809 East 138th Street, a clerk in a dry goods house in White Street, was found on the Post Road at White Plains early yesterday with fifteen stab wounds in his throat and breast. According to his own statement the wounds were self-inflicted in a fit of remorse. He will recover.

Discussion of school matters was peremptorily postponed yesterday by the Board of Education out of respect to the memory of Commissioner Henry Schmitt, who died on Tuesday.

Congressman John J. Fitzgerald of Brooklyn will speak on "The Life Passage of a Bill" at De La Salle Institute Hall in West Fifty-ninth Street to-morrow evening.

A Coroner's jury decided yesterday that Joseph J. Livingston of 326 Tenth Avenue was killed accidentally by an Eleventh Avenue train on Feb. 27, and censured the New York Central Railroad for not providing safeguards at the street crossing.

HEARST LEADERS RESENT ENDING RECOUNT FIGHT

Say It Has Been Dropped for New Ambitions.

LEGAL REMEDIES UNTRIED

Tammany and Hearst Men Both Express Astonishment at the McClellan Boom Launched in Mississippi.

Trouble is brewing in the Hearst Municipal Ownership camp. Several of the leaders in last Fall's independent movement are expressing discontent because William R. Hearst and his immediate advisers seem to have dropped their efforts to obtain a recount of the vote cast in the last Mayoralty contest, and are devoting themselves instead to the coming State campaign and the Governorship.

The dissatisfaction was held in check until this week, when it was stirred up by the action of Attorney General Mayer, who, in his communication to the Legislature, stated that Mr. Hearst had made no application to him to begin any legal proceedings for a recount, and that Mr. Hearst therefore had by no means exhausted the legal remedies available to him to prove in court, if possible, his charge that he had been elected Mayor, but defrauded of the office.

"The Attorney General hit the nail squarely on the head," declared one of the Hearst supporters yesterday. "I supported Hearst for Mayor, and I worked hard for him. When the election was over, Hearst pledged himself to leave no stone unturned to prove that he was elected Mayor and to gain his seat. He went at things as though he meant it, but now, instead of sticking to that promise and doing everything in his power to gain the Mayoralty, he has allowed himself to be swung aside by his advisers, and is concentrating every energy on the State campaign.

"He wants the Governorship, and he believes that he will have a better chance of being elected if he goes around the State proclaiming himself defrauded of the New York Mayoralty than if he were to make a legal fight for the Mayor's chair. He will soon find that the Municipal Ownership League will be split in two by such tactics."

Hearst men and Tammany Hall men alike were astonished yesterday by the launching of a McClellan Presidential boom in Mississippi by ex-Judge Alton B. Parker, who has been attorney for the Mayor in the election contest brought by Mr. Hearst. Among both Tammany men and Hearstites the belief was expressed that Mr. Parker had sprung the McClellan boom as part of a carefully planned move to get that nomination for McClellan, or, possibly, for the purpose of getting McClellan in line for the Governorship this Fall.

Mayor McClellan declined to make any comment on the Parker-made boom when he was questioned yesterday.

"I am not discussing political matters in any way," he said.

"You used to say that Judge Parker possessed sound judgment on political matters," suggested a reporter. "Do you still think so?"

"That is an attempt to draw me into a political discussion," replied the Mayor.

At Tammany Hall Charles F. Murphy declined to make any comment on the McClellan boom.

"It is too early by far to discuss the next Presidential contest," said Mr. Murphy.

GRIEF FOR SISTER KILLS.

Dr. Burgh, Fortune Gone, Dies Alone of Broken Heart.

Grief over the death of his sister Sophia, two years ago, hastened the end of Dr. Thomas Burgh, a well-known dentist, who was found dead in his apartments at 416 West Fifty-seventh Street yesterday. Although it is believed that death was caused by a general collapse, his friends declare that a broken heart was the cause, for he never recovered from the loss of his devoted sister. He abandoned a lucrative practice, squandered his fortune, and became a recluse. Friends did their utmost to help him, but no amount of pleading had the slightest effect. He died as he had lived for two years, shut off from the world, waiting for the day when he would join his sister in death.

Only a few days ago Dr. Burgh sent a letter to a friend, declaring that the end was not far off. William Weeks of Newark, a life-long friend, went to Dr. Burgh's office yesterday, fearing something had happened, forced open the door, and found Burgh dead in bed. Ambulance Surgeon Collie of Roosevelt Hospital said the dentist had been dead several hours of heart disease. An autopsy will be held to-day.

For twenty-one years both Burgh and his sister occupied the West Fifty-seventh Street apartment. He amassed a fortune, and he and his sister lived in style. Both had had love affairs, but their devotion to each other was so great that they remained together. After his sister's death Dr. Burgh would only treat the poor who were unable to afford paying a dentist. Dr. Burgh came of an English family of nobility and arrived in this country when he was nine years old. He fought in the civil war. Dr. Joseph Rushton, assistant rector of St. Timothy's Church, said last night that the dentist once told him that his name was not Burgh, but that the name was given him by the family who brought him from England.

FOOD.

GRAND TO LIVE
And the Last Laugh Is Always the Best.

Y "Six months ago I would have laughed at the idea that there could be anything better for a table beverage than coffee," writes an Ohio woman—"now I laugh to know there is."

"Since childhood I drank coffee as freely as any other member of the family. The result was a puny, sickly girl, and as I grew into womanhood I did not gain in health, but was afflicted with heart trouble, a weak and disordered stomach, wrecked nerves, and a general breaking down, till last Winter, at the age of 38 I seemed to be on the verge of consumption. My friends greeted me with 'How bad you look! What a terrible color!' and this was not very comforting.

The doctors and patent medicines did me absolutely no good. I was thoroughly discouraged.

"Then I gave up coffee and commenced Postum Food Coffee. At first I didn't like it, but after a few trials and following the directions exactly, it was grand. It was refreshing and satisfying. In a couple of weeks I noticed a great change. I became stronger, my brain grew clearer, I was not troubled with forgetfulness as in coffee times, my power of endurance was more than doubled. The heart trouble and indigestion disappeared and my nerves became steady and strong.

"I began to take an interest in things about me. Housework and home-making became a pleasure. My friends have marveled at the change and when they inquire what brought it about, I answer 'Postum Food Coffee, and nothing else in the world.'" Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

NO CONNECTION WITH ANY OTHER STORE
THE BIG STORE A CITY IN ITSELF
SIEGEL COOPER CO.
SIXTH AVE. MEET ME AT THE FOUNTAIN 18th & 19th STS.
NEW YORK.

Do You Remember Tuesday's Weather?

It began with something that looked very much like a blizzard and ended in a flat, gray, chilly wretchedness. Exactly the kind of weather that homes were made for.

And yet we had that day one of the very largest crowds this store ever held outside of the Christmas season; with a corresponding sum total of business done.

The occasion was the "Tuesday Bargain List," recently made a feature of our week. We refer to it not so much to gloat over a big day, or to rhapsodize over the power of our bargains, but to call attention to the obvious confidence that the public gives to our newspaper promises.

It was not a day to go shopping about or for "looking" or for trying experiments. It took a pretty strong reason to bring a woman downtown or in from out of town Tuesday, and the stores that had sins of exaggeration and deception to pay for suffered for them that day.

We regard our surprising sale figures as a public vote of confidence in our advertising. This is none the less gratifying because we feel that we deserve it.

This is known as a "popular priced" store—and we glory in it. It is known, better and better each day, as a "good style, good quality" store—and we glory in that. But above all, it is known and shall be maintained as a TRUTHFUL store—and in that we find the greatest pride of all.

Women's Spring Coats.
Another Amazing Offer.

You will find coats exactly like these in another store on this very street priced at $15. We offer the identical coat, made from the same choice of the same materials, in the same way, and made quite as well, for $8.75.

The materials are the very finest qualities of English tweeds in the patterns most desired to-day—plaids, checks, stripes and mixtures, in the light shades typical of the Spring fashion.

The picture is drawn from the coat itself, and shows the general style and effect.

Fifty-inch Coat—loose box style, with velvet collar and buttons. Leg-o'-mutton sleeves, double-breasted front, slits at bottom. These Coats were themselves made to sell at $15. It is only the most extraordinary kind of chance that permits us to offer them at.......... 8.75

(Siegel Cooper Store, 2d Floor, Front, 18th St.)

A Voile Suit at $14.75
That Cannot Be Duplicated for Less Than $25.

You know when we say a thing it's so—and we tell you that this suit cannot ordinarily be matched for less than $25 unless by some retailer who has temporarily and desperately cut prices on a few of his own suits to meet our astonishing figure. And even then he couldn't give you the style of this. It's exclusive with us.

It's a silk-lined Voile suit—most women know what such a suit must ordinarily cost before they even look at it. The model is very simple, but extremely effective. A smartly cut Eton jacket with straps and braiding. Collar has edging of moire. Three-quarter sleeves, stylish skirt with bias folds at bottom. Entire suit silk lined, with ruffled girdle, gored circular flounce on drop skirt. We had a small lot of these a week ago, and sold one to every woman who looked. This lot is larger, but it won't last over to-day at $14.75

New Lawn and Batiste Waists
At $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $1.95 and Upward.

At popular prices we show more Waists, prettier Waists and better values than any other store seems to be able to accomplish. But that's our way and our pride.

You might as well try to count the telegraph poles from here to Buffalo on a fast express train as to try to keep track of the styles that come and go through our stocks. But here are two that seem to us especially pretty and low-priced:

Materials are Sheer White Lawn and Batiste. The waists are made open front and back in the smartest new long and short sleeve models.

Embellished with tucking, side plaits and hemstitching, effectively designed and trimmed with insertings of Val. Lace and Swiss Embroidery. Others have panels of Openwork Swiss Embroidery and Lace Inserting; also with entire front of all-over embroidery.

MARCH 1906

SOCIALIST PARADERS HISS CIVIC FEDERATION

Also Jeer the Names of John Mitchell and Gompers.

2,000 MARCHERS IN LINE

Union Square Meeting Held to Protest Against the Imprisonment of Western Miners.

Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell, and the Civic Federation were hissed and jeered last night at a mass meeting of Socialists and members of the Industrial Workers of the World at Union Square. The meeting, which was preceded by parades, was held under the auspices of the Industrial Workers, and the orators preached the doctrine of force in resisting what they called the "lawlessness of the master classes."

There were three parades, one starting from Rutgers Square, another from Second Avenue and Third Street, and the third from Third Avenue and Forty-fourth Street. The marchers carried banners on which were their sentiments. When the paraders met at Union Square they furnished probably 2,000 listeners for the speakers.

The prime object of the gathering was to protest against the treatment accorded the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners in Idaho and Colorado. Among the organizations represented were the Cloakmakers' Union, the Hat and Cap Makers' Union, the Magyar Socialist Society, and the Social Democrats.

"Our brothers must not be murdered," read the inscription on the biggest banner in the Rutgers Square division. On other banners and transparencies were these inscriptions: "Capital stops not at murder," "Labor, the Atlas of the World," "Capitalist Lynch Law Reaches for the Lives of Our Brothers," "Save Them, for They Refused to Sell Out," and "Moyer's Crime —He Organized the Miners."

The meeting was called to order from the porch of the Park Department's building by John T. Vaughn, a member of the Industrial Council of New York. He introduced James Riley of New Jersey as the first speaker. Mr. Riley stood bareheaded while the band which accompanied the Forty-fourth Street division played the "Marseillaise" and the crowd cheered. Capt. Hussey, who was on hand with seventy policemen, cleared a space in front of the building, and Riley, after he had been adjured by the master of ceremonies to "give them hot shot," began his address.

"Working men and working women," he said, "there are labor leaders who hobnob with capitalists who never see the inside of a jail. It is not of these I would speak. The United States flag is flying, though, over the penitentiary at Boisé City, Idaho, where brave men and loyal men of our class are illegally imprisoned, and because it flies there it does not fly over our ranks here to-night. These men the capitalists would railroad to the gallows.

"Which will you have to lead you, men like Gompers and Mitchell and O'Connell, [hisses and cat calls,] or men like Moyer and Hayward and St. John, [cheers,] who would lay down their lives for you? I tell you that the working people want no more of false leaders like Gompers and Mitchell, who are wined and dined by the Civic Federation, [hisses,] and we want no more of any man who has anything to do with such an iniquitous body. The Civic Federation can never hoodwink right-minded working people. [Cheers.] We are too wise to be taken in by any such game.

"We must organize on the right lines and be ready, when the time comes, to meet force with force. The working class is the only class in the world that is necessary and the only class that makes it possible to live, for it is the only producing class. We must let the capitalistic class know that if there is murder to be done the working class does not propose to furnish all the victims, [cheers,] that if they strike we will strike last, and that when we do they will be annihilated." [Cheers.]

In concluding Mr. Riley made an appeal for contributions to help in the fight for the freedom of the miners imprisoned in the West. He was followed by President Kehoe of the Industrial Workers, who spoke along the same lines. There were also speeches in German, Italian, and Yiddish. Before adjournment resolutions were adopted declaring that "the united forces of capitalism used the Governors, Judges, and militia of the West to crush the miners by throwing them into bull pens, shooting them in the back, and even denying them in death the last rites of the church." The resolution, which was long, ended by promising the Western Federation of Miners financial and moral support.

POLITICS IN PETTY COURTS.

East Side Justices Protest Against Bill to Correct Alleged Abuses.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 14.—Justices Hoyer, Moore, Lynn, and Lauer, four of New York's Municipal Court Justices, came here to-day to protest against the Cooper-Weber bill abolishing the rotation from district to district of members of the city's Municipal Court bench.

Judge Hoyer said the reason some of the east side Judges were in favor of the rotation was because they "were ashamed of their constituents." This was hotly denied by Justice George F. Roesch, who declared that he was proud of his constituents.

Mrs. Rosalie Loew Whitney, Howard Gans, Justice Roesch, and Louis Lauder spoke for rotation as against the bill. Mrs. Whitney said: "If these Justices sit continuously in the district in which they are elected they are continuously under pressure from political leaders as to their decision of cases. If they move from district to district that pressure is much minimized, if not entirely eliminated. If they stay in their own districts the pressure is such as makes it difficult even for an honest Justice to do his duty. The conditions in these courts under a non-rotation system were fully exploited several years ago, when Herman Bolte, a Judge of that court, was removed for misconduct in office." She said a Municipal Judge sitting all the year round in one district became virtually an autocrat and surrounded himself with a gang.

Quick Passage for Transit Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 14.—Pursuant to the action taken last night by the Cities Committee of the Senate, the Elsberg Rapid Transit bill was formally reported to the Senate to-day. It goes on the third reading calendar in the place it occupied before it was referred back for amendment, and as there are no more hearings on the measure, it will come up for passage in the Senate probably on Monday night or Tuesday morning. It is expected that its passage through both branches of the Legislature will be rapid.

Detective Bureau Bill Reported.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 14.—The Prentice bill abolishing the Detective Bureau in New York City and establishing the "Bureau of Criminal Investigation" was reported out to-day by the Cities Committee of the Assembly. By the bill detectives to be appointed in future may be reduced to the lowest rank by order of the Police Commissioner.

Offers Hope Hall for $31,000.

A lawyer acting for Mrs. Ballington Booth has written to G. Webster Peck, President of the Improvement Association at Flushing, offering to sell the Hope Hall property for $31,000. The letter says that if the committee appointed by the Flushing organization is anxious to have Hope Hall moved an offer for the property at that figure would receive favorable consideration. The association was prepared to offer $20,000.

Pastor Out; Resents a Mission.

The Rev. Augustus Elmendorf resigned as rector of Holy Cross Church, Jersey City, last night because of friction with his parishioners over the establishment by them of a mission near the church. He said that the mission was attracting attention from his church. The Rev. W. H. Barnes resigned as curate a week ago for a similar reason.

PUSHING ANTI-MERGER BILL.

Advanced to Third Reading in Assembly, Breaking Party Lines.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 14.—By a vote of 80 to 38 the Shanahan Anti-merger bill was to-day advanced to third reading in the Assembly. Party lines fell away on the vote.

Assemblyman Shanahan, author of the bill, declared that if it should become a law the formation of holding companies for the purpose of consolidating railroad companies in New York would be prohibited, and overcapitalization prevented. He said he believed that $118,000,000 of the capital stock of the Ryan-Belmont merger represented water. He wanted to have corporations formed naturally without the aid of huge holding companies. In that way he was confident the danger from watered stock would be lessened.

SENATE FOR BANK INQUIRY.

Passes Measure Naming ex-Judges Parker and Andrews Investigators.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 14.—Senator Stevens made another ineffectual attempt to-day to have substituted for the bill making former Judges Andrews and Parker a committee to investigate the Banking Department his resolution that a joint committee of the Legislature make the investigation.

The matter came up when the bill creating the commission was up for final passage on third reading. First Senator Stevens moved to substitute his resolution that five members of the Assembly and three of the Senate, be made the investigating committee, and this failing, he moved his resolution as an amendment to the bill. In the course of the debate Senator Grady, who had Judge Parker named as one of the Commissioners, said that Stevens evidently thought he had a good thing and did not want to let go of it.

"Whatever the ambitions of the Senator might be," said Grady, "we are not here making candidates for the Republican convention for Governor, and we are not helping along any booms."

The vote on the amendment showed the hopelessness of Mr. Stevens's position, and it was lost, 27 to 17. On the final vote for the bill framed by the Finance Committee only two Senators, Page and Hinman, voted in the negative, even Senator Stevens coming over to the other side in order to get some kind of an investigation. The bill creating former Judges Parker and Andrews an investigating committee now goes to the Assembly.

SLAIN MAN A KIDNAPPER?

Killed for Letting Bozuffi Escape, Newark Police Think.

The Newark police believe that the Italian whose body was found in the canal near the Forest Hill golf field on Tuesday morning was one of the abductors of the son of the New York Italian banker, Bozuffi, who was held for $20,000 ransom until he managed to escape. The body answers in a general way the description of a third man who was associated with two arrested for the abduction.

In the dead man's pocket was a pawn ticket from an establishment two doors away from the house on East Fifty-ninth Street, Manhattan, from which the boy escaped.

The police believe that the dead man was the one in whose charge the abducted boy was left, and that he was lured to the spot by his confederates and killed for having defeated their scheme.

Alexander McMullen, 17 years old, says that while he was on his way home on Monday night he saw three Italians in excited talk at the scene of the murder. One had a gun and another was whittling with a big jack knife. There were eight bullet wounds of varying calibre in the body.

HEAR BOOKER WASHINGTON.

Negro Educator's Talk Impresses Council of Jewish Women.

Booker T. Washington talked to the New York Section of the Council of Jewish Women, in the schoolroom of the Temple Emanu-El last night. "The American Negro" was his subject. The schoolroom was well filled with the women of the council, and they seemed much impressed with the address made by the Tuskegee Institute's Superintendent.

Dr. Washington said that most persons in considering the American negro overlook the fact that the negro had a civilization before he was brought into America. Although it was not a European civilization, it was in a high degree creditable and had a rugged honesty.

Dr. Washington told about the work at Tuskegee. The negro, he added, had made his home in the South, and all ought to help make his presence not only honorable but desirable.

PATENT MEDICINE BILL TO CURB DRUG USERS

Amendment Will Make It a Felony to Sell Cocaine to Them.

CHECK THE DOCTORS ALSO

Criminal Offense to Prescribe Such Drugs Except for Purely Medicinal Uses—Hearing at Albany.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 14.—The Senate Committee on Public Health gave a hearing to-day on the Stevens bill, which compels the placing of the formula on all patent medicine packages. Several amendments will be inserted in the bill as a result of knowledge gained by the committee. The chief amendment will be one making it a felony to sell opium or cocaine without a physician's prescription, and a felony also for a physician to prescribe it unless it shall be for purely medicinal use.

Senator Frawley was much interested when William Jay Schieffelin, the New York drug manufacturer and importer, declared that 20 per cent. of the cocaine manufactured in this country was used by cocaine fiends, and that of the 250 white girls, some no more than 14 years old, now living in Chinatown, New York, 60 per cent. were cocaine and opium fiends.

The opponents of the Stevens bill, from taking a flat stand against it, changed before the end of the hearing to the point where they agreed with its principle, but expressed the belief that the methods of its working out should be changed somewhat.

Samuel Hopkins Adams began by saying: "The ingredient in patent medicines that we are fighting is fraud. Patent medicines always have a blanket claim put forward for them. Poisons have been taken into the system through ignorance of what was contained in the medicine. The poor and the ignorant have purchased thousands upon thousands of dollars' worth of these preparations. They don't know what they are getting, nor have they any means of knowing what effect too free use of the stuff will have. The medicine or compound is a fraud, for much is claimed that it can never do, and all the injurious things it will do are not brought to the attention of the purchaser. This bill is but one step toward remedying these conditions."

Mr. Adams told about certain medicines the taking of which had resulted fatally.

Senator Stevens had previously endeavored to learn from the opponents of the bill who was responsible for the thousands of letters that have come to Albany against his bill. All the patent medicine men had assured him they didn't know anything about it. Mr. Adams declared unhesitatingly that it had been the missionary work of the Proprietary Medicine Association of America.

Mr. Schieffelin's revelations had to a large extent a bearing on the widespread, indiscriminate use of cocaine. His revelations concerning the use of drugs for illegal purposes shocked the Senators and Assemblymen. Though himself a wholesale druggist and owner of a patent preparation, he was very much in favor of the Stevens bill.

He declared that great loss would not accrue—in fact, hardly any loss whatever to drug merchants who might be "loaded up" with stock, as patent medicine firms would gladly send labels to be placed upon their goods.

Dr. Shaw of Albany gave the committee another shock when he described the hundreds of infants who were taken to the hospitals "doped" with patent medicines.

Dr. Edward G. Janeway of New York protested against allowing leeway to interests that put out something "that may foist upon a patient an appetite that is almost certain to prove ruinous."

Dr. Albert T. Weston of New York declared that a prominent official in New York came to his political, financial, and almost physical end through a certain remedy. He began by allowing his picture to be published as an advocate of the remedy, which resulted in the medicine company sending him many bottles free. All of them were used, and the official acquired a habit which he could not shake off.

George L. Douglass opened for the opposition by saying among other things that the State Board of Health had too much to do to have the added duty of enforcing the provisions of the bill; that if it should be enacted, the patent medicine interests would prefer the duty to devolve upon the State Board of Pharmacy. This board is composed of druggists from each judicial district. The State Health Commissioner is a physician.

The bulk of the opposition was that the bill would confer powers upon the State Health Commissioner not warranted by the legislation; that it was too severe and hit everything in sight; that it would be a hardship to place the formula on the preparations; that it would create a prejudice against patent medicines; that it would injure great financial interests; that equally reasonable would be the labeling of lemon extract and vanilla, which had approximately 95 and 62 per cent. alcohol, and that in the hands of the public "a little knowledge is a dangerous thing."

THE CHILDREN ENJOY

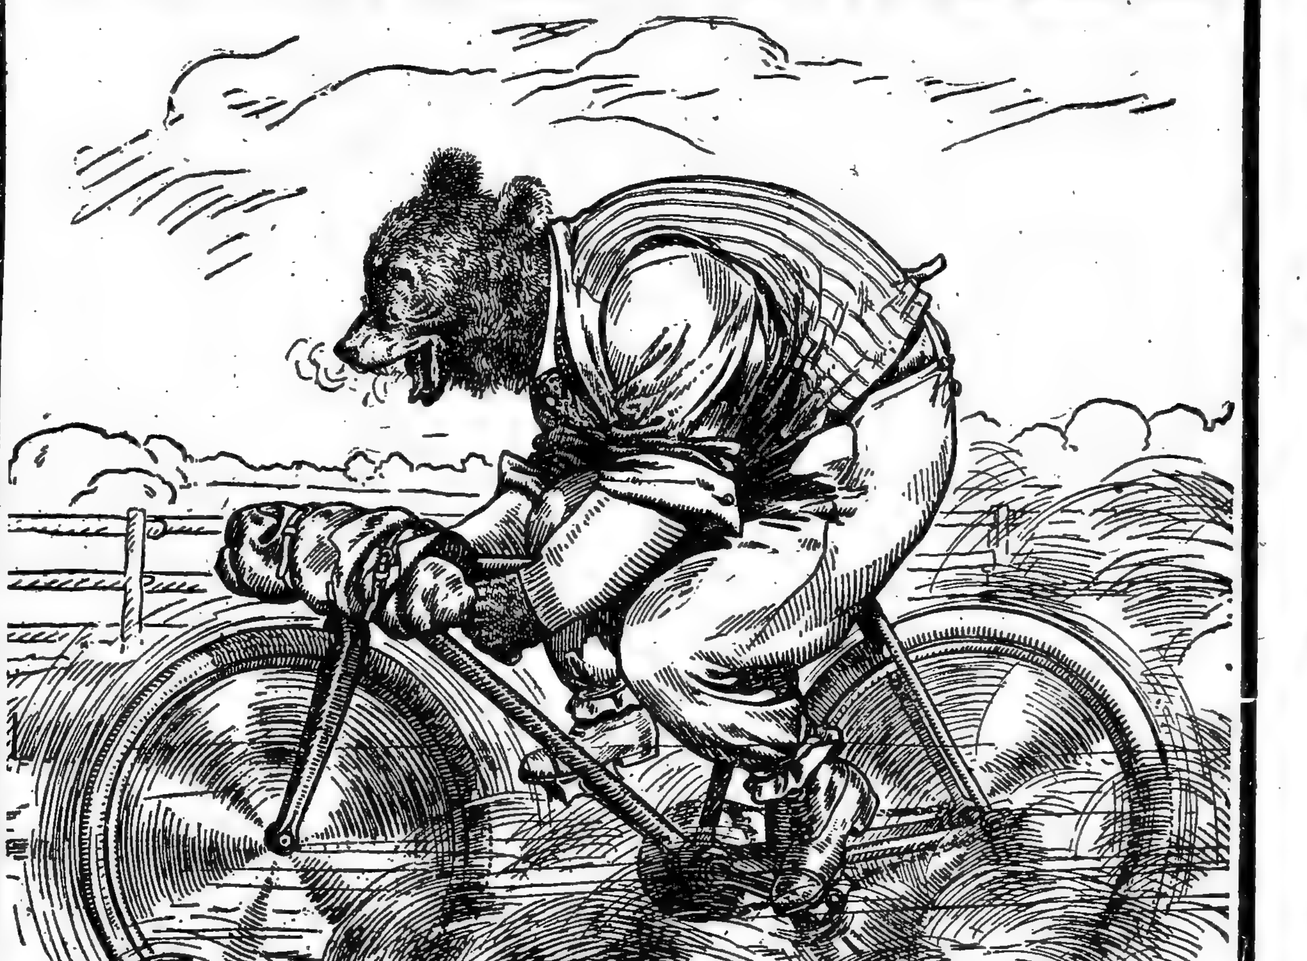
Life out of doors and out of the games which they play and the enjoyment which they receive and the efforts which they make comes the greater part of that healthful development which is so essential to their happiness when grown. When a laxative is needed the remedy which is given to them to cleanse and sweeten and strengthen the internal organs on which it acts should be such as physicians would sanction, because its component parts are known to be wholesome and the remedy itself free from every objectionable quality. The one remedy which physicians and parents, well-informed, approve and recommend and which the little ones enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects, is—Syrup of Figs—and for the same reason it is the only laxative which should be used by fathers and mothers.

Syrup of Figs is the only remedy which acts gently, pleasantly and naturally without griping, irritating, or nauseating and which cleanses the system effectually, without producing that constipated habit which results from the use of the old-time cathartics and modern imitations, and against which the children should be so carefully guarded. If you would have them grow to manhood and womanhood, strong, healthy and happy, do not give them medicines, when medicines are not needed, and when nature needs assistance in the way of a laxative, give them only the simple, pleasant and gentle—Syrup of Figs.

Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the combination of the laxative principles of plants with pleasant aromatic syrups and juices, but also to our original method of manufacture and as you value the health of the little ones, do not accept any of the substitutes which unscrupulous dealers sometimes offer to increase their profits. Please to remember, the full name of the Company—CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.—is printed on the front of every package. In order to get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine only. For sale by all reliable druggists.

WHOLESOME FUN FOR OLD AND YOUNG

The Roosevelt Bears Arrive in Boston



Things went well till half-past six
When the Roosevelt Bears got in a mix.
The train had stopped at a little town
When TEDDY—G stepped out and down
And across a platform to a stand
Where folks eat breakfast from their hand.
He ordered steak, well-done, and ham,
And a chicken pie and toast with jam,
And fried potatoes and coffee hot,
And Boston baked beans in a pot.
The waiter nearly had a fit
But he placed the order bit by bit
While TEDDY—G stood by and read
The things the morning paper said.
Meanwhile the train had gone ahead
To another town at a lively rate
Where TEDDY—B who had risen late
Got a telegram from his traveling mate
Which read this way: "I'm off my trolley;
I'm left behind; my breakfast's jolly;
Get off yourself and wait for me;
Let the train go on," signed "TEDDY—G."

CROWD HISSES FIGHTERS CLINCHED FOR 6 ROUNDS

McGovern and Nelson Displease Big Attendance at Bout.

CHAMPION IS THE STRONGER

Spurred by the Taunts of the Spectators, the Dane Used Brooklyn Boy Severely in Last Two Rounds.

PHILADELPHIA, March 14.—Battling Nelson, the lightweight champion, and Terry McGovern made a pretense of contesting the first four rounds of their six-round exhibition at the National Athletic Club in this city to-night. They clinched and refused to break away at the word of the referee, and used every device to avoid fighting. The big crowd that taxed the building to its capacity and had paid as high as $50 a seat to see a match were bitterly displeased by the failure, and they showed their feelings by hisses and catcalls.

Finally the taunts became so provoking that Nelson was driven to attack his worn opponent, and in the closing rounds he showed his superiority. McGovern reached him in those rounds several times with hard blows, but they did not feaze him. On the contrary, Nelson landed a terrific punch on Terry's jaw that all but put the Brooklyn boy to sleep. In the sixth round, although he did not force matters when he might have won, Nelson placed another right on the ex-champion's chin, and again had him in a bad way. The law here permits no decision.

Not in the history of boxing contests in this city was there a greater demand for seats than to-night. Tickets in the hands of speculators worth $10 apiece commanded as much as $50, and five-dollar seats sold for double their price. When the first preliminary was called there was not a vacant seat in the building and scores were standing. Seated close to the ring were many prominent business men.

Neither Nelson nor McGovern appeared before 10 o'clock. Both men were trained to the hour. The men were to fight at 133 pounds, and both scaled at the weight. In the betting before the bout Nelson ruled a slight favorite, but there was plenty of McGovern money in sight. His admirers did not hesitate to proclaim their confidence that he would defeat the Dane.

McGovern entered the ring at 10:05. He received a tremendous ovation. His seconds were Hughey McGovern, Joe Humphries, John Burdick, Samuel Harris, and Terry Lee. Nelson came on immediately after, followed by his manager, "Billy" Nolan, "Kid" Abell, "Eddie" Kelly, and "Johnny" Loftus, his seconds. The referee, "Jack" McGuigan, promptly called the men to the centre of the ring and instructed them. A moment later the fight was on.

ROUND 1.—Began at 10:40. Nelson missed a left and both clinched, and it was 20 seconds before they separated. The crowd hissed and Nelson led with left to head. They again clinched and the referee warned McGovern for holding. There was another clinch and McGovern sent a hard left to the head. They were clinching at the bell, and as they went to their corners there was nothing but hisses.

ROUND 2.—McGovern missed a left for the wind and they again began to wrestle. McGovern placed a left to wind and left and right to head. They rushed to a clinch, and then McGovern drove a right to the head, which jarred the Battler. Nelson was cautioned for using his shoulder. Nelson missed a straight left, and again they clinched. The boys did not move six feet from the centre of the ring and were still clinched at the bell. Groans and hisses greeted the men as they went to their corners.

ROUND 3.—McGovern tried the left to wind twice but was blocked in both attempts. They clinched, and the referee could not get them to break. Nelson drove two lefts to face and there was the same old clinch. McGovern drove a left to the jaw and missed a hard right. McGovern uppercut with a hard right and then sent a right to the jaw. Nelson sent a left to the head and ducked a vicious left. Nelson sent another left to the face and the men were clinched at the gong.

ROUND 4.—McGovern swung wild with his right but drove a left to the wind. Nelson sent a left to the face and then they clinched and wrestled across the ring. Nelson pounded McGovern's kidney in the clinch. Nelson sent a light left to face and McGovern missed a swing for the jaw. Nelson was growing stronger while McGovern seemed to be weakening. Nelson sent a hard left and a right to the jaw and McGovern was weak as he went to his corner. It was the first round in which there was any real fighting.

ROUND 5.—McGovern sent a left to the head and Nelson countered with a left to the wind. Nelson sent a light left to the stomach. McGovern rushed to a clinch and refused to break when ordered by the referee. McGovern sent three lefts to the face, but the blows did not have any appreciable effect on Nelson. When they broke Nelson drove a terrific right to McGovern's jaw, which made the Brooklyn boy wabbly. They clinched, and as they broke away the bell rang.

ROUND 6.—Nelson missed a right swing and then rushed to a clinch. McGovern missed a right for the wind and then sent a right uppercut to the wind. Nelson sent a light left to the face and then missed a terrific right for McGovern's chin. Nelson drove McGovern into a neutral corner and landed two hard blows on the wind. McGovern was almost out when the gong sounded. It was Nelson's fight.

ROAD DRIVERS ADOPT RULES.

Arrange for Annual Parade and Settle Detail of Contests.

One of the best attended meetings in the history of the organization was held last night by the Road Drivers' Association at the Hotel Cadillac, when plans for the Speedway parade, horse show, and brushes to be held on Saturday, May 5, were decided upon. This is one week earlier than originally intended. The route of parade will be similar to that of last year, and the Old Guard's Band was engaged for the occasion.

The first matinée brush will be held on Thursday, May 10. An effort was made to change the day this year to Saturday, but the success of last year influenced the members to retain Thursday. Entries for the first brush must be sent to the Secretary by May 3. J. H. Campbell donated a silver cup for competition, making a total of eleven trophies.

The Cup Committee reported that the Morosini Cup will be awarded to the horse winning the greatest number of heats regardless of the gait of the horses. The Frazier Cup will be awarded on a point system similar to that in vogue at Empire track. The Executive Committee and Board of Directors Cups will be set aside for trotters and pacers respectively. As no horse will be eligible to win more than one cup, the winner of the Morosini Cup will be barred from winning either of the latter two prizes. The Schuyler Cup will be reserved for teams, and the remainder of the trophies will be devoted to competitions for points in rotation according to classification. It was decided that, in view of the difficulties in speedway racing no horse shall be expected to go against its record. As the point competition prohibits walkovers, no horse will be permitted to go over the course alone.

It was decided that as the horse is counted as a point winner and not the driver the points won by a horse in case it is sold during the season shall be credited to its new owner. The distance flag question provoked a warm debate. It was decided that in brushes where more than five horses start the distance flag shall be 75 yards, and where less than this number start the distance shall be 50 yards. A recall bell will be used in the future, so as to avoid the difficulties of past seasons. The question of a permanent headquarters was held over until the next meeting. The Treasurer's report shows a balance of $935 in the Treasury, with no outstanding bills.

HOCKEY VICTORY FOR N. Y. A. C.

"Mercury Foot" Second Team Defeats Hockey Club by 4 to 3.

A hockey game was played in St. Nicholas Rink last evening between the second teams of the New York Athletic Club and the Hockey Club of New York, which the former won by a score of 4 goals to 3. The first half was well played, with each team scoring one goal and playing clean and spirited hockey. The Hockey Club forwards pressed the New York Athletic Club men very hard, and but for good work of Strange at goal would have scored three or four times. The second half degenerated into a burlesque, however, in which four men were sent off the ice at once. The teams lined up thus:

N. Y. A. C., 4.	Position.	Hockey Club, 3.
Strange	Goal	Regensberger
Jaeckel	Point	Gallie
Reilly	Cover point	Tisney
Williams	Forward	De Casanova
Peabody	Forward	Donohue
De Lima	Forward	Harman
White, Blakely	Forward	Hazleton

Goals—Reilly, Harman, Hazleton, Donohue, Peabody, (2,) Williams. Referee—"Billy" Russell of the Hockey Club of New York. Goal umpires—J. Coolican of the New York Athletic Club, and Mr. Barron of the St. Nicholas Skating Club. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

OPEN-AIR AUTO SHOW AT EMPIRE CITY TRACK

Three Days in May Selected for Interesting Exhibit.

MOTOR CONTESTS A FEATURE

Races Will Be Held, but Principal Effort Will Be to Show Capability of Cars.

Plans are progressing favorably for a three days' automobile show in May, which will be held at the Empire City trotting track, provided arrangements can be made to secure that course. This novel exhibit will be conducted by the New York Automobile Trade Association, and committees are at work upon the plans. May 24, 25, and 26 have been selected as the dates most favorable for the show. That will be in the interim of the first and second Spring meetings of the Westchester Racing Association at Belmont Park, and it will afford, perhaps, the only opportunity of the season for automobilists to see track contests and races.

The plan of the committee is not to intensify track racing. If any high-powered cars are matched they will compete only in a few events. Most of the contests will be for all classes of stock cars, including the small powered runabouts, and there will be a number of tests showing how quickly a car can be brought to a stop and its ease of control by one who understands the simplest rudiments of driving.

Clinton R. Mabley is President of the Trade Association, and he has appointed Frank Eveland as Chairman of the Show Committee. The committee that is now making arrangements consists of Percy Owen, C. Andrade, and W. A. Haradon. At the next meeting of the Board of Governors it is expected that definite plans will be announced.

The races and tests on the track will occupy only a part of each day. One or two large tents may be erected on the grounds, and in these special motor exhibits will be placed. It is expected that the automobile show of itself will be complete, but while the managers will endeavor to give the public as large a number of different makes of machines as possible for inspection the greatest effort will be put forth in demonstrating the practical and serviceable uses of motor cars. In following out this plan all sorts of tests will be arranged. There will be starting and stopping contests, carburetor, reverse gear, and brake tests. Special events and tests of steam and electric vehicles will also be held, provided the entries are sufficient to furnish spectators with convincing object lessons of the good points of these makes of cars, in addition to the gasoline machines.

The New York Automobile Trade Association is composed of forty of the most prominent dealers in the city. At the monthly meetings discussions are held on technical and practical automobile questions, and the idea of an open-air show was broached at the first meeting held by the members after the two big automobile shows in this city in January. The great interest shown in those exhibits in the mechanical construction of the cars seemed to indicate that motor users would be glad to see a show where it would be possible to give more satisfactory demonstrations of the serviceability of different types of cars. The plan has met with general favor, and there will be no lack of cars to sustain popular interest during the three days of the open-air show.
